THE ARCADE

A big and sexy level from Virgin's brandnew Operation Wolf-style arcade conversion. Hence the name. (it's got Arnold Schwarzenegger in it as well, you see. He played the Terminator. Yes)

The entire (well, almost) 'What If...' section from MicroProse's combative flight sim. Get in your Spitifre and take out those jets right now! (Or vice versa).

SEEK & DESTROY

A veritable truckload of levels from Vision and Mindscape's wild rotational-scrolling helicopter shoot-'em-up.

Grobdai

Lots and lots of 'sticky gooey stuff hanging from the ceiling antics', brought to you by motorcycle courier from Psygnosis.

CHRISTMAS DIZZY

It's got nothing to do with Christmas, but it DOES have Dizzy in it. What do you want, custard on top?

Tired of tedious old made-of-board board games? Why not get the whole family

GOT A FAULTY DISK?

● Oh no! Are you sure? Before you go any further, try the procedures described in the panel over the page. If, after all that, you do have disk problems, simply place it in an envelope, along with an SAE and an explanatory letter, and return it NOT TO THE AP OFFICE but to: AMIGA POWER Disk Returns 33, DisCopy Labs, PO Box 21, Daventry NN11 5BU. Send it to us, and we'll throw you in a canal.

YOUR DISK AND YOU

READ THIS BIT FIRST OR NO-ONE WILL TAKE ANY NOTICE OF YOU WHEN YOU SAY THAT YOUR DISK DOESN'T WORK.

- You've only got 512K of memory on your Amiga? Blimey, that's a bit stupid, isn't it? Go and buy an expansion RIGHT NOW.
- To load any of the games, all you have to do is switch off your machine, insert the disk, and switch your machine back on again.
- An options menu will appear. Simply follow the instructions to load the game of your choice.
- Just to be on the safe side, though, the on-screen instructions say that you should press the appropriate function key to make your selection.
- You'll have to reset your machine in order to play one of the other demos. When you do so, simply follow the instructions above.
- Remember to keep the disk you are playing your game from in the drive at all times. And remember switching the machine off for 20 seconds or so before loading a new program will help prevent disks being infected by stray viruses.
- Have a good time.

OH NO! SOMETHING WENT WRONG!

- Are you sure?
- Try all that stuff again, making sure you've disconnected any peripherals the program might not 'like', such as external drives.
- If your disk fails to load, then pop it in a padded envelope, along with a letter explaining the problem and an SAE, to:

AMIGA POWER Disk 33 Returns DisCopy Labs PO Box 21 Daventry NN11 5BU

 We're really hoping that you're reading this bit, because it's quite important: please don't send your disks to us at the AMIGA POWER office. We really don't know how to fix dodgy disks, and we'll just throw 'em straight in the bin. So send them to Discopy. Please.

GAME

(Virgin)

DOZE DODOGRANI

Shooting the guys in the

Remember that film Short Circuit?

back's SO tempting.

There's very little we can tell you about this abnormally cool demo, since you get masses of introduction in the game itself. You play John Connor and his right hand man in a battle across the scarred and battle-torn terrain of Los Angeles in the near future. The ideal controller's a mouse, which allows you to sweep streams of concentrated fire across the screen in any direction, but you can use a joystick if you really have to. To play, simply load up the game, shoot everything that looks mechanical (but avoid the humes, as they're generally on your side and will cost you a points penalty if you zap 'em) and try and get to the big bad nasty at the end. The left mouse button fires the machine gun, the right one fires your rockets and the boxes contain various power ups. Oh and there's a review of the complete game on page 40, so get firing!

Oh dear, it appears that I've dug a huge hole for myself now, since I've managed to give such clear and concise instructions that there's still half a page left to fill with something. Gulp...

That James Cameron, eh? What a boy, he started off doing naff horror movies (who could forget the unutterably terrible Pirhana 2 - Flying Terror?) and then swiftly moved onto write and direct The Terminator, which was THE seminal action movie of the 80's. From that he turned the creepy atmosphere, slick commercial visuals and tense mood of Alien into a delicious rollercoaster of non-stop 'Nam-grunts-in-space action with the truly excellent Aliens. It seemed that he could do no wrong, so to prove he could, he made the hugely disappointing The Abyss. What could so very easily have been a gripping superpower thriller became a wet (in the wrong sense of the word) ET movie, with a storming powerhouse of a start gradually gave way

CHRISTMAS DIZZY (Codemasters)

Christmas Dizzy, eh? That'll be our favourite animated calcium coated ovoid complete with delightful santa hat and pretty snow filled landscape, right? Well. not really, but if you've just bought this, then you'll be playing this at Christmas, which is the next best thing, sort of. This is actually a small section of Fantastic reference fans), complete with a few puzzles to work out and a rather fiendish better for it sliding tile sub-game where you have to rearrange the picture of Dizzy and the Magician against the clock. It's got silky smooth scrolling and parallax backgrounds and so much colour that you eyes could well melt, but there's no getting away from it, it's definitely a Dizzy game. This may, or may not be a good thing, depending on whether you like Dizzy whether you can stand the little oval white geezer himself. Me? I'd go for Fantastic Omelette and be done with the little blighter, but there again I was the only kid at primary school who saw the funny side of the Humpty Dumpty. Is it so wrong to dislike fictional egg-based characters? Yes, I dislike their inherent egginess and their 'extracted from some sort of flying creature' origins, but I'm not ashamed of this. And furthermore... (That's enough about eggs. - Ed) to a wishy washy, 'wouldn't it be great if everyone lived in peace and harmony' ending. Yeah great, James, if I wanted to feel good, I'd have gone to see When Harry Met Sally. Following that came T2, a dazzling visual spectacle with a rather lacklustre plot, and then some executive producer stuff, most successfully on the excellent Kathryn Bigelow cops, robbers and surf dudes flick Point Break. What next for the lad James? Well, his forthcoming Spiderman film looks promising, and it's bound to lead to a game spin off. Who knows, maybe we'll get it on the coverdisk? Am I near the end of the column yet? (No. - Ed)

DOGFIGHT (Micro-Prose)

MicroProse have long been famous for coming up with top flight sim action, time after time, but in one of their recent releases. they've taken at flight sim game engine and turned it into an arcaniev sort of shoot-'em-up, almost. Who cares about waiting for take-off clearance from the control tower or constantly checking maps to see if you're on course? Not us, that's for sure, we want to fire rockets at things and watch the smoke trail as they plunge. Yes.

Chocks Away!

What you've got here is a cut down version of the actual game, which makes sound financial sense for MicroProse, who'd rapidly go bust if they handed out entire games on magazine cover disks. You get all the option screens that are in the game, and if you want to know what they all do, read the review in AP 30. In this demo you can only play the 'What If...?' section, which allows you to pit lighters from different eras against each other. Again, you get a limited choice, but there's still enough to fly an old propdriven stringbag against a hi-tech jet lighter. But how?

As well as the joystick and fire button, which have fairly obvious and clearly definied uses, here's a rundown of the main controls. (Bear in mind that WW2 planes aren't going to have missiles. Obvious! know, but if we don't say it, someone's bound to write in and complain, or sue us. You know what people are like these days):

helicopter, it'd never get off the ground. Just look at those stubby rotor blades, ther's no way that they've got sufficient surface area to lift an entire Apache gunship. Oh no.

SEEK AND DESTROY (Mindscape/Vision)

It's peace through superior firepower time in this Desert-Strike-Viewed-From-Above game, as you bring peace and harmony to the world by killing pretty much everyone in it who's shooting at anyone else. The full game came office last month, after we'd been reading Defense News quite a lot. It's one of those weekly trade papers, devoted to selling expensive pieces of military hardware, and we love it! Thanks to adverts in Defence News, we know know that Multiple Round Simultaneous Impact capabilities combine to make AFAS twice as effective as Paladin (whatever they may actually be), and that with it, friendly survivors will increase by 25 percent. We also know that only ITT is committed to making the SINCGARS system all it can

> ove' the ise, how do be, and I think that's a valuable lesson. for us all there.

But what does it all mean?

What this all means is that we're fairly clued into the cult of the gun, which is a good gang to be in when you play Seek And Destroy. See? Even the name of the game drips with jingoistic fervour and implores you to kill, Kill, KILL! It's not called Find and Chastise, or even Hunt and Scold Sternly, because you're not there to pussy-foot around, you're there to blast your foe into bloody tatters.

Obviously, having a fully armed Apache gunship helps in your mission of killing everyone, blowing everything up and then landing back at base for a few beers with your buddies and a hearty pat on the back from your superior officers. To take off and land you use the arrow keys on the keyboard, and all the flying around and shooting's simply on the joystick. To toggle through the weapons use the following keys:

F1 - Chain Gun

F2 - Fire and Forget Rockets

F3 - Air To Air Interceptor Missiles

Of course, if this were a real

F4 - Air To Ground Missiles

F5 - Airstrike

F6 - Napalm

You've got limitless ammunition for the chain gun, but most of the other weapons are in extremely short supply, and you only get a couple of goes with really devastating things like napalm or calling in airstrikes.

Extra weapons are hidden in ground targets, which is sufficient shallow justification for firing volleys of expensive ordnance at every single thing you see. Fuel and shields are also hiding, but where as you just fly over weapons to reload, you have to land to get to these vital items.

Good luck, and shoot straight and true, killing your enemy before he kills you. And remember, a gun is just a tool. It's a hard heart that kills.

BIT MOVIE 94

Judging by the number of the entries we receive for our ever running 'In the Style Of' compo, we realise that some of you out there do actually use your Amigas for more than just playing games. Weirdos.

If you fancy yourself as a bit of a latter day Hanna or Barbera, then start animating now and enter for the Bit Movie '94 Computer Art Festival.

If you win or are selected as a final candidate, you'll be invited over to Riccione in Italy to take part in the festival held there.

Each year the festival gets bigger and better and attracts more media coverage. In 1993, about 180 authors sent over 400 works of art, 932 of which were real live animations. 111 of the entries were from Italy. A paltry seven came from this country.

So if you think you've got what it takes and that you can back up your ideas with some fast animation action write now for an entry form. The address to write to is; Bit Movie 94, c/o Carlo Mainardi, Via Bologna 13, 47036 Riccione, Italy. Fax [xx39] 541 601962

SURELY THAT'S A FOUL, REF?

Talk about shoulder charging the competition into a corner. Virgin have decided to tackle the price of Goal! in a move guaranteed to have the opposition shouting off-side surely ref. Yes, that's right, the price of Goal! is being substituted just a few minutes into the match, from a rather pricey cup final ticket of £31.99 to a pretty tasty Vauxhall-Conference-boysgate £19.99. Not only that, they're throwing in a free eight-page football fanzine for you to read as well. Software companies – they're all heart, aren't they?

CORE, WHAT A CORKER!

They've been at it a full three years now. So Core Design, being the forward-planning, market-penetrating bunch of executive thrusters that they're now launching their own budget label, Corkers.

Corkers is going to kick off with a collection of four of Core's collection of back-catalogue classics, namely Chuck Rock, Corporation.

OUT ON PAROLE

We've been getting in trouble for wibbling too much recently, so this month we've decided to turn over an experimental new leaf and try just listing the forthcoming new releases planned for the Amiga in the next few weeks. Get a load of these; On November 22, we'll all be able to go crazy over the wondrous Crazy Cars 3 from Titus. It's going to be released at a fabulously inexpensive £4.99! Mm, that'll boost sales of Lamborghini Challenge, guys. Following this up in a French budget release frenzy is Super Cauldron priced at a similarly competition-spanking £4.99, while Prehistorik 2 is a full priced release marked for Christmas. Cost £25.99.

Donk from Supervision is going to be appearing on a CD32 near you on the same date. Its priced at a not-cheap £29.99, but full marks to Supervision for supporting Commodore's fledgling technology.

Some of our younger readers may not remember Digital Integration. But on November 22, they're going to be releasing the long-awaited Tornado. Not much guessing required to work out the subject matter of this sim. £34.99 from a store near you.

The weather hasn't been too hot recently, so to remind you of this fact, Entertainment International are releasing Maeistrom at the forbidding but increasingly popular £34.99 price point.

increasingly popular £34.99 price point.
Moving on to November 23, Zeppelin are leading their Christmas schedule with their sports pack which they've earth-shatteringly named Sports
Top 10. It'll set you back £29.99

Not content with a full price release programme, though, Zeppelin are also fielding a reserve budget game in the market. International Soccer, £9.99.

With an 'Alakazam' and an 'Open Sesame', Krisalis are set to spin some CD32 magic with their first budget release for said desirable consumer item. With a clap of their hands and the magic words "Size of a Compact Disc!", the lovely Arabian Nights will be charming a shop near you for a spellbinding £14.99.

Don't think you've heard the last of the Krisalis schedules, either. With a firm dedication to the CD32, they've also got John Barnes Football and Tie Break laced up and ready for some Compact Disc action. As with Arabian Nights, they're both gong to be priced at £14.99.

You shouldn't need telling, but on November 24 the wonderfully violent and controversial Cannon Fodder from Virgin which our very own Cam Winstanley described as 'better than life itself'. Price £29.99 and remember, kids — "War has never been so much fun." Keep an eye out for the fantastically glamorous pop video too, starring Jon Hare and the boys in a touching (if oddly high pitched) party fun singalong kind of a scenario.

Oh, and just in case you're wondering why we're rabbiting on about November release schedules when it's already December, our excuse is that, er... oh yeah. Fact is, software houses are notoriously unreliable on this kind of thing, so if we give them a month's leeway, they might just manage to catch up with us by four weeks later. Or, er, something. Yes.

The Warrior

The titles should be out by the time you read this at a seasonably reasonable £9.99 each.

Core aims to release subsequent titles at a frequency of around two to three titles a quarter. Unfortunately, they can't guarantee that all titles on the label will cost £9.99. "There is no fixed pricing for the label, retail prices will vary dependent upon the title, game genre and format".

The first couple of Corkers are reviewed in this month's Budgets pages, starting on p101.

THE BITCH IS BACK AGAIN

First there was Alien, then there was another one of it. Then there was another one of that one, and that one was Alien3. Or at least there was supposed to be. After many false starts, and a time-consuming switch from original publishers Acclaim to Virgin, the incept date of this rather groovy platform shoot-'em-up (which has been hanging around finished but unreleased for months now – we reviewed it back in February) has been finalised. It's out at last. Trumpets and fluorine blasters all round. Now, watch out for Bart Vs The World and Krusty's Super Fun House. But don't hold your breath.

LOGIPAD JOYSTICK

In a move set to take them boldly where no joystick has gone before, Spectravideo have released the first ever fully Microswitched Joypad. "So what?" you may be saying to yourself. "There's lots of these kind of things on the market already."

Ah, yes, but this one, the Logipad, comes with all these features as standard; six fire buttons, eight directional thumb control, select/start buttons and an independent autofire.

All this costs only £18.99. Itching to try one out yet? We thought so. You can contact Spectravideo either by telephone on 081-902 2211 or by faxing them on 081-903 6625.

The Logipad joystick. Basically the same idea as the Gravis joypad. It lets you substitute certain directions with the fire buttons. So no longer do you have to put up with those platformers that insist on using 'up' to jump. Hurrah, we say.

Special Reserve, the well known great-value software and peripheral club has just announced the successful opening of its first retail outlet. Surprisingly enough, it's based in Chelmsford and is just a stone's throw away from the bus station. There's also loads of nearby parking space. Being so easy to get to means that there's no reason for not giving it a visit.

(Dear oh Lord. Has it really come to this? -Ed) Only members get to purchase things at their amazing discounts, but the good thing is that you can join the club as you purchase. Membership prices start from just £4. That's right, £4 will you see your way clear to joining the other 200,000 members that Special Reserve claim they already have. They've been around since 1986 and certainly seem to know their

The new shop boasts over 2000 square feet of floor space and as you can see from the picture, it's quite literally packed with every imaginable peripheral and software package you can imagine. Drag your mum and dad along too, with that all-important Christmas list. There's no restriction on the age of members who can join the club, so if you can grab your gran and grandad as well, they'll have a grand time.

The launch of the new shop was quite a spectacle. Enlisting the help of Zool and Cool Spot to advertise the impending inauguration, the shop opened its doors to the public on Friday 5th November at 4:00p.m. amidst riotous disco music, and flashing lights. Also on display outside the shop was the brand new Rover Metro that Special Reserve intend to give away in a grand competition.

If you want to join the club or order something, or whatever, then phone the Special Reserve Sales Line on 0279 600204. Book early for Christmas.

Aw... Joseph Newble from Kent pressed this into our sweaty palms at the Second Future Entertainment Show last month, offering up the thought that Stuart'll like it'. It's Parasol Stars in the style of so-called 'alternative rock', and features Brett from out of Suede and Kurt from out of Nirvana tackling the evil might of end-of-level boss Slash from out of nasty heavy metallers Guns'n'Roses. Stuart did indeed like it, (especially Kurt's customised guitar) but the very sight of the long-haired 'axeman' gave him such a funny turn that he had to take a week off work, so we've consequently docked Joseph five marks as punishment. Still, that leaves him with 5/10, which means £100 of free software will be winging its way to him soon. If you fancy some of our action, send your disks to I Have Drawn My Own In The Style Of, AMIGA POWER, 29 Monmouth St, Bath, BA1 2DL.

That's right, they managed to enter the Pinball Fantasies Computer Pinball Championship hosted by 21st Century Entertainment. Well over 500 people entered the competition which was fully overrun with contestants and could have easily made the competition three times as large"

Craig had been practising for ages on his CD32 in anticipation of the upcoming competition. It all paid off though with Craig scoring a devastating 74 million on the Partyland table in just five minutes. The mind boggles.

And next year's competition? Bigger and better, apparently. Yikes.

Those pioneers of the walk-around-andlook-at-things adventures are back (back! BACK!), and they've got the Amiga pencilled in for a few new releases

By now, we should have seen Goblins 3 released, at a rather pricey £34.99. Still, if you're into offbeat, almost completely esoteric puzzlers this might just be the game for you.

Trying to capture the Christmas adventure market is the sixth in the King's Quest series, er, King's Quest 6. For the AGA chip set owners among you, the full 256-colour version of this doubtless-huge RPG/adventure will be available in early January, so set the date in the brand new desktop diary you're bound to get for Christmas from one of your aunties.

Last but not least is FPS: Soccer. Described as 'a football sim', (with a very real price of £40) look out for a more detailed description within these very pages as soon as we find out more about it ourselves.

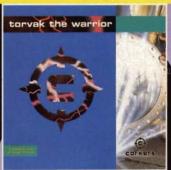

TOTAL PINBALL OVERLOAD MISSUS

That's right folks, be prepared to flip your lid, good old 21st Century are bundling the two best computer pinball games ever into one allencompassing package. Not content with handing out holidays and hi-fis to all and sundry, the Oxford softies are now making Pinball Dreams and Pinball Fantasies available to you, the games-playing public for the relatively measly sum of £34.99. Yes that's right, two for the price of er, about one and a half. If you somehow missed out before, there's no excuse not to get those flippers flipping now.

CANNON FODDER

War, as we all know, is immoral, illogical and lots of other things beginning with 'i.' But did you know that war's never been so much fun? Sensible Software seem to think so, and quite frankly, if after you've played Cannon Fodder and don't think so, then you're quite obviously as mad as a ferret suspended by a balloon over a small Cotswolds village. Combining the playability of Sensi Soccer with trench loads of bizzarre gallows humour, Cannon Fodder puts you in control of a small group of soldiers. One thing you can rely on is that your team won't stay a big happy family for very long. Why? Well, if the masses of enemy troops firing machine guns don't get you, then the chances are that angry natives, fiendish traps, tanks, helicopters and gun positions will.

SECOND SAMURAI

It's just flipping typical, isn't it? You wait ages for a samurai, and then two of them show up at once. Tch, I dunno. First Samurai featured a suitably attaired ninjitsu type, complete with baggy silk trousers and a rather fetching top-knot hairdo, who rampaged around platform levels killing bad guys, righting wrongs and solving fairly simple puzzles – and so does this. The twist is that this time, there are two samurai on the side side, hence Second Samurai – clever wording, I know. Cheers.

It's all been done before in the original, but this time the levels are bigger with more bosses, secret rooms and playable features. Oddly enough, the two player option isn't all that good, with the screen seeming far too small for both characters, but with the slickness of the rest of the game, you can sort of forgive this flaw.

THE SETTLERS

How to describe The Settlers in a few lines? Hmm, that's a tough one. Right, imagine all the god-games you've ever played such as Populous 1 and 2, Mega-lo Mania and Powermonger, and while you're at it, cram your head with images of games such as Ocean's A-Train and Sim-City from Maxis. Thinking about all of those? Okay, The Settlers is pretty much like allabove, with lots of pretty intro animations and cute sound effects thrown in. Building a castle you start out with a tiny kingdom, and by pushing your borders to meet your enemies' you expand it into an empire. Of course, you've got to feed your population, supply enough raw materials. It's captivating, bloodless entertainment, but it's only for people with long attention spans.

BRUTAL SPORTS FOOTBALL

The total 'niceness' and lack of gore in The Settlers probably isn't for everyone, which is just as well that Millenium have come up with Brutal Sports Football. It takes the basic idea from American Football, that well known namby-pamby sport of scrawny, spotty kids, and turns it into a noble venture worthy of true men. The aim of the game's not only to score as many goals as you can, but also to main your opponents.

Swords lie around the pitch to help you out, but quite honestly, nothing beats a sound kicking to weaken the players, and once they're truly beaten, you can rip off their heads and use them as footballs. It's not quite got the gameplay of that other politically incorrect footy game Speedball 2, but great fun nonetheless.

UNITED PREMI GIANDONS

Game: Manchester United Premier League Champions Publisher: Krisalis Authors: Simeon Pashley, Neil Adamson, Pete Harrap ETA: January

Briefly: Like them, loathe them or, like me, be completely oblivious to their existence, Manchester United are without doubt the most famous football team in the world. They may not have had the chart success of England (with New Order) or Tottenham Hotspur (with chirpy Cockney duo Chas and Dave) but it's what happens on the pitch that counts, 90 minutes end to end, right people?

Krisalis have had the licence to use the name for ages now: first there was Manchester United, then there was Manchester

United Europe, and now there is another one. Of it. We wouldn't be able to use that 'joke' half as many times as we do if it weren't for the vast amount of sequels on the Amiga, you know Anyway, it's called Manchester United Premier League Champions this time, making it possibly one of the longest and dullest titles of all time. Let's hope it gets better, eh?

The creators speak: Tim James from Krisalis seems genuinely pleased with my admissions that I don't like football and the only game of this ilk that I've ever played is Speedball 2. Talking to me clearly and slowly (the way people speak to foreigners or small children) he takes me through the basics of what are technically known as 'The Ball', 'The Goal' and 'The Team' before moving on to the difficult stuff.

"The game's a fast-paced arcade football game, but we've put in enough details so that when you play a season, you get a true feeling of the entire scene. It's no football manager sim, but with over 40 non-league teams as well as the Premier league. GM Conference league and all three Endsleigh divisions, it'll provide enough depth for you to feel like you're in control. We've got everyone's names in, and we look up transfers on Ceefax every night to make sure that the data disk will be totally accurate and up to date when it goes on sale. We've left a few slots free for you to make up your own teams, and there's also an 'edit team' option so you can alter your team to match the real world. You also have to pick the substitutes as well, including a sub goalie, which is this year's new rule change." Once you've picked your team, you have to decide on the kit. Now, being completely uninterested in watching 22 men run around a pitch, I always thought that everyone had a home strip and an away strip, but not so. There's now a third strip for those awkward moments when the opposing

"All the proper kits are included in the game, but if you feel like designing your own strips, there are ten different styles and 13 colours to choose from, so you can give Liverpool a checked salmon top, orange shorts and purple socks. If you really wanted to."

teams look the same. I live and learn.

Ouch! Steering well clear of disastrous fashion decisions, we move swiftly on to the game "We look up itself, or rather on to the all-new, patent pending Tacti-Grid™ screen.

This isn't a gimmick," stresses Tim. "In all other football games, you choose the team's formation and the players stick exactly to their positions, but with Tacti-Grid™ you can alter this. If you want to push one of the wingers slightly forward, you can do with Tacti-Grid™; if you've scored a few goals in the first half and feel like playing defensively in the second half, you can move the entire team back a bit. Using Tacti-Grid™"

"Gosh, that sounds like Tacti-Grid™ offers an amazing degree of flexibility," I hypothesise.

"Yes, that's the idea behind Tacti-Grid™ " savs Tim. "Tacti-Grid™ is ours. And it's trademarked."

Okay, kickoff time, and although it's a fairly obvious thing to point out, it looks a lot like Sensible Soccer, transfers on

only with more realistic players.

"I know we're going to be getting a lot more comments like this, but all of our previous football games have been horizontally scrolling with large graphics, but we felt that we'd gone as far as we could with this format. People want fast games these days, so we decided to go for the overhead view and smaller characters so that you get to see as much of the pitch as possible. Each player has 11 shot accuracy and power to morale and stamina. Tackling ability is determined by the player's tackling score and also his aggression, as highly aggressive players have greater chance of fouling or even injuring the other player."

The game's certainly fast, and also easy to get into. A single tap of the fire button gives a normal pass, holding it down produces a high kick, and a double tap results in a low but powerful kick. Controls are context-sensitive, so pressing fire if you haven't got the ball sends your player into a sliding tackle. The after-touch mode for swerving the ball has yet to be added, as have the routines for taking corners and the sound.

, look – it's a football pitch! th green grass. And all that.

There's going to be plenty of great music from Matt Furniss, plus reactive crowd effects. This is going to be a real football fan's football game, and we're working hard to get the difficulty and playability perfectly right. John Barnes European Football was too hard, but we don't want to make this too easy. Playing non-league clubs at first will provide an easy way into the game, but if you want to be Manchester United the first time you play, you're going to be relegated in your first year and have a hard struggle. You can play it whichever way you want." Verdict so far:

Well, they certainly seem to have got all the angles covered to make this a universally-liked footy game, with enough modifications to allow diehard fans to customise it to their heart's content. However, by competing against Sensible Soccer (copies of which, I understand, are regarded with religious fear and awe amongst certain Amazonian tribes) it's up against possibly the stiffest competition of all time. Look how the eagerly awaited Goal! got such a lukewarm reception and was consequently marked down in price. People are very picky and loyal to their fave football games, so for this to make an impact, Krisalis are going to have to make sure all the features of the game are absolutely spot on. It's impressive at the moment, but I tend to think the last few months of tweaking are going to make or break this • CAM WINSTANLEY

DENNIS & ONASHER

Game:
Dennis And Gnasher
Publisher: Alternative
ETA: Christmas

Briefly: Ooh, ford. Looks like things are going to get pretty rough on the Christmas charts front this year. We're going to have Mortal Kombat battling it out with Body Blows Galactic and the budget-released Street Fighter 2, Cannon Fodder will be locked in a 'who's the bloodiest?' contest with T2 The Arcade Game, and now there are going to be TWO cartoon Dennis The Menace games hitting the streets at the same time.

In the red-and-black striped corner, there's Britain's own master of mischief Dennis from the pages of the Beano, backed up by his trusty dog Gnasher in a Knight Lore-style arcade adventure from Alternative, while in the, er, other red-and-black striped corner stands that sickly little cutesy blond kid who stars in the out-now movie version of the popular American TV cartoon series of the same name, in a licence game coming very soon from Ocean. Pnew.

While Ocean's effort looks like being a pretty traditional platformer, Alternative have gone for the infrequently seen isometric 3D look, and promise something a bit different from the norm. They certainly started off on the right foot with the press release accompanying the demo screenshots. Did you know, for example, that 6.94% of Beano readers aged 11-14 (there are 14-year-olds who still read the Beano?) regularly buy CDs and computer games? Nope, neither did we, and quite frankly we're at something of a loss as to what to do with our newly acquired knowledge. Er, anyway, back to the game. Oh no, hang on, we don't know anything about the game. Better do some more Beano-related facts, then. Did you know that the Beano and the Dandy sell over 318,000 copies EVERY WEEK? That's 1,272,000 per lunar month, or 16,536,000 - over 16 MILLION - copies a year! If you were to lay all the copies of the Beano sold in a year end to end, you'd probably have enough spare time to think of a rather better gag than the old 'laying lots of things out end to end' one, that's for sure.

The creators speak: What?
Dennis The Menace has been on the go for over 55 years. Surely the creators must be dead by now? Oh God, I feel a lawsuit coming on...

Verdict so far: You've seen as much of this as we have (except you haven't read the press release, I suppose), so we're going to have to reserve judgement on it for a little while yet. After the non-appearance of Universal Monsters, though, it's definitely nice to see the old isometric arcade adventure making a bit of a comeback. We'll see if Dennis And Gnasher is a fitting tribute.

RAFFGOLD

Game: Snapperazzi Publisher: Alternative and News Group Newspapers Authors: Elvis, Marilyn Monroe and JFK, allegedly ETA: Soon

Briefly: Tabloid journalists? I wish them all (Snip! - Ed) No sooner has a young mother had her baby stolen from its pram at the front of Sainsburys, than these so-called 'newshounds' are dredging up all sort of bilious muck about how she used to be a kissogram. completely missing the point that she's the victim of the heart-breaking kidnapping of her child. This really happened by the way - Check the papers from April (ish) '91.

SUPER

Well anyway, in the garish, flamboyant traditions of the (20p) Sun, these defenders of the truth have decided to produce their very own platform game based on the telephoto-related values' while at the same time gaining masses of advertising revenue by printing 0898 sex line numbers) I reckon that this release of a game by a newspaper deserves special treatment.

The creators speak: Well actually they didn't. It seemed far too much trouble to ask them about their game, so we just made it all up. No, wait a minute (thinking tabloid) actually, what we did was lure them into a room which we'd "Non-stop previously bugged, interviewed them, and kinky bathtime then wrote down what they'd said. Honest. romps" You can even listen to the tape if you want. Well, actually, we lost it. So sorry, wrote down.

here's what we made up, erm,

What Snapperazzi said: I am a funny alien with a camera. I complete levels by taking pictures of people. I have to be careful as

I've got a limited amount of film. What we printed." I am Snapperazzi," raved loony left wing alien yesterday. This evil extraterrestrial screamed "I shall eat your children and ravage your household pets." What Snapperazzi said. There are seven levels, each set in different locations around the world. They are all

What we printed: 'Plucky scouse singer Sonia is my love child,' claims freelance alien photographer.

What Snapperazzi said. The game was designed by Peter Bradley, a Sun layout artist. He tried to include platform and shoot 'em up elements to make the gameplay varied and interesting.

What we printed: Snapperazzi in plot to kill Queen shocker!

What Snapperazzi said. I get bonuses for collecting stars, but can easily be killed by spikes and nasties. Many of the platforms alternate between being safe and deadly, so you have to watch them until they have smily faces on them.

What we printed. My non-stop kinky bathtime romps with the cast of Rainbow. Alien Photographer's kiss and tell exclusive!

What Snapperazzi said: Dotted around the game are adverts. My game has been sponsored by Domino's Pizza and Fizzy Chewits, and, even though I'm an alien, I'm allowed to work for The (20p) Sun. What we printed: 'I once ate an entire light aircraft - And asked for seconds!' boasts diminutive xenomorphic shutter-hound.

Verdict so far: This could well turn into a media phenomena. Think about it, Chewits, Domino's Pizza and The (20p) Sun are going to be mentioning it as often as they can, so if you're a junk food-eating tabloid reader, you could well end up getting brainwashed by the waves of promotion. The game? Well, that's largely irrelevant, and judging by what we've seen so far, it's probably a good thing that the gameplay's getting lost in all the hype.

GAMES

'Tis the season to be jolly, tra-la-la, la-la-la-la. Yup, it may be say January on the cover, but we're writing it on the run up to Christmas, which means PAR-TEEE! The question on everyone's lips is "what would you most like from Santa?"

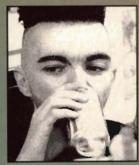

LINDA BARKER

Despite her off-thewall musical preferences, Linda's a bit of a traditionalist. "I'd love to do my flat out in gold and green, with a real tree wafting pine scent and covered with lovely little papier-mache ormaments and dainty little candles so the entire thing's reminiscent of a Victorian Yuletide. If I couldn't have that, a CD compilation of The Pastels would be groovy."

STUART CAMPBELL

"I've got more or less everything I want," admitted Stuart in an annoyingly smug manner. "I live in a gorgeous flat full of big jars of sweeties, I've got a huge TV linked up to my stereo in the living room, and my spare bedroom's packed full of hundreds of different video games. Oh, and there's my beautiful rats as well. Mind you, since I'm the boy who's got everything, I could do with a big box to put it all in."

STEVE FARAGHER

"I'm the new production editor on AMIGA POWER, Britain's best selling Amiga games magazine," proclaimed new boy Steve, proudly. "Becoming one of the mightiest beings ever to produce a computer games magazine is truly an honour, and I can't think of a better present than that." Bless him, he seemed in such a jubilant mood that we thought it was probably best not to tell him that his predecessor had vanished in rather mysterious circumstances.

JUST WHO DO WE THINK WE ARE?

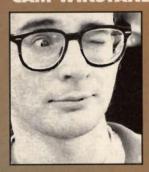

SAL MEDDINGS

"Snow," said Sally, conjouring up a perfect image of a perfect Christmas, with the picturesque streets of Bath covered by a soft blanket of crispest, purest white. Yup, no doubt about it, Sal's definitely an arty type. Such a shame she then ruined this succinct and quite beautiful reply by carrying on. "Also, I'd like to see Jacquie Spanton out of the rehab clinic. After all this time, she must be gagging for a good few stiff drinks."

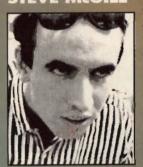

CAM WINSTANLEY

"Seeing as it's too cold to go out on my bike at the moment and I already have a subscription to Soldier Of Fortune magazine. I'd have to go for a really gnarly snowboard, and four feet of snow around Bath for the next three months. Since I'd be

'shredding' up farmers' fields, there wouldn't be any ski lifts, so I'd need some transport to get me up the hills. A Yamaha 750 Snow Cat sounds just about right." Kids of a materialistic culture, eh readers?

STEVE McGILL

"What I'd most like for Christmas is an unheavy heart and a clear mind," lamented Steve, obviously still moody and melancholic after last month's "Who Do We Think We Are?" page. "Failing that, anything in thick black neoprene would be nice, or anything stainless steel to plug into the 'My First Liposuction Kit' that I got last year." At this point, we all made our excuses and ran out of the room in blind panic.

LISA KELLETT

Bristol's resident party girl left us in no doubt that she'd been thinking about the season of goodwill. Since July. "I want a big ball, you know, with proper suits and dresses and servants – the works. It would have to be somewhere really nice, like the ballroom from Disney's Beauty and The Beast, and everyone would have to have had dancing lessons so they'd all know the steps. And a bigger shed would be nice too."

JONATHAN DAVIES

We asked JD, and with a resigned air, he took a list out of his pocket. "If I ask for what I got last year, then I'll know my presents are in the shop, and I won't be disappointed," he sighed. "Okay, comfortable sweaters — three, sensible shoes – two pairs, monogrammed hankies – eight packs, stripy pyjamas – five sets..." And so on.

DAVE GOLDER

Dave thought long and hard before coming up with his ideal prezzie. "Paramount Pictures would be great," he confessed, "although it would probably be a real bitch to wrap. I'd be able to meet all the cast of Star Trek – TNG, and hang out with all the writers at the pre-production meetings. Since I'm the boss, I could guest star as Troy's boyfriend and we could..." (Snip! – Ed)

JONATHAN NASH

Jonathan loves loonies. That's not to say that he's got a crush on a mad person, he's just a huge fan of Looney Tunes cartoons. "My ideal gift would be an entire Warner Brothers shop of my very own, just like the one that's opened in Manchester. The only thing I'd change would be the Marvin the Martian rocket ship. They're made for kids as the moment, so I'd have one made that I can fit in, with destructor rays and control panels."

Oops, they've let slip that it's a game. It's a bit like Hitler popping up in the middle of a seriou wargame and saying "Zwei bonus powerups if you invade mein capital, pigdog."

h no. Why me? I hate beat-'em-ups, and I hate Mortal Kombat in particular. I played it on the SNES, and laughed pityingly at the lack of all the blood and gore, the entire hook that the game hangs itself on. I played it on the Mega Drive, and sneered haughtily at the way I completed the entire thing on my first go on the third difficulty setting by only using one move. And now I've got to play it on the Amiga, with a load of disk accessing on top of everything else. When the rest of the team come back from holiday (which is the reason I've landed the review in the first place), there's going to be a full and frank exchange of views, I can tell you.

Now, if you're a smart kind of reader, you'll have realised something already. You'll have realised that no-one starts off a review of Mortal Kombat (a beat-'em-up) with something like "I hate beat-'em-ups, and I hate Mortal Kombat in particular" unless they're pretty swiftly going to follow it up with "...but what a surprise – it's really great!" We're not completely stupid. And so it is with Mortal Kombat, more or

How do you do all the secret moves for Rayden/Sonya/Blanka/Nik/Bill Obviouslymadeupname?

A If we told you that, they'd hardly be 'secret', would they? Why not try to find them out for yourself? That IS the point of the game, and it's more fun in the long run.

Does it have the little animations in the background like the arcade game does?

No. And if you're truly upset by the fact that the little monks in the background don't clap when somebody wins a fight, then you're sadder than you look.

How many levels of parallax scrolling are there in the foreground?

Oh, for God's sake.

Can you 'be' the bosses?

No. There are only two 'bosses' in Mortal Kombat, the many-armed Goro and the morphing master, Shang Tsung. How could you control a character with four arms?

Do you know any cheats?

A (That's enough annoying questions people ask about beat-'em-ups. – Ed) valid opinions, I had a really good time playing Amiga Mortal Kombat. Seems to me like some serious investigative journalism is called for here.

Why is this fun,

Why is this fun, then? Why, especially, is it fun when all the versions of the exact same game on everything else were so dire? It's not the graphics, that's for sure.

The big selling point of the Midway coin-op on which this is based (well, one of the two big selling points) was that the fighters were all digitised real people, as opposed to Street Fighter 2's computer graphics. On the Amiga, though, while things look good at first glance, a closer examination reveals what's actually a pretty rough and bitty rendition of both characters and background. But hey, easy solution – don't look closely. It works, and that's the important thing.

DEPTH CHARGES

Is depth of gameplay the secret, then? Hardly. Unlike Street Fighter 2, all the characters in Mortal Kombat have basically the same set of moves, with the same strengths, the same speeds and the same ranges. Oh, sure, they've all got their own special fireballs or throws or whatevers, but the obvious character of SF2 isn't really present (and not helped by the fact that so many of the characters look the same as each other – Johnny Cage and Liu Kang could be brothers, as could Sub-Zero and Scorpion). You never find yourself identifying with your on-screen surrogate, or developing a favourite beyond the fighter whose special moves you find the easiest to execute.

Speed, maybe? Well, we're getting closer. Compared to the distinctly sluggish Amiga SF2, Mortal Kombat fairly zips along, but speed alone doesn't make a great beat-'em-up, as Body Blows proved. (To me, anyway – the rest of the AP staff at the time Team 17's light-speed fighting game came out loved it, but it never won my heart or mind. It just felt half-finished, somehow). But a decent speed is certainly a Good Thing, so let's put a small, tentative tick in that box on Mortal Kombafs checklist. Still doesn't really explain why it's fun, though. What else could make it stand out?

The combatents are scrapping in some sort of Hall Of Champions. I'd imagine.

Sound? Surely not. What does sound matter? Who ever notices or pays any attention to game sound? Hello again, smart reader. Yep, Mortal Kombat's sound is one of the most crucial factors in making it so enjoyable. While several beat-'em-ups seem to treat sound as a last-minute afterthought (and I'm worried that it might be the thing that cripples Renegade's forthcoming, fab-looking, Elf Mania), Mortal Kombat comes complete with some incredibly solid and meaty thumps and crunches that really make it feel like you're inflicting some damage on your opponent.

WELL HARD

As well as being deeply satisfying in play, this also helps immensely when it comes to giving characters a feeling of 'weight', which was more than anything else where Body Blows fell down - in that game it felt like you were controlling a couple of cardboard cut-outs rather than real, threedimensional, flesh-and-blood gladiators. In Mortal Kombat, though, even a splash of blood falling on the ground has an aural accompaniment, and it affects the atmosphere more than you could imagine. Music, too, is well-used - for example, in the 'Endurance' matches (where you have to fight two computer characters with just your single energy bar), the entry of the second character is heralded by a tensionincreasing key change in the soundtrack which pumps your adrenalin just that little bit higher. Even the speech sounds alright for a change.

"FINISH IT"

But hang on. Surely all this niceness counts for nothing in a game you can complete on your first go? Well, no, it wouldn't, but Amiga Mortal Kombat brings with it a welcome upshift in difficulty level, to the extent that even on 'Very Easy' level (there are five levels, ranging from Very Easy to Very Hard) it's reasonably challenging, especially if you stick to the default three-continues setting (you can alter this as well, to between one and six continues). The computer characters learn pretty quickly if you just sit and repeat the same move over and over again, and they're ruthless when it comes to using their own special move combinations. Stick the setting up to 'Very Hard', and you've got a game that will keep you struggling for at least a good few days, and you can't say that about very many beat-'em-ups, can you?

What else is there? How about control? Mortal Kombat comes out on top here too, surprisingly. While Street Fighter 2 was ridiculously complicated and over-context-sensitive (thus reducing the game to a waggle-and-hope contest) and Body Blows went too far the other way with an over-simplified system that took all the fun out of discovering and using the best moves, Mortal Kombat has about as useable a system as you could possibly expect from a one-fire button joystick (although there is an option to use a two-button stick as well, which improves matters even further).

The special moves are just tricky enough to make using them a bit of a gamble, without being so hard that you simply can't

NOSTALGIA TRIP

I think the thing I like most about Mortal Kombat is that it reminds me of International Karate+. The speed, the controllability, the solidity of the blows, even the broadly mystical, Oriental theme all evoke memories of Archer Maclean's classic, and this is the first Amiga beat-'em-up that I'd even consider playing when I had a copy of IK+ to hand. I keep popping back to Mortal Kombat when I've got a few minutes to kill (Oh dear - Ed), and that's not something I've ever found myself doing with a beat-'em-up before, or something I ever expected myself to do with Mortal Kombat. Against all the odds, Virgin and Probe have made a winner out of a loser, and I salute them.

GORE? BLIMEY, GUV'NOR

What you're all probably dying (ho ho) to know, more than anything else, is whether Amiga Mortal Kombat's got all the blood'n'guts of the original. And the answer, in a word, is 'Yes it has.' (That's - oh,

Like the Mega Drive version, the game comes with both clean and gory modes, switchable by a password inputted at the start. With gore on, splats of blood fly off at every good hit, and the legendary Death Moves are there in all their glory, with hearts, heads and spinal columns being ripped out and blown up at every turn. And just as a taster, we've included a few of them below. (Note to younger or more sensitive readers: To view the Death Moves screenshots, please first enter the secret password in the space below. If you don't know the password, please don't look at the pictures and move straight on to the next review. Thank you.) Okay that's the kids out of the way, so all the rest of you - enjoy!

Young Johnny Cage decides that his opponent's head is the part of the body he doesn't need any more (You can just see it up at the top of the screen, if you look closely).

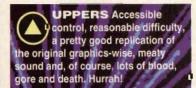

Not strictly speaking a Death Move as such, but let's face it, Kano's not getting up from this one.

Whenever you do a Death Move, the screen darkens as a sinister scene-setting motif. Here, Kano rips out Sub-Zero's heart and holds it triumphantly aloft. Hurrah!

Friendly Rayden offers an unorthodox cure for Kano's splitting headache. Despite bad press he's okay really.

DOWNERS If you actually look closely at them the graphics are pretty shabby. Fairly lengthy disk accessing, but at least it's only on two disks and recognises the second drive. As with all beat-'em-ups, not much fun in one-player mode after the first day or two.

THE BOTTOM LINE

No-one's more surprised about it. than me, but despite Mortal Kombat being rubbish on every other format in the world, it's the Amiga's best beat-'em-up to date. Who'd have thought it?

his is it. Judgement Day. They say the Amiga's dying, you know. They say it's got maybe two years left in it at the most as a viable games platform. Several major software publishers have jumped ship already, and many more are teetering on the edge, watching and waiting. SNES, Mega Drive, Mega CD, 3DO and half-adozen other potentially-lucrative new formats lurk offstage with beckoning fingers, luring talented developers away like sirens on craggy reefs. And let's face it, you know why, don't you? It's the dreaded P-word.

YO HO HO ETC.

Future Publishing (the company which publishes AMIGA POWER) recently held a forum between a whole busload of software house types. One of them estimated that for every game sold on the Amiga these days, 25 pirated copies were in circulation. No-one disagreed with him. Now, while no-one's arguing that if there was no piracy, every one of those 25 pirates would have bought the original, the

What would Prince Charles have to say about this nightmare city of the future? Luckily we don't have to land, just fly around killing aliens. Hooray.

Now you're getting the luxury of a second chance, and frankly I reckon it'll be the last one. Another software publisher has brought out a great game and decided to sell it at a reasonable price. Stardust is brilliant (and if that's what you wanted to glean from this review rather than listen to a lot of shouting from me, further elaboration will be forthcoming in just a moment) and it costs 17 quid. If you want it, BUY it. The consequences of any other action, well, you just don't want to think about them. Really you don't.

So, enough hectoring. What's Stardust like? Well, it's like Asteroids, obviously. I don't know about you lot, but it gladdens my heart to see good oldfashioned, challenging, blasting games back in vogue. For a while it seemed like we were doomed forever to tedious platform games and beat-'emups that you could finish in an afternoon, but the likes of Overkill, Uridium 2 and this have brought back the almost-forgotten thrill of not knowing whether you're going to get to the end of the next level or not, rather than the empty curiosity of wondering how many continues it would take before you either saw the end sequence or completely lost interest and fell asleep trying. Do you remember that feeling?

STAY AWAKE

Remember why you got into video games in the first place? I do, and it wasn't to go through the same old motions in Sonic 56 every other month, or even worse, some half-arsed, half-hearted, half-baked imitation. Let's make no mistake about it this game is hard, and all the better for it. It's not just hard because it overwhelms you with weight of numbers, either - each new level seems to throw some weird kind of different new enemy at you, and every one's got a new and frightening way of trying to kill you. The last thing you expect from an Asteroids game is variety, but Stardust's got it in spades, and not just in the Asteroids sections.

Think for a minute of the pressure that fame and unmitigated success bring (AP's Les Ellis awarded the original Zool a slightly over-enthusiastic 90%). It's a not-too-well-known fact that Zool's hard shelled chitin nearly cracked. He couldn't take the adulation, the praise. He felt alone, as if his life was being scrutinised from behind a screen. As if he was being controlled and manipulated by unseen hands. He threatened to pack it all in. Back to the merry old nth dimension ant-hill for him. Gremlin, seeing that they were in grave danger of losing a potential goldmine in revenue, arranged for a mate for Zool. After all, ants, even Ninja Ants from the Nth dimension, are basically sociable creatures who prefer their own kind to solitary confinement. And so Zooz was born. (Zool's not an ant, Steve. - Ed)

BIRTH CONTROL

Hatched from a genetically tampered-with egg, Gremlin nurtured her in the wiles of ant chemistry and psychology. She is a smooth silky sultry sex siren, an alluring ant angel, a tantalising tease temptress, an electric embryo of enhanced enchantment, a filibuster of fabulous femininity... well, you get the idea. I met Zooz at the Future Entertainment Show. She's lovely. You can see why she has such a calming therapeutic effect on Zool.

I asked her what her secret was, who her influences were and what sort of antics she would be getting up to with Zool in the future. (Steve, they're not ants. – Ed) She gave me a 'knowing' kind of a smile and said the last question "showed too much ant-ipathy toward her kind". (She's NOT AN ANT, Steve. – Ed)

A LONG STORY

As for influences, she cited Doris Day from Calamity Jane "I loved the way she Whip Crack Awayed, whip crack awayyeedd. I just had to have one for myself". Ah, yes, that's right. Zooz either shoots or flays her enemies to a submissive death. The whip makes a lovely crackly kind of a sound. It brings you out in goose bumps of anticipation. So, secrets, Is she or isn't she? You know. 'With' Zool - together, the two of them. She laughed at this one. She said anybody who buys the game will find out straight away whether she is or whether she isn't. Well, here at AP, being the topnotch investigative journalist types that we are, we probed further, and we can let you in on a little secret. She isn't. That's right, Zooz doesn't actually play with Zool on the same level.

PLAY ME

"a good mix The two player option is of control, one of those 'your turn, my turn' kind of two playability player options. "Two together is so much more and variety" fun, but you know, the papers would get hold of it and tongues would wag. The next thing you know, they would be saying that the game corrupted young children and attacked good old fashioned Victorian values. Zool and myself have no intention of getting married."

I interrupted and asked her what sort of impression Gremlin were trying to give by describing her and Zool as 'easy' on the option screen. She laughed for a long time at this question before answering. "That's the difficulty level of the game you silly thing". I must confess to being relieved about that, because I thought it very risque to describe Zool as 'Hard'. When you put it in the context of game difficulty, it takes on a whole new meaning.

NO MEANS NO

Despite the denials, I still sensed that there must be more than just a professional counselling relationship between the two characters. I probed Zooz and asked if she and Zool made music together. She laughed again, her voice containing the cool intrigue of a true rom-ant-ic. (STEVE! WATCH MY LIPS! NOT...AN...ANT! - Ed) "Of course we make music together. It's in the options screen again, silly. You can also opt for sound FX only". I'm not sure she understood me properly.

TELL ME

Sensing that the interview would be over if I tried to uncover any more non-existent facts about their relationship, I asked her about Zool's latest game; Zool 2. "Well, obviously I star in it as well. We've got to battle through six completely different worlds. Each world has numerous stages where we've got to do the same sort of thing as Zool did by himself in the original Zool. You know what I mean. Collect bonuses: sweets.

snakes etc until you've scored over 99 per cent. Keep following the direction the little white arrow on the bottom left hand corner of the screen points to. If you manage to do that without getting killed by the various denizens of the surreal environment, you will eventually reach the end of a stage. Completing enough stages will lead to an End of Level boss. If you manage to kill him, that's the level completed and you go onto the next level.

SIMON SAYS

It all sounds a bit simple from that description, I told Zooz. "Not at all. Each level presents plenty of challenge, secret areas can be detected. These are full of goodies. There are obstacles to be traversed and puzzles to be worked out. There are even some groovy power-ups to be utilised. Each one has a different effect.

My personal favourite is the Yin Yang power up. With this one, I effectively have a shadow of myself. I can collect more bonuses and absorb more damage. Besides that, it highlights my pony tail in a particularly alluring manner".

PRESENCE

Well, despite the excellent PR-ing from Zooz, Zool 2 isn't significantly different from the original Zool. It still contains a good wholewheat-balanced breakfast mix of control, playability and variety. Original Zool fans will love it, as will those new to DOWNERS When there's a lot of movement and animation on screen, things noticeably slow down. And it's 'up' to jump, yeuch.

Not being the greatest fan of platformers, it's always pleasant to find out that there's one out there capable of holding your attention for more than five minutes. While it's not very different, it's somehow quite a lot nicer to play than the original, and that's good.

Okay, that aside, we've got this far and I haven't mentioned that a lot of the Jurassic action takes place indoors in a texture-mapped 3D environment. So let's redress that right now. This is also the part of the game which could be considered the saving grace of the package. It's not that it plays all that differently. It's still a walk-around-collecting-things-and-switching-things-off-and-on kind of a romp. But oh, the atmosphere. It blows Hired Guns away with a 'Puchhhm Ka-Chak a Dagga Dagga Doo'. JACK IT IN

You must, repeat, absolutely must, play this section of the game with a powerful hifi or pair of headphones jacked in.

"The puzzles are linear and never and never and never you're entering another world. One where you inhabit the ether of bogeymen in the cupboard and psychopathic clowns under the bed. That's right, a scary, frightening exhilaratingly exciting world.

And with that said, it's time for a rather ambiguous conclusion to the game. Imagine that you had to fold a whole pile of till receipts and then had to bring the washing in. You've got to admit that they're both pretty tedious jobs, but they have to be done in a certain manner. Now imagine that the till receipts were in fact fifty pound notes and that the washing was a line full of Armani suits. The jobs would be a lot more pleasant but would still ultimately be tedious.

Washing was a life full of Arman suits.

The jobs would be a lot more pleasant but would still ultimately be tedious.

That's what it's like with Jurassic. It's lovely to look at and hold. The graphics, sound and 3D sections are gobsmacking. Probably the best seen this year. The 3D sections stop it from being an utter flop. But ultimately (I know I'm repeating myself, but imagine a towering edible ant machine constantly shaking his head in disbelief and disappointment) Jurassic Park is more than a little tedious. What a dreadful dreadful shame.

STEVE MCGILL

uppers You know already, but the graphics and the sound are the computer game equivalent of heroic Greek sculptures. The 3D sections are genuinely scarey and not to be taken too lightly.

DOWNERS

Overwhelmingly the gameplay. It's paltry and mind-locking. This could have been a smash of overwhelming proportions. Unfortunately, well, fill the rest in yourself...

Unaccountably, loads of people loved the film. Loads may even love the game.

Game: T2 - The Arcade

Publisher: Virgin Authors: Probe Price: £25.99 Release: Out now

eird, isn't it? It's no less than 27 issues (boy, does that make me feel old) since we reviewed Ocean's Terminator 2, a dismal film licence of the old 'lots of really crap little sub-games' school. The writer of that review, a little-known AP newie of the time called Colin Campbell, is now our very own Colin The Publisher. But T2 is no ordinary licence. When Arnie promised 'l'll be back,' he meant it, and the title has resurfaced in a conversion of the popular Midway coin-op, a Lethal Enforcers-style shooting gallery game with scarily realistic graphics digitised from the real people in parts.

It's an arcade game. It's got T2 in it. It's T2 - The Arcade Game! (It's late, okay?)

That's 'graphics which in parts of the game are digitised from real people', not 'graphics which are digitised from real people, who are in parts', by the way.

Although, on the other hand.

Anyway, this is a direct port from the original game, or to be more precise a direct port of the Mega Drive version, which was a straight copy of the coin-op. Like the first T2 you get various sections of the movie to replicate, but this time they're all handled in the same way – shoot everything that moves from your first-person viewpoint. Control is by mouse or joystick and - well, that's the plot used up. Is it good, then?

Um, well... not much. More or less from first impressions to last ones, this conversion repeatedly disappoints. When you start up, you first have to read through the have to read through the scene-setting text, which you can't skip out of.

Then, after shooting the first wave of Terminators, the scrolling starts. Oh dear. What you get here, scrolling-wise, isn't so much parallax as four strips of wallpaper being pulled along the ground at different (and differing) speeds. The effect is tatty to say the least, and it doesn't fill you with great expectations for what's to come, which is probably just as well. Level one (there are six, with various subsections in some of them) continues in an unimpressive vein for a while, until eventually you reach the most intensely depressing end-oflevel boss I've encountered in a long time. He's a huge but unthreateninglooking creation, and while he's neither hard to hit nor difficult to avoid being damaged by, you DO have to shoot him for about five minutes before he gives up and sods off. After a couple of games I was able to wipe this guy out by was slumped on the desk in my spare

Level two? More of the same, pretty much.

Level three is where I got really sad, though. On the Mega Drive version, level three is an utterly fearsome battle, where dozens of Terminators and HK bombers try to destroy John Connor's pick-up truck. It's hellishly difficult, and in the two days I spent playing the Sega game, I didn't get past it once. The Amiga version is slower, moves jerkily and unimpressively, and I sailed through it second try. Onto new ground now – surely things are about to get scary?

Level four introduces some bizarre new adversaries, including a weird golden snake-type thing that I don't remember seeing in the movie, but otherwise innovation is conspicuous by its absence – it's another level-one-and-two-style slaughterfest, with nothing that I can distinguish it particularly, except some especially horrible strips-ofgrey graphics later on. Oh, and the way that the baddies come from different 'depths' of the scenery, but are all the same size, which looks totally ridiculous. Level five (which comes in three sections) improves things a bit, with lots of property damage to inflict, and a bit of interest added in the shape of Sarah and John Connor, who run around in the midst of the hordes of bad guys, dropping explosive charges and power-ups for you to collect, but it's still really the same old stuff. The last section of the level is a bit different, as you try to protect the SWAT van they're escaping Cyberdyne in from T1000 in a helicopter and a tanker, but it's so embarrassingly easy once That's the trouble with you, Stan - you see everything through rose-coloured glasses', said Jemima. Level six is the game's last chance to redeem itself, and it almost manages it. You have to employ some skill and strategy (for the first time in the game) to manouevre the T1000 into jets of liquid nitrogen from the tanker and keep him there. Manage this, and you get another bit where you have to blast him with a shotgun to keep him away from John Connor and send him into the smelting flames. It's quite good fun, but sadly it's too little too late. When you die and use up your last credit, the thought of slogging through the previous five levels with your eyes closed and your finger welded to the much to bear. Now you might argue (if you were from Virgin or Probe, for example) that most of these flaws are inherent design problems from the arcade game. Well, yes. But the shabby graphics, sound and narrow screen display aren't, and the design didn't stop the Mega Drive game from being a fun and slick (if pretty shallow) blaster. This, though, is pretty dull most of the way through, and even twoplayer mode makes very little difference to the excitement factor. To be fair, it's playable enough, and it's alright if you've got half-an-hour to kill and you want to just rattle through something to take out the day's frustrations, but Operation Thunderbolt still does it a lot better, and a lot cheaper too. STUART CAMPBELL

UPPERS Atmospheric feel, and it's certainly an improvement on the first Terminator 2 game.

DOWNERS The graphics are small and shoddy, the sound's largely horrible, gameplay is repetitive and swiftly tedious, and you'll more than likely finish it inside three or four goes. If you can bear the frustration of having that many goes in the first place, that is. Tangibly inferior to the Mega Drive version, and there's very little excuse for that.

THE BOTTOM LINE

The repetitive gameplay is hardly the conversion's fault, but it's pretty sloppy in most other departments, and the reduced difficulty (from the Mega Drive game at least) is a major mistake. I've always had a bit of a soft spot for this incarnation of T2, but I can't recommend it as a fullprice Amiga game.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Exactly the same game, with no improvements even to the yucky

parallax. Your A1200 can do much better than this, without breaking sweat this would make a difference to the actual feel of the simulation. Unfortunately it doesn't. The plane feels and responds in much the same manner as any other flight sim from MicroProse; there's a slight delay before any action is implemented.

STICKY FINGERS

MicroProse consistently support analogue joysticks in flight sims, so I tried the Freeflight Analog from Spectravideo. 'Ha ha,' you may be thinking, 'the Freeflight is configured for the PC!' (I don't think many of our readers will be thinking that, Steve. Let it go. – Ed.) Cunningly, I also used a Suncom Analog joystick adaptor which lets you use most PC joysticks with the Amiga. The pair work well, and there is even a noticeable difference using different sensitivity settings (configured from a panel within the sim software).

MicroProse always understate the difference that using analogue can make and the difference this makes when banking and turning could be a positive life-saver. But anyway.

So what's the big difference between F19 and F117A? For a start, F117A has many more missions set in a wider range of world theatres: Persian Gulf, Europe's North Cape, Libya, Central Europe, Middle East, Desert Storm, Vietnam 1994, Cuba 1995 and Korea 1997.

The futuristic ones are positively exhilarating. Just think – Korea 1997! Already, the Chinese have told President Clinton where to go when he complained about them testing nuclear bombs. The North Koreans are getting up to mischief with their present nuclear program. Considering that the North Koreans and the Chinese are pals, it augurs well for a pretty stimulating conflict scenario. Education through destruction, diplomacy and paranoia, I say.

The most strategic targets are discussed in a clinical "level of importance" type manner. Geography lessons would be much more fun if they were taught this way at school. "P'yongyang? Yes, sir. I blew up several of its prime SAM radar sites in my F117A stealth fighter, you know. It's the capital of Korea. They'll think twice before they carry on with their Communist expansion programme".

follow orders to the letter and have limited freedom of engagement.

Conventional War is probably the most fun. You have your prime objectives, but anything else in the way can be considered fair game. And that brings us nicely to the plane itself.

DOUBLE STEALTH

MicroProse have implemented two types of F117 – the original Lockheed and the MicroProse version. The Lockheed has a smaller payload, you don't have a front-mounted cannon, can't carry air- to-air missiles and you can only fly at night.

This option is for the real buffs. You can't afford to make a mistake. One target, one bomb and you can't even arm yourself with the Texas Instruments Paveway III; responsible for only five per cent of the total ordnance expended during Desert

Around the local aerodrome, you have to look out for 'the boys' 'cruising the strip'.

Storm but accounting for 50 per cent of targets destroyed.

Most of us will settle for MicroProse's compromise stealth fighter. It has a slightly larger radar signature area but more than makes up for this with its larger payload and ability to engage in air-to-air combat and fly during daylight hours. The disconcerting part of air-to-air combat in this sim is the fact that you don't have a radar yourself with which to track bogeys (radar gives you away immediately). Reliance on visual sighting and tracking cameras is essential if you wish to survive.

Navigation, planning and a good memory are crucial if you want to live. The briefing room displays the plans of enemy radar footprints. In an operation known as 'threading the needle', you have to negotiate these sites without giving yourself away. Manage this, and the rest isn't as easy as pie.

This is, as usual, a slick, competent, technically excellent sim from MicroProse. It's just that apart from some of the extras such as the futuristic missions and the indepth discussion of radars and things, we've seen it all before. Flight sim fans will still love it, though, as will those new to the Amiga-owning fraternity.

STEVE MCGILL

DOWNERS Sadly for sim fans, there aren't enough discernible differences between this sim and any other MicroProse sim. Especially F-19.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Despite the sameyness, you still feel a surge of back-slapping pride when you touch down after having completed a mission successfully. Ideal My First Flight Sim material, but nothing new for experienced pilots.

Game: Beneath A Steel

Publisher: Virgin Authors: Revolution

Release: Late January

he first thing you notice when you look at Beneath A Steel Sky is that it's a bit of a multi-media experience. If you load up the game straight away, you're not going to have a clue what's going on, and if you read the little comic that comes with it, then it leaves a lot to be desired as far as character and plot progression are concerned. However, if you go the whole hog and read the comic before loading up the game, then you're getting somewhere.

The comic's drawn by Dave Gibbons (Of Watchmen fame) and charts Foster's last day in the Gap, a sort of postapocalyptic wasteland. He's wrenched from his adopted family and the only life he's ever known by a group of armed men from the city. They immediately show that they're bad boys by shooting his pet robot Joey, hustling Foster into a chopper, and then killing everyone else with a huge bomb. Before you can say 'sightseeing tour' the helicopter's dropping out of the sky into the city. His family, his home AND his pet robot all in one day, and all this before breakfast too. Some people were just born unlucky.

Switching from comic to game, you get to watch a little cinematic bit which takes off where the comic ends, namely with you nose-diving rather dramatically into the concrete. Fortunately the crash doesn't kill him, and he manages to stumble off down a gangway with a couple of angry policemen taking the odd pot shot at him. He takes refuge in a factory complex, and this is where the game

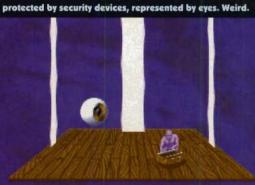

WATCH, MAN

Up to this point you've been treated to some excellent atmospheric visuals, and the good news is that this isn't one of those games where they've used up all their best stuff at the beginning in a flashy intro sequence, oh no. Revolution

One of the game sections takes place inside a computer, with Foster immersed in cyberspace. Files are represented by objects, and certain rooms are

The problem for you (and Foster) is that you don't know which

The solution to this section's a bit of a tricky one, but don't you think that a yappy dog drowning would be a good diversion?

Software made paintings of all of Dave Gibbons' drawings and then scanned them in, resulting in a level of detail and texture that puts the game more into the realms of comic book land than computer games. There's a bit of an inconsistency between these gorgeous background graphics and the cartoony characters, but once you get into the game and start to appreciate the inherent humour of the game, it makes sense that they're drawn this way. There's also bucket loads of animation for each character, none of this 'stuck in a short loop' nonsense here. Guards pause for ciggy breaks, dogs wander around and scratch, and receptionists answer the phone from time to time. All of these goings-on are underscored by a rather low-key and sparse soundtrack, consisting of background rumblings and the occasional spot sound effect. I don't really see this as a problem, since the last thing you want with a game that takes hours to play is a musical score that repeats every five minutes.

With these point-and-click games, I usually lose interest as soon as I start to play them, for several reasons. The main one is the plot, or rather lack of it, which I'll deal with later. The second one is the lack of pace in these games, as you can hang around for any length of time and nothing happens. Steel Sky peps things up by having real-time solutions, where you've got to get into rooms and perform certain actions before other characters return, an idea that I like lots. Thirdly, if you enter a room and find you can highlight three objects, then you usually know that they're all vital. Steel Sky gets round this by putting in red herrings, but also manages to stop them cluttering up your game by making them unmovable. For instance, "An ending in the first section, you can wander around that's actually looking at monitors. pushing buttons and quite a pressing levers to your hearts content, but it's surprise" on the solution by chance, as it takes thought and interaction, which is my final point. In many games, no matter how many unlikely that you'll stumble

YEUUCH! I made a HOLE

times you perform an action or ask a question, the result is always the same. This is quite obviously stupid, I mean, if some stranger came up to you and asked "Where is the forest?" twelve times, would you say "It's over the hill there" an equal number of times? Course you wouldn't, you'd deck him after the first five.

KILLING JOKE

Steel Sky takes a more credible approach, so when you first talk to a character, they're usually a bit abrupt, and then the more you talk to them, the more response you get from them. They might turn out not to like you, but it does underline the importance of communicating with the other characters rather than meeting them, getting a fact from them and then wandering off again. There's a few other novel gameplay features, most notably Joey the robot, who survives as a printed circuit board. Throughout the game you can slot him into various robot shells, and he'll be able to help your progress through the game, as well as come up with some genuinely funny one-liners. He can get into rooms that you can't, and if you find a window, you can even look through into another location, something I've never

This is all very well, but the most important feature of an adventure game is the adventure itself, and this one is just great. Now although I've only played a fraction of the game, I can make this statement because I've been to Revolution and seen all of it.

Have you been wondering why Foster was taken to the city? Or why the helicopter should suddenly spin out and crash? Well, this is what the game's about, it's a detective story in the tradition of Columbo, Petrocelli and all the other TV greats. There isn't much background to the game, because that's what you have to uncover. If you find out why Foster was brought to the city and who keeps intervening on his behalf, then you'll have finished the game.

BLACK FREIGHTER

The thing is that there are about a hundred locations to work your way through, and since most point and click adventures have about 40, this has got to be the biggest one around. It comes on a whopping 15 (count 'em!) disks, but due to logical planning, you only have to swap disks once when you move from one section of six or seven locations to another. A bigger problem of playing from disk is the 20 second access time, which slows things up and interrupts the game, but as this is such a big game, Revolution are obviously aiming this at hard disk owners, who experience a three second access time.

GIVE ME LIBERTY

But back to the plot. This isn't some halfbaked 'you must find the golden amulet' scenario, it's a story of discovery, where the people you meet are part of the story rather than helpful pointers to the end. Some people are out to get you (and you can get killed), some help you and others get rubbed out along the way. You progress through the real world and cyberspace to an ending that's actually quite a surprise. If you're going to buy this game (and I'd recommend you do) then treat it like a movie - Stay away from game solutions as you'd avoid the plot of a film. It might take you longer to do it yourself. but finishing it will be all the sweeter.

CAM WINSTANLEY

UPPERS It's one of the biggest adventures to date, and the graphics and animation are superb. Real time sections add pace, the interface is simple and the interaction between characters is believable, but the main high point is the storyline.

DOWNERS 20 seconds for each disk access can seem a long time, especially if all you want to do is pop back to a location to check on a detail and then zip back again.

THE BOTTOM LINE

With as much care and attention taken on the storyline as the graphics, Steel Sky is an example of what an adventure game should be like - funny, enthralling and convincing. There aren't any jumps in logic in the story line, or stupid coincidences that propel you through the story. Read as little about this game as possible and you'll genuinely be surprised as the story unfolds. Hard disk owners can add another five percent for the speedy location jumps.

THE BOTTOM LINE

The AGA modes presents you with 256 colours, but the pictures are so detailed anyway that this doesn't make much difference. You also get some extra sound effects and a bit more music, but it's not so much an enhanced version as a tweaked one. It's still a hard disk that makes the most difference.

being an adventurous type of juvenile alien who blasts across great tracts of uncharted space to land upon the planet Earth. Upon returning to the planet Linoleum he's shocked to find that everyone justs laughs at him and goes "Oh, Chinny reckon" when he tells them about this previously undiscovered planet. No one likes being called a liar, least of all little Cosmic, who decides to get photographic proof of his exploits.

Oddly enough (especially for the Codies, who are famous for producing them) this isn't a platform game at all, it's an adventure game. All the elements are there, the graphic window, the inventory, and even the list of commands such as 'pick up', 'look at', 'use' and so on. I played it for a good few hours, but still wasn't convinced that I should be reviewing it. This conflict was eating me up, so I phoned Professor Frank Matthews-Finn, the unconventional yet brilliant scolar who I admired greatly during my days at Bournemouth University. He listened as I poured out my problems, and then asked me to visit him. Within hours I was at his doorstep, and a few minutes later he put me into a state of deep hypnosis. Me: I see Cosmic. He's a funny little man in an odd street. It's like a cartoon, it's like the Jetsons from TV.

Prof Finn: Indeed, the graphics are

In all, there are 33 arcade sections, how do you feel about that?

Me: WellIII, I think that I might get a bit bored playing them, especially if they're all the same as that one, but they are the only bit where you get killed. Also, there's the game of Cosmic Pie Splat, which is sort of a tank game. I like it and you don't even have to play the adventure to play it. Prof Finn: Indeed. Supporters of these arcade sections might say that they add an exciting element to the game, and link your progress through the adventure with your reflex abilities. To the more cynical observer - harumph - myself included, they appear to be there purely to increase the length of time it'll take to finish the game. How are you finding the adventure? Me: It's good. There's no disk swapping and new locations appear quickly. Some of the clues and puzzles are easy-peasy, but I'm still getting stuck on others. this game lots. Prof Finn: Hmm, fascinating. Is there anything that you don't like?

Me: I hate that horrid bloopy music, can you turn it down please?

Prof Finn: With pleasure, I was wondering about the music, because you know, in my day it was all very different, we used to ...

TAPE OFF

I'll end the transcription of the tape here, but you may be interested to learn that under deeper hypnosois, Professor Matthews-Finn discovered that I was able to remember details and events of past lives with alarming clarity. These include a wandering tinker in the mid 1850's called Joseph Fretwell, a Polish vodka distiller called Olaf from the time of the Peter the Great, and a serving wench named Tess

Finn and I will be touring the country in the early spring with our fascinating show, and we are now taking bookings for birthdays, bar mitzvahs, wedding receptions and hotel functions. I thank you.

• CAM WINSTANLEY

UPPERS Young Cam: I really like all the bright colours and the funny little people and I love the way you can talk to everyone and pick things up and give them to all of the other people. Solving the puzzles is vewy fun indeed.

Old Cam: Quite. It's also only on two disks with fast accessing, so the whole thing whips along at a tremendous pace.

DOWNERS Young Cam: The music goes on and on and on and on and.

Old Cam: Most of the puzzles are painfully obvious, making me think it'll only be suited for anyone under about 12. Apart from the music being crap, the arcade bits are a bit naff and easy as well. My three year old cousin can play Sonic, so these bits are stupidly simple.

THE BOTTOM LINE

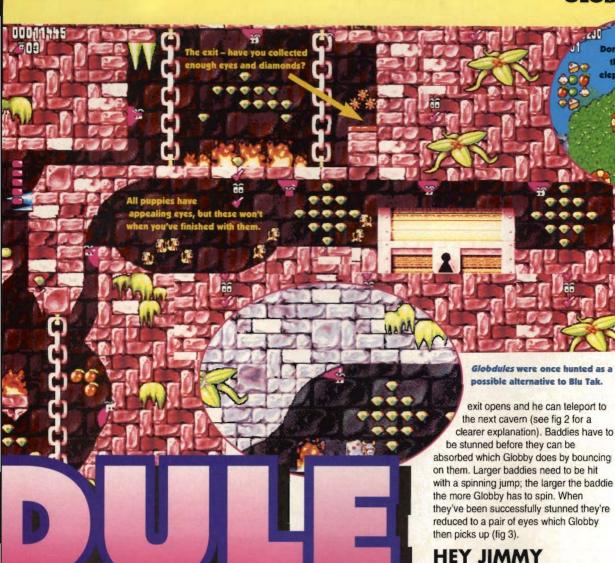

Being simple, Cosmic Spacehead is an adventure game you can play as soon as you can read, a sort of Monkey Island for the under tens. Cutting out the disk swapping makes it ideal for children or adults with particularly short attention spans. Although aiming this at a certain age range works too well perhaps.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Zips along at an equally humungous pace, so no real change there. Ho hum.

No, he wants to become a toy, and the only way that can happen is by travelling through some catacombs, absorbing everything in his path.

In fact, the plot is about as relevant to the fabric of the universe as knitted doll toilet roll covers (the irony of plots being the last thing to be thought about in the creation of a computer game is covered in 'Stories, Schmories, Where's The Gimmick' by Professor I Dunnow). Globdule is a cutesy platformer, and conforms to all the ground rules of cutesy platformers. Indeed, the term 'cutesy

But in the case of Globdule, it can be seen that this prejudice is very unfair, in much the same way as amorphous blobs being seen as evil rampaging monsters is unfair. It's all done with such style it overcomes the facts that its roots show

It's the little incidental details, such as the scuba gear that appears when Globby reaches an underwater section and the slidey surfaces which appear when you least expect (or want) them, which help lift Globdule out of the average and into the really quite good, as it happens.

There's more than one route through the catacombs, which means there are loads of levels to bounce through. Plus each level has a number of caverns, making Globdule a pretty meaty game, one with a decent life in it (unlike the teenagers in the amorphous blob films of the 50s).

Er, anyway, in conclusion and getting back to the case in point. Globdule is one of the new breed of amorphous blobs, who, along with Putty, is proving that having no limbs doesn't make you a bad entity per se. It's a shame that the game he appears in is so derivative, as it could lead to accusations of him being a poor imitation of Putty and a dozen or so other cutesy platform games, and to be honest, it isn't as good a game. But it's still good. Darned good. Globdule deserves to be recognised for his great contribution to this genre.

UPPERS Huge game with loads of levels. Excellently cartoony graphics. Instantly playable and instantly gets its hooks in. In terms of presentation and programming it's polished stuff.

DOWNERS Frankly it's hardly got two original ideas to rub together. At heart it's a cutesy platformer by numbers.

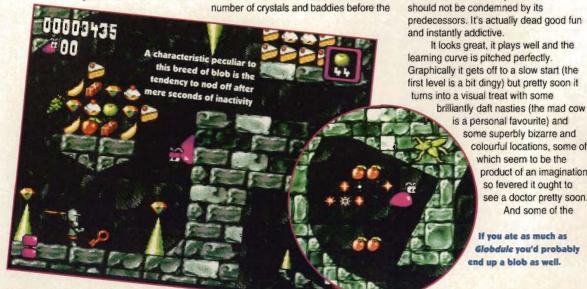

THE BOTTOM LINE

Personally I loved it, but then I love these sort of games so I'm biased. I'll temper my enthusiasm by admitting that it's derivative and hardly breaking any new ground. But frankly I don't care.

THE BOTTOM LINE

I think it's quite a bit faster... but that could just be me fooling myself so that I would have something to write in this box.

It looks like Populous, Mega-lo-Mania and other god games.

Game: Genesia
Publisher: Mindscape
Authors: Microïds
Price: £29.99
Release: Out now

've decided that I've become far too important and busy to waste my time playing complicated strategy games. So for the purposes of this review, I'm going to employ a stunt reviewer.

(Enter a six-foot, slimly built, brownhaired figure with a persecuted air about him. From a distance, if he was moving fast enough, he could almost be mistaken for Jonathan Davies. He begins to speak.)

"Hello. Er. God sims, eh? And that's just what Genesia is. How do you pronounce that, by the way? Gen-ess-ia? Or Gen-ee-sia? I phoned up Mindscape to ask them about 'Gen-ess-ia... Gen-ee-sia... or however you say it', but they didn't take the bait. (I think they thought I was stupid, actually.) Maybe it's obvious if you're a fan of a particular heavy metal group, or read a certain sort of fantasy book, but for some reason I couldn't get my tongue around it. Luckily you don't need to say it to play it, of course.

GOOD GOD!

It's a god sim, you see (did I mention that?), and god sims just happen to be my favourite sort of game. I used play a lot of board game conversions – Mah Jong ones being a particular favourite, although I still haven't worked out exactly how the rules work, and all the Chinese writing gets me confused – but... oh yes, god sims.

Genesia will hold few surprises for you if you've played lots of this sort of thing before. It's got the usual Populous-style 3D landscape, rendered in delightfully pretty graphics which change with the seasons, of which you own a square-shaped chunk. You start off with just a couple of people living in little houses, and from there you've got to build up a mighty empire. Impeding you are two other players, who begin in similar circumstances, and can be controlled either by the computer or by a couple of strategy-loving mates. In the latter case you both need to type in your names so the user interface may converse informally with you, although I still haven't worked out how to get it coming out as anything other than ''.

"Your go, ," it says.
So what can you actually do in this 'go' of yours? Well, you can't alter the terrain in any way – it's fixed into place. What you can do is appoint tasks to the people living in your village. You can make some of them architects, who build things; some can be farmers, who make food; some can be woodcutters, who cut recruiting an army and equipping them with the fruits of your inventors' labours, and also protecting your village (or city, as it will probably be by now) by building walls around it.

Your task now is to either a) kill everyone else, and take over the whole map, or b) seek out – and this is where Genesia's adventurey element comes in – seven mystical jewels (or similar) that are scattered about the... Argh!"

(The helicopter which, as he was speaking, he'd grabbed hold of and been carried several hundred feet into the air by, becomes entangled with a flock of migrating geese, loses a rotor blade, pirouettes into the sea and explodes. He dies.)

Damn. Oh well, at least I get to keep all the money this way.

But it is a different piece of land – honest. It just looks sort of the same, a bit.

This is a barracks.

Um. Okay, towards the left there is a 'drill', which is what you need to mine stone and metal. Apart from that, this picture does indeed look just like all the others.

I did have a bit of a go on Genesia myself, actually, and it seemed pretty much okay. The graphics are, indeed, quite lovely, as are the sound effects, which (like the graphics) change depending on the time of year and what you're looking at, and it makes for a reasonably absorbing hour-eater.

I could could only find three tangible flaws in it, in fact, and even these aren't that major: 1) the disk accessing that occurs when you click on just about anything, which I really can't see the need for; 2) the way the players all have to take it in turns. even when you're only playing against the computer, which lends the proceedings a much more tedious wargamey air than is strictly necessary; and 3) the way it takes an absolute eternity to get anywhere — there are only five levels, but conquering just one of them will be the work of several evenings, making it all the more frustrating if things start to go wrong and you begin wondering if you're going to win or whether you'd be better off starting again.

Oh yeah, and there's just one other thing: there's nothing actually that new here. It's yet another variation on the old Populous/Powermonger/Mega-lo-Mania/whatever theme with the variables tweaked slightly. The jewel-collecting stuff does add an extra dimension, it's true. But even so, if you've already got two out of the three games mentioned above, you'd have to be a very special sort of a person to want this one as well.

Basically pretty great all round, then, but nothing new, and it'll only truly appeal to professionally-trained strategy buffs who already have all the necessary safety equipment.

JONATHAN DAVIES

There are many different kinds of tree in Genesia.

This is perhap: my favourite.

Take a break severy new and then, or you might end up kooking like this.

These icons are quite similar to the other ones, only they do different things.

You need to build a warehouse to keep stuff in. Here's what it should look like.

The weather is used to uncompromising effect in Genesia. Just look at this.

The village awoke to discover that it had been raining sausages again.

uppers Great to look at, with loads of detail packed into every pixel. Not that this is what's at stake here — what we need is strategy by the 200-page-manual-full, and there's plenty of that as well. The jewel-hunting subtext takes away the aimlessness that can often infect these things.

paced than this sort of game usually is, and the disk accessing doesn't help. You'll need to be incredibly patient with it – there's no use expecting instant rewards. The scrolling's rather poor.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Looks nice, and everything works properly. Set aside a few days and you might even see a hot air balloon or something. But it lacks that... er... the... er... (help!) er... okay, the 'Scherpoom!' necessary to make it stand out from the Mount Olympia-load of perfectly good god sims you could buy instead.

THE BOTTOM LINE

There are no special enhancements for the A1200, so you get the same as everyone else. Still, it's quite pretty anyway. Really. Ish.

magnetic storms and killing the suspects they are interrogating. In true megacorporation baddie style Securi-Co decide to cover up these malfunctions by framing innocent people. It is up to you and your trusty band of droids to liberate the wrongly accused and present evidence of Securi-Co's misdemeanours to the Emperor himself.

total freedom of movement - it is impressive though.

I STAND ACCUSED

The playfield of the game is a massive city on three levels. You control four heavily armoured and well equipped 'droids who you move around the city by means of an ultra hi-tec remote automation device otherwise known as your CD32 joypad. In familiar adventure style, you see through the droids' eyes as they meet the huge variety of characters who inhabit the city and explore the hundreds of buildings.

When you first play "you'll be the game you're staggered by staggered by the size, it's literally the size, it's mind boggling. You spend the mind first few minutes wandering boggling" around the city in a kind of daze, trying to make sense of the mass of information that's being presented to you. The graphics appear initially disappointing, there's a kind of freakish 60s, psychedelic look to the game, but as you become more involved you begin to appreciate that the graphics do the job well enough and, indeed, add an oppressive atmosphere to the game.

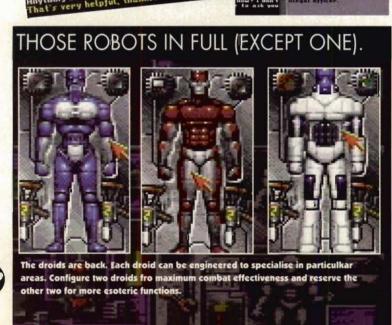

In your task to liberate the wrongly accused prisoner you must interrogate the that pushed the CD32 to its limits

many characters you meet, from the kind lady in the City Records Office to the low-life pimps and muggers who inhabit the lowest level of the city. All of the characters will speak to you and you choose from a multiple choice of questions. Their answers depend on their character and mood, so that you may ask somebody a question on different occasions and get different occasions and get different answers. The characters in the game will also remember your previous behaviour so you must be sure not to accidentally shoot at any of your prime witnesses (it can happen!) and also be careful to be polite and say goodbye, just like your mother taught you.

Obviously all of these subversive activities will alert the forces of law, order and profit to your activities and they will start to close a net around you. Individual encounters with policemen in the street can usually be settled by bribery but occasionally gun battles will break out (shame, eh?). The police are pretty tough and resourceful and outnumber you heavily, and they also have helicopters that patrol the city and are likely to open up on you indiscriminately. There are repair shops to be visited and badly damaged droids can be dissasembled and carried around in their friend's backpacks but the shoot-'em-up element of the game is very dangerous. It isn't often necessary to use a gun and it tends to bring a backlash when you do.

CARRY ON

After you've played the game for a while you start to notice the depth of options. You never seem to run out of new things to do and new things to try. You can configure the screen to almost any combination of control windows. You can configure your 'droids down to the level of swapping around the transistors in their limbs, changing their skill and power levels. You have tiny little cameras called bugs that you can attach to any object in the game and, having done so, then view the city from that perspective, so police helicopters can be carrying your cameras and giving you an overhead view of the action. You pick up scraps of paper that are adverts for cabs, you can find the cabs and direct them to take you to any address you know in the city. And so on and so on... This game is massive, and more to the point doesn't make you feel like you're being inevitably forced down a one way street to the solution.

It's reassuring to know that even when they can walk computers still tend to be over literal.

So what are the bad points?
Well the graphics aren't quite up to scratch, the range of colours used in particular being pretty awful. But what really lets Liberation down is the awful control system. Not Liberation's you understand, but the CD32's.

The joypad is just not designed for this kind of game. Fortunately Liberation can be played with a mouse, you just plug it into the spare socket on the side of your CD32 and away you go. It makes your life so much easier, in fact I would say it was essential for full enjoyment of this quite staggering and original game.

• STEVE FARAGHER

"the graphics

are not quite

up to scratch"

DOWNERS The controls are very tricky without a mouse and the graphics are a little too garish.

THE BOTTOM LINE

The first true CD game has arrived. Buy it.

THE BOTTOM LINE

It's hard to see how but there is some talk of an A1200 floppy version with no speech and reduced graphics. Not for a while though.

FOOTBALL TACTICIAN 2

NEW enhanced version sets even higher standards and breaks more records.

Firmly established as the definitive interactive football strategy game, FOOTBALL TACTICIAN 2 is now available in three superb versions:

FT2 ENGLAND the original and the first ever management game where tactics and real-time match intervention are the main requirements for a successful campaign. FT2 SCOTLAND the first ever simulation covering the soccer scene north of the border featuring the Premier and First divisions. FT2 ITALIA with the fabulous serie A and serie B for the thrills, the passion

The glory of the world's most exciting league!

Three great games with the latest 93/94 stats. One soon realises that FT2 is no ordinary soccer manager. THIS is the REAL THING. You're in charge. Events on the field are the direct result of your inputs. Even when trailing badly, a match can still be retrieved and won if you make shrewd tactical interventions. There are risks involved, uncertainty and even luck. But in the end it's all down to you! Can you rise to the challenge? in the end, it's all down to you! Can you rise to the challenge?
Try FOOTBALL TACTICIAN 2 for a totally different football experience!

What makes Football Tactician 2 so special?

- · Biggest ever multi-user system: up to 46 users (yes forty-six! who said four was the limit?) Now with new rating system reflecting managers' ability and achievements.
- First ever fully interactive management game: intervene at any time during a match to change tactics, make substitutions, adjust formation, mark players or inspect possession.
- Most accurate player definition: 30 parameters including real ages, aptitudes, skills, caps, nationalities, playing positions, fitness, morale, market valuation and performance.
- Largest results database: 21290 match results and league positions going back 20 seasons all instantly retrievable. All of which may be printed out and examined.

 Professional recording: 36 matches always recorded for full-scale replay at ANY time!
- · First ever referee involvement: true to life behaviour. Beware of adopting 'rough tactics' or 'time-wasting' when Jim Parker is in charge! The message is clear: know your refs.
- Fastest ever setting-up time: initial start-up in less than two seconds, thanks to 900K of
- super-fast machine code. No waiting, No delays. Smoothness of action is FT2's hallmark.

 Most accurate editor: built-in intuitive editor capable of entering new players and fine tuning all parameters. It goes without saying that this is essential for the serious user.
- 16 different tactics from rough play to offside-trap, all adjustable throughout the match. You manage your side before AND during the match. No guessing. No falling asleep.
- Three levels of match reporting, from highlights only to ball-by-ball commentary.

What are the new features?

- FA Premiership and Division One permanently in memory with full interaction, promotions, transfers, European pool, play-offs, local and European Cups.
 Man of the Match. PFA Player of the Year. PFA Young Player of the Year. Footballer of the Year. Manager of the Year. Transfer deadline. Pitch invasions. Fights between players.
- Easy selection of penalty takers, free-kick takers, long throwers, wingers, captains, ball winners, playmakers, overlapping full backs, reserves, substitutes, player managers...

 Unique database-type search facility to locate any player in the league.

 Full-scale printing facilities. With 46 simultaneous users, highly suitable for Play-by-Mail.

- · Intelligent behaviour of computer sides capable of changing tactics to respond to situation on the field or making substitutions based on fitness and fatigue. Plus mid-week transfer and fitness news from all 46 clubs.
- Thirteen different charts: top scorers, super-subs, penalty kings, hat-trick heroes, most bookings, most consistent player, most caps, etc, etc..
- Friendlies, precise transfer markets, club history, financial position and much much more!

Why is FT2 not in the shops?

The very essence of a football strategy game is its accuracy. With transfers happening every day, rules being changed and players being injured, shop games are out-of-date the moment they come out. Some publishers issue yearly revisions. That may be fine but not fine enough for us. The FTZ you buy is 100% up-to-date. We revise the program and data weekly. There are no compromises. Who wants to play a game that says that Fiorentina are in serie A or Newcastle in Division One? Who wants to play a game that Roy Keane at Forest or Ruud Gullit still at Milan? No known football game is more up-to-date than FTZ and that's a fact

Panasonic Quiet Colour Printing

We researched the colour printer market at great depth to find a colour printer good enough to cope with Amiga's powerful output, yet at an affordable price.

We found the perfect printer in the and KX - P2123 quiet printer.

We then considered that if you were going to buy a Panasonic printer you would probably need a quality word processing package to use with it. We found that too, with 'Wordworth' yet at a retail price of £129.99 we thought that might be a little too expensive on top of your printer purchase! So together with Panasonic we decided to give a copy of 'Wordworth' free with every Panasonic printer. Of course your might be the fortunate owner of a Desktop Dynamite Pack or maybe the idea of word processing isn't for you. Once again Indi have the solution with the alternative of two great games. How's that for added value?

been a pretty lively year for the old Amiga. Two glamorous new 32-bit machines, an ever-expanding user base and some of the most impressive software ever seen on home computers all contributed to a pretty happening twelve months. But what did you, the people who made it happen, think of it? We decided to find out. First we thought of phoning you all up and asking you, but we reckoned that'd take too long and be too expensive. Then someone suggested having a big party and inviting everyone along to chat about it on an informal kind of basis and just picking out the best bits. But Stuart said we weren't doing it in his house, and everyone else said their flatmates would complain too much, so that was that idea knackered as well. Then, suddenly, inspiration struck. 'Hang on,' we thought, 'it's the Second Future Entertainment Show next week!' (for it was). 'There'll be thousands of Amiga owners at that why don't we ask them there?' So we did. Here's what they said.

The last word goes to lan Butler, who, when asked if he had any funny Amiga-related anecdotes (we asked everybody that, but nobody had any so we took the question out), replied "My girlfriend said it was her or the Amiga. I was sorry to see her go." Oh dear.

Robert Maxwell convinced everyone he was a financial genius, but he turned out to be a crook. Jason Donovan, however, really is a good singer. Hmm. If you want to look like a game expert, use the advice of Rich Pelley and Steve McGill.

THEATRE OF DEATH

(Psygnosis)

Did you buy issue 31 of AMIGA POWER? Did you read our review of Theatre of Death? Did you think "Wow – a weird, but let's be fair to it, highly innovative shoot-emup strategy military war game conundrum – just the sort of thing I've been looking for," and rush out and hand over your cash for it? And, er, do you need the passwords?

If you could answer yes to all of these questions, it really would make my job a lot easier...

So, beginning about halfway through the Grassland Scenario and ending at the beginning of the final Lunar mission the passwords are as follows:

30D77E8033700 342B2DD976270 772B8AF16D6C1 772BFF5749D41 7729141E63AB1 772AA2582FB51 7729FFAD31161 772394B21C8F1 77345DE216DF1 77ACB605287E1 7754B4EE34D31 7C5B44CF63301 76C01ED533AE1 6031769A65812 60317BA37F432 603009EC0DA82 6036F67417602 603B261E13B62 60258A7348712 603BA0D66F4E2 6091983A071A2 61228DF823A42 627AF1B13DCF2 650435B824C72 6F4115790F872 78D436B416E82 56401FA71DDE3 5640619A3CE73

James Owen of Crawley, whom we have to thank for those, also gives the following advice.

"Always grab as many helicopters as possible on a mission. Use them one at a time to fly at any kind of enemy and by using machine guns, remain still, take aim and let rip with a burst of fire just strong enough to destroy the baddy on the receiving end. You will then be able to fly straight into the next one and repeat the procedure.

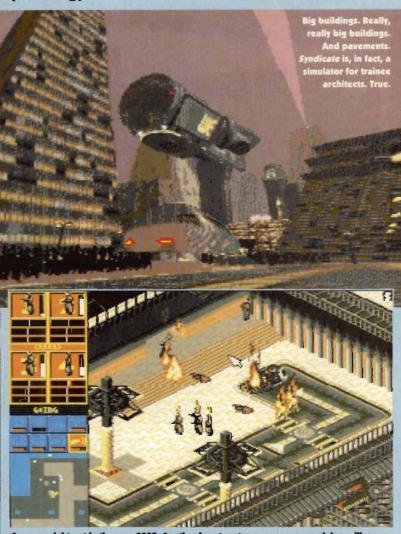

"Try to hold a helicopter back for near the end of the mission and use it to fly around the map picking off scattered enemy stragglers."

Thanks, James.

SYNDICATE

(Bullfrog)

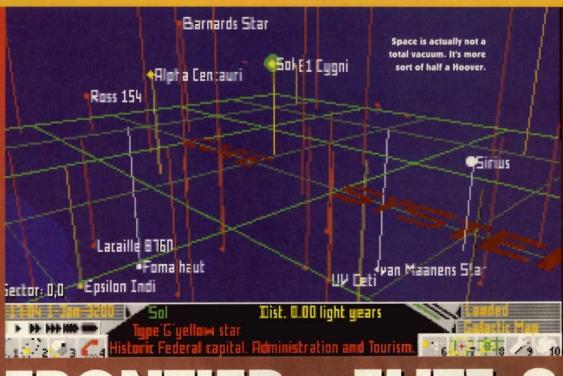

Average night out in the year 2008. Another burnt motor means your no-claims will go up again, and the people with big numbers on their heads are out in force - trendles!

You may well have thought, tip-wise, we'd pretty well covered Syndicate in issue 31. While reading issue 31 you may well have thought, as far as tips go, that we'd pretty well covered Syndicate in issue 30, and were another bunch of tips really necessary? They were, of course, necessary to the core – Syndicate is a game of such complexity that we could carry on filling a good page every issue with brand-new tips right up to next Christmas with little trouble if we so desired. Er, or we could just tell you the cheat.

At the menu screen, go to Configure Company and change the company name to 'ROB A BANK'. This will give you $100 billion to be going on with.

Also, try changing the company name to 'WATCH THE CLOCK' and watch the days go whizzing by as you rake in your taxes. Changing your name to NUK THEM will bring your dead Borgs back to life, or COOPER TEAM for the ultimate team. And don't forget, Kai Gay of Bridlington and Michael Acton of Barnsley assure us, that you can mix and match the cheats too.

FRONTIER – ELITE 2

Mrs D Grant of Lanarkshire is Dangerous. What's more, she can pack a mean cheat too, such as the following one for the greatest followup since 3D space-trading multiformat computer games began.

"Start on the planet Lava. Go to the ship upgrade screen and sell everything. Exit and go the Cobra Mark One. Return to the upgrade screen and buy one or two extra passenger cabins, go to the bulletin board and take any mission which involves passengers, go back to the New Ship screen and try to sell your ship for a smaller one. Now here's where the sneaky bit comes in. The game won't let you sell a ship with passengers on board, but still pays you for it. So keeping clicking on Buy until you've got as much money as you can carry!"

Frontier will probably find its way into many a space trader's Christmas stocking this Yuletide. So that you aren't slowed down by some of the game's more tedious traits, here's a pile of tips from someone calling himself the Psychic Smurf. When he isn't out in interstellar space fighting all and sundry, he can be found residing in the Earth town of Weston-Super-Mare.

ASSASSINATIONS

Don't try an assassination if the target is launching from a spacestation. Due to a bug in the game the target won't actually take off. Good hyperjump capability and a hyperspace analyser is recommended. Fighting your prey around the planet surface can incur large fines. If you do want to fight around the planet, fire a missile at the target and then fly into space. This will engage the target and only incur a 600 credit fine. If you shoot with your laser, you will probably get a 10,600 credit fine.

BOUNTY HUNTING

All you need to get going is a radar mapper; on most missions you will be able to pick up a regular income bounty hunting. If you just want to bounty hunt, stay away from Federation and Imperial planets; then you will find more pirates.

PARCELS

Not many parcels are actually worth a great deal. Good if you're strapped for cash. Always worth a check if you are going that way on a different mission.

TAXIING

Two cabin spaces recommended.
Good money is often available for one or two passengers. A good hyperjump is recommended as they tend to be in a hurry. Also carry a reasonable laser as trouble will not be far behind. Due to a bug in the game some passengers want to go to systems without planets. Therefore, keep an eye on the destinations, it may save money and extreme embarrassment.

MINING

Need money and a largish ship to get started. Practice manual landings a lot so that rigs can be set up. This is a good option as it can provide a regular income while you are doing other things.

TRADING

Money breeds money (or so fluffy tenner rabbit said). (You what ? – Ed.) Get used to the slow start. Keep a check on the bulletin board; occasionally one person will be selling goods that somebody else wants to buy.

MILITARY

Regular missions improve your rank. There's not a lot of money to start with. It does increase with rank, however. Gives a sense of achievement and is reasonably safe if you stay around Sol. Missions improve with rank.

MISSING PERSONS

Worth checking bulletin boards to find out who's missing. Talk to everybody and glean as much info as you can.

TIPS

Another one of those annoying bugs is the fact that landing on planets with the autopilot on tends to get extremely dangerous. You can, though, remedy this by setting the time to maximum acceleration.

Save often and avoid failed missions since your street cred drops rapidly. If your street cred does drop, try donating to charity.

try donating to charity.

To fly to a spacestation/planet quicker, use autopilot to line up ship then manually accelerate and time skip until you register just under 1 AU. Switch on autopilot. This saves approximately two days per 10 AU.

COMBAT

Fighting manually is pretty hard and tedious. An easier way is as follows. Turn the background stars off and the ship and planet details (F10) on. When attacked, rotate ship so that the enemy is visible; then pause the game. It is now easy to click on the ship to get a lock. If you have a radar mapper, take note of the details. Save the game. Unpause and let the ship fly away to about 8km. Switch autopilot on and the enemy will come into your sights. Keep shooting until enemy is about 2.5km away. Switch off autopilot. This will prevent collisions and help you avoid being shot. Repeat these steps if necessary. Some ships refuse to fly more than 3km away. Use missiles to kill these ones.

CHEAT

We would have been printing a whole load of instructions here on how to get some money, but the tips that the Psychic Smurf sent in were the same as Mrs D Grant's of Lanarkshire. And hey, we wouldn't want to ruin her triumph. After all, we got her tip in the mail bag first.

ALIEN BREED 2

(Team 17)

"Intensely challenging," or "Far too hard"? That's the quiz that our very own Cam Winstanley set in his Bottom Line when he reviewed this stonking game.

If you belong to the school of thought which believes the former appraisal, then stop reading now - we'll only spoil your enjoyment of the game.

For the rest of us, who appreciate the game, here are some tips that are so hot we made our coffee with them while the envelope cooled down. So thanks go to our Hampshire correspondent who calls himself a very ordinary Andrew Brice.

The following are the passwords to gain access to the various complexes.

CIVILIAN SCIENCE MILITARY Here are a few tips which should aid you in your fight.

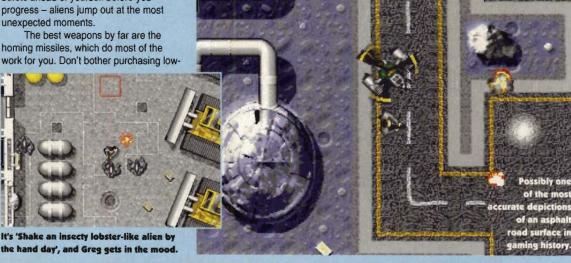

Don't worry too much about ammo, because it is easy to come by. Fire a few bursts ahead of yourself before you progress - aliens jump out at the most unexpected moments.

The best weapons by far are the homing missiles, which do most of the or medium-power weapons however. Always wait and buy the high. They are a great deal more powerful. This way you save money in the long run. You know it makes sense.

Take things slowly: there is no time limit until the alarms sound. Go slowly around the level and pick up money, keys, ammo and lives as you'll need these later in the game.

If possible, invest in a couple of extra lives. Believe the man when he says you'll need them.

OOH

(The Hit Squad)

You wouldn't guess how many letters I get every month at the Last Resort asking if I know what the answer to some obscure problem in Hook is. In fact, I think there were even a couple this month.

Even though it was released well into AMIGA POWER's run, we never actually printed any form of tips at all for this one, but as luck would have it, it's just been re-released in time to coincide with the solution we were planning to print this issue

GETTING A PIRATE UNIFORM

At Pirate Square pick up the anchor and the pole. Collect the rope from Dead Man's Pier, and the three mugs from The Bait and Tackle.

Head out the upstairs door, join the anchor to the rope and use it with the wood above the clock. Swing back and forth and swipe the pirate's hat. Knock on Mrs Smeedle's door but before she opens it swing back. Return to Pirate Square and use the pole on the jacket.

Encouraged by his mates to enter the 1994 Mister Beer Gut of Australia contest, wee Dave sadly came last.

Pay your next visit to Dr Chop in Mugger's Alley. Pick up the roller blind, enquire if you can make some money, and in answer oblige his request for a gold tooth.

In the Jolly Roger hand over your three mugs and three coins (one from the jacket) to the barman. Pass on the three mugs of cocoa to Fake Jake and, as he falls asleep, nick his trousers. Use the roller blind behind Pirate Square.

GRABBING HOOK'S ATTENTION

Go on to Hook's ship and attempt to pick up the pots next to the portcullis (you'll get gold). Go to the Pirate Tailor's and enquire after 1) Hook and 2) metal detectors. Buy a magnet: use it on the faint cross on Good Form Beach. Back at Hook's ship, walk to Hook's men: the clock will tick, Hook will talk.

UNDERWATER

NEVER FOREST

THE LOST BOYS

Walk to the green stuff oozing out of the tree. When Tink arrives, fall from and walk into the tree and go up the left steps to the Lost Boys' workshop. Pick up the arrow, head for the jogging area and use the bike and weights. Now go to the Avenger.

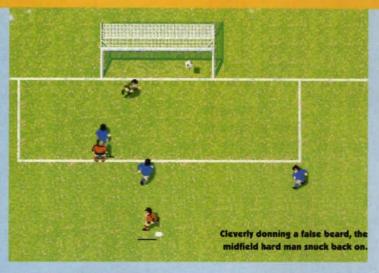

Take the string by examining the net. At the Four Seasons go to the section with flowers and pocket the largest. Use the conch shell on the chicken, help yourself to the eggs, and swop them for some elastic with the boy in the workshop. Unburden the branch from the tree by the round pond (through the dining area), and tie on the elastic.

Use the bow with the Pan Pipes in the workshop, and repair the slingshot with the elastic. Head up the Little bank to reach The Cliff Side and jump off the corner of the fence. Ask the boy what he thought, then repeat jumps until you are cued to use the slingshot.

Ask the Fat Boy what his happy thoughts are in exchange for Toodle's marbles, and swop the flower with Tink in the garden for a a thimble.

Find, insult and throw food at Rufio. A ball in the middle of the Round Pond screen will knock you across the lake into the big tree. Examine everything, then talk to Tink. She will talk to you and give you your teddy. All that's left now is for you to outwit Hook in a fight!

(Virgin)

If you have a player sent off, you can bring on a substitute to replace him without anyone actually being taken off. Simply press the substitution key and, once on the team selection screen, click on the name of the player who has just been sent off. (His name should be in black.) Now click on the substitute you wish to bring on and return to the game!

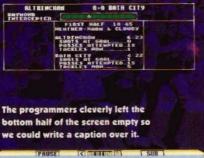

Thanks to Stephen Balloch of Stockesfield for that one.

PREMIER MANAGER 2

(Gremlin)

Michael and Andrew Ibbitson of Shipley are the fellows to acknowledge here for drawing our attention to the fact that you should go to the telephone and dial 781560. But why will this be of any significant use, you may wonder?

Remember, before calling 0898 numbers ask permission.

Because then you will be whisked off to a gambling machine where you can win extra money and boost your players' stats. It does cost money to take part, but play your cards right and you should walk out with a sizeable profit.

onkey Island – what a game, eh? Well, we're not printing the tips for Monkey Island on these pages. No, instead, we thought we would treat you to some tips on the sort-of prequel, Loom.

If you haven't got Loom, read these tips anyway – I'm sure you'll see how deeply un-tedious it really all is. For those of you who've already got it, we 're going to take you from the very beginning of the game to getting safely off your home island safely. This involves quite a bit of travelling and spell-casting...

PICTURES 00-01

See the bloke looking like a scarey monk hanging about a tree with the last leaf of autumn on it? That's you, that is. Once you've finished gazing at the fabulous graphics and scenery surrounding you, give yourself a little kick and head on in to the village. And hey, remember that you're a person, not a number.

Once in the village, go into the leftmost tent. Keep walking to the right of the tent until you go past three tapestries. Admire them for their quality etc (after all, you are a top-notch weaving-appreciater). Clicking on each of the tapestries will tell you a little bit about their fabric, weave, cross stitching and the like – you know, all the interesting stuff.

PICTURES 02 -03

The computer steps in and takes over for a bit. Enjoy your spectator role for a while and listen to the megalomaniacal esoteric ramblings of the wise old Elders. They're basically putting the boot into Old Hetchel and telling her off for something or other that she's done wrong. You know what these magician types are like. Anyway, you have to listen (read the text that appears on screen) carefully. Everything that's said will help embroider a bigger tapestry of the earth-shattering events about to overtake you.

PICTURES 04-05

You'll probably have started twiddling your thumbs by this time – there's not much for you to do but watch the unfolding events – but don't wet your crease, things are about to become arcanely more interesting.

You've just seen Hetchel being morphed into an egg and the Elders turn into swans and fly off. Well, it turns out that those wise Elders were so wise that they left one of their most important magical artifacts ever, the Distaff, behind. Pick it up. You are now capable of casting spells, albeit of a limited nature at this early stage. Now is as good a time as any to start learning to spell. Go over to the egg that used to be poor old Hetchel.

Cast the Open spell using the keyboard or mouse (E-C-E-D). Miracle of miracles, Hetchel is reborn and ready to give you a whole load of top-notch advice. Pay heed to her wise words – she may be an ugly duckling now, but if you remember anything of Hans Christian Anderson's tales, you might just find that she's waiting to turn into a beautiful snowy white swan. She's certainly got the heart of one.

Exit the TARDIS tent and head over to the tent in the village at the extreme right. This is Hetchel's old tent. Go in and pocket the book that's on the table. Pick up the flask (if you can – don't worry if it only knocks over). Click on the big pot on the corner of the table. You'll see some notes playing – 'note' these down.

Cast the spell that these notes create on the pile of undyed cloth in the corner. Well whaddya know? You've just turned them into another colour.

PICTURE 09

I just bet you're pleased with yourself now that you can cast more than one spell. Head out toward the woods at the left of the village. Keep going to the left until you see a rabbit getting his just reward for being so cute. Go over to the grave that registers when you click your mouse and read what you see there. This provides an almighty clue for a bit that's coming up later, so hang on to your staff.

PICTURE 10

Okay, now to add to your burgeoning repertoire of handy little spells to know. As you walk away from the grave back to the village, spend some time touching the four holes in the trees. They'll give up their music, enabling you to cast the Owl's spell. Get it – got it? – good. Head back to the village.

PICTURE 11

Go into the first open tent at the right of the village. Cast your newly learned Owl spell. Click on the spinning wheel, and use the spell you learned on the straw. Now its time for some radical spell casting.

PICTURE 12

Go back to the starting point of the adventure. You know the place, the bit with the last leaf of autumn on the old tree. Okay, now that you're here, point around with your mouse until the sky becomes highlighted in your icon corner. Cast another one of those fabby 'Open' spells you're so good at.

PICTURES 13-14

Head on down to the jetty. Assuming that you've cast the spell correctly, there should be a big stick waiting for you at the end of the jetty. Before you climb aboard, cast an open spell on the clam at the left of the jetty. Done that? Good. Jump off the end of the pier and on to your improvised boat.

PICS 15-16

Well, you're just about to head off to the next island, but unfortunately one big sister of a waterspout is blocking your way. Sidle up as close as you can to the waterspout and touch it. You'll hear the tune that its playing. Cast this as a spell, but in reverse (D-E-F-C). The waterspout will clear and you should reach the next island without incident.

Ha ha – now that's magic! Tune in next month, where in the interest of space we'll probably have absoloutely no tips on Loom at all. Here's hoping, eh?

If you ever lose it, take heart! Pil come to help you if I can.

No doubt you've been anxious to get further ever since beating the guards and gaining 100,000 coins last issue. So here we go with part 3 of the guide...

You've got this far. You're still alive. You're at least one hundred thousand coins richer than you were before you started the tips last month.

Praise be to the 'Towering Edible Ant Machine number 2'. You're itching so hard to get on with the rest of the adventure that you've bought a tube of Canesten in anticipation of forthcoming raspingly raucous razor rashes.

2 Deposit most of the money you gained from last month in the bank. Make sure that you have at least 10,000 gold coins with you. They're going to pay for the next part of the map. Rest, recuperate and celebrate over your new found fortune. Now head for the harbour. You're going to visit Irvan's Island again. Before you leave, make sure that you're in possession of the eagle you were commanded to buy by me. Head along the East coast of the island. You'll probably have to fight quite a few wasps, but they should prove to be no problem now that you're so heavily tooled up. Eventually, you will come across the Wizard geezer in Pic 1. Give him the 10,000 coins. He will cast a spell on your eagle. The eagle flies away, but comes back a few minutes later. Well, what do you know. You are now in possession of another piece of the map.

4 Head back in a general westerly direction and locate the standing stones where you witnessed the murder of the poor little girly at the beginning of the adventure. Head to the west end of them and you will locate a nice little artefact. Unfortunately, as soon as you pick it up it animates a golem. This guy is one mean mother. Hack in with as many temporal weapons as you can. Magic isn't much good. Once you've killed him, turn around quickly, cos you've got to fight him again. This time, he's dead for good.

Head for the harbour and

set sail for the Southern bay of Ignore the above instruction if you haven't bought any fur coats. You absoloutely definitely need them. The mountains will draw the life out of your marrow as sure as a demon drinks blood from sacrificial virgins. Assuming that the coats have been purchased, now's the time to use your ropes to keep the party together.

Head east across the mountain path, searching the snow as you go. You'll find a cauldron. Pack it away, you'll need it later. Head back the way you came. Keep searching the various offshoots as you go. Eventually, you will come across a rather lovely looking but very vicious rhinoceros. Kill it and break the horn off. Aah, it reminds me of my African safari.

Head back home. If you encounter any dwarves, show no mercy, they act.

Thorn's Island

North. At the end of the hike, you will find a small cul-desac which contains one of those ubiquitous hermit types that seem to exist in every fantasy setting. Prepare a Humbolg potion for him. He will cheer up and give you another piece of map in return.

12-13 Go on, you've deserved it have another rest, a slap up meal and a gossip back in the city. Kit up and make sure you've got an iron shield this is very important as you will soon see. As soon as you land, put on the pendant that you took from the dying girl you didn't manage to save at the beginning of the adventure; remember her? From the harbour, take the crossroads to the left, head North and take the second turning on the right. Follow the turning straight down and at the end you'll come across one of Treebeard's relatives. Mix up another Gold Blend Jablou potion and give it to him. He'll start reviving and leave you a pendant in return for your kindness.

Head South and take the first turning to the right. In case you get lost, look for the village. Search every door, two of them will open and you will gain some pretty useful information. Go back to the harbour. You're not sailing away just yet though. Take the East road and follow it to the end. Some Ewoks will have the gall to attack you. God, it's great being able to pummel their cute little faces in. I've wanted to crack their skulls since the Return of the Jedi and now thanks to Ishar 2, I can. Pick up the relic you find there and head back to the harbour. Remember to terminate the Ewok population with extreme prejudice and a vacant grin on your face.

15–16 From the harbour, go north, then east and north again, and once more east. Keep going until you come across a stone druid. Remember the rhino horn? Use it now and place it on the druid. Magically he reanimates and is so pleased at being organic flesh again that if you give him the iron shield he will cast a spell on it. You are now the proud owner of a magical fire resistant shield.

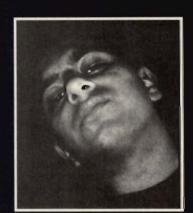

Sorry folks, but that's another thrilling chapter of Ishar 2 Legendary tips over. Will we have another thrilling two pages next month? Who can tell. Here's hoping.

with Rich Pelley

Rich has just started University, where he has formed a band, joined the rowing club and (almost) got a new girlfriend. But he still has time for his old Amiga pals.

Everybody has their favourite pages of AMIGA POWER. Some like the contents page; an at-a-glance summation of what juicy treats in store are waiting for you to dive on into. Some like The Secret Garden - where else can you make a fast buck by sneakily selling off Mum's washing machine and Dad's lawnmower (Er, Kids! - Ed). Some like the reviews, some like the news pages, some even like scanning down the massive list of games advertised by mail order companies and writing to us to point out the spelling mistakes. And then there's The Last Resort - absolutely, and without a shadow of a doubt, my least favourite pages of AMIGA POWER. I have to write the damn things.

CURSE OF ENCHANTIA

"What must I do after I have got out of the well?"

Allan Andu, Holland

By wearing the mask when you climb into the bucket (created by A attaching the mud to the seaweed and the mud and seaweed to the twigs), the monster at the top of the well will try to kiss you, but jump down in disgust when the mask falls. Don't forget the gem behind the rock before heading off.

All these readers want for Christmas is the solution to the problems that I couldn't answer.

"I am becoming rather frantic over WING COMMAINDER, and this seemed just the sort of place to get all my problems out in the open. I seem to die most frequently in mine and asteroid fields left by the Kilrathi. It is also a veritable bummer when I'm outnumbered four to one. What I need is some general advice on how to kill the Kilrathi. Anybody got any good ideas?" Richard Tang, Loughborough

"After the first few introductory rooms and one teleportation in SHADOWORLDS there is a door which I just can't open, next to a display screen which reads:

Light Sensor Activates Door I've tried everything, but it won't open please help. Chris Aldersey, York

"On level 6 of the same game, I am stuck in a room with three switches and a teleporter which takes me to an enclosed room.

Geoff Bretherick, Huddersfield

"Before I go completely insane, could anybody tell me how to do Columbia in Bullfrog's cyberpunk-tastic SYNDICATE. I've accumulated about 75 million in credits trying to desperately complete the level but with, on a scale of one to ten, approximately no luck at all. I've only got seven levels to play after this - please help! I'll pay!" Darren Crawford, Bromley

"In EYE OF THE BEHOLDER, on levels two, three and four I have found that it says 'Special Quest for this level' but I don't know what the guests are. And could you please tell me where the stone gem is." Simon Bullows, Huntington

"In LEGEND OF KYRANDIA I have read all the tips you have previously given but I am still unable to find Topaz. I would extremely appreciate the answer to this conundrum and any other general advice to aid my progress." Oliver Heppell, Granthraxx

"You think you've got problems? I can't even do Beach Level 8 of LEMMINGS 2. Gary Jenkins, Sidmouth

"In FASCINATION I can't get past the swimming pool scene – my room gets ransacked and the mission fails every time." Neil Grenden, Hastings

"In EYE OF THE BEHOLDER 2, what are the answers to the riddles 'Nature's beauty is my meat, small and red, 'tis such and a treat' and 'from the fiends from below, find the item with the hidden glow'. And any ideas where these items can be found?" R. Edwards, Cheshire

"On level 2 I'm stuck on screen's forge and the well (so that's level 3 then – Rich). I know how to get the imprint, the false teeth, how to pass Oto, to work Schwarzy and how to operate the bellows but after the cover of the well is open, I can see no means as how to get inside." Daniel Meggitt, Kent

Send Winkle up the tunnel and get him to open the hatchet while Fingus presses the button. Point Fingus and Winkle up the tunnel and through the door respectively, and whilst Schwarzy is stunned, have Fingus use the stool on the hoist and send Winkle off to use the false teeth on Schwarzy. Before he re-surfaces get both Goblins to put their diving suits on and head on down.

"My problem is that I just can't complete the final level. I've tried everything I can think of, but no doubt I'm missing something."

Chris Glover, Bath

Position Fingus on the eye and make Winkle jump off the left edge. Get the mouse, have Winkle use it on the mud and then jump on the crocodile. He'll be catapulted upwards – when Amoniak tries to catch him use Fingus's boomerang on the teeth.

Now put the sponge on the rock and The Prince Buffoon on the eye. And finally, if Fingus draws a door on the rock with a pencil, Winkle will be able to open the door and escape will be yours.

HOOK

"On The Lost Boys bit I've fixed the slingshot, called Rufio a fly-infested house-plop, Tink has gone missing and I've got the pipes. But now what?"

Keven Newton, no given address

I take it that you've already used the slingshot, collected Toodles' marbles and collected the thimble by this point. If not, do so by locating the boy and continually asking him what he thought until opportunity arises, asking the Fat boy what his happy thoughts are, and giving the flower to Tink respectively.

Go to the middle of the screen with the round pond, face the island and a ball should hit you and knock you right across the lake

ANOTHER WORLD

"This may not be the most interesting of questions but, what the heck, who said this was an interesting column anyway? Please could you give me all the level codes – I would be very grateful indeed."

Simon McCarthy, Suffolk

From the stream of Last Resort questions received each month that could have been avoided by a glance through a back issue, I am led to assume that once read, people either lock their issues of AMIGA POWER in a vacuum to preserve their beauty for ever more, or they are too lazy to look through their collection. (Or maybe they are new to the Rich O'Meara of Ireland, the poor fellow, always got blown up before he could escape from the generator.

CAPTIVE

"Once you have used the explosives, quickly return to the entrance. When you hear the muffled explosion, click on the door. You'll appear in a little room facing a wall. Turn 180 degrees to face a door and use the same combination to get out as you used to get in. On the large number of bases that follow, use the same method.

The laser and the sonic packs, which you also enquired about, are used in conjunction with the more advanced weapons further into the game for which you'll need plenty of experience points. As for the camera, I never could work out a use for it. Anyone have any ideas? Ramy Wurgaft, Herts

LEGEND

An anonymous fellow couldn't get a path to the door in the Treiadwyl Dungeon two issues ago.

"The task, if I remember correctly, is to hit all the Damage runes in the room with Damage spells. However, only one of these damage runes can be hit directly; casting spells at this reachable rune triggers the column at the pivot of the other otherwise unreachable runes. This column has a hole in it (or if not, cast a Magic Damage spell at the rune in view and a suitable will appear) which in turn casts damage spells at the others. Casting Missile Damage at the rune merely moves the hole from one side of the column to the other. To reach the remaining runes, cast Missile and then as many Damage elements as necessary (i.e. if the damage rune is three squares away from the column, cast Missile-Damage-Damage-Damage), making sure, of course, that the hole in the column is facing the correct direction." Beryl the Peril, London

Laurence Brown of Luton however felt no shame in admitting the problems he'd encountered in Level Eight of Fagranc.

Get your spellcaster onto the circuit of magic tiles and time him to cast any spell as he reaches a tile giving access to the chest. The act of casting makes him stop in his tracks so you can then relieve the chest of its contents. And I can't really remember the details of the Paralysis Rune but I think it involves Forward Paralysis."

CRUISE FOR A CORPSE

He obviously didn't know this at the time, but it transpires that Robert Cetti of London's questions "what do the Mermaid's codes do," and "where is the tool box," may have been a little short-sighted.

"The Mermaid is there to give you codes which enables you to tell whereabouts in the game you are. And the tool box? There isn't one – you will, however, be needing the screwdriver later on in the game to mend the projector."

Michael Francks, Hinckley

EYE OF THE BEHOLDER 2

Kenneth Shackleton really was being a silly sausage in issue 31.

A "I am assuming you are in Level 3 of the catacombs. One skull keyhole is in the west with the key lying around somewhere. The second keyhole is to the north, and the relevant key in the southern part of the same level close to the prisoner Calandra and various other paraphernalia. But be prepared. A long battle with legions of undead Clerics awaits you behind the door. The second horn can be found in the North East of Level 3 close to the descending stairs. But be careful! The doors close behind you in the level below and you will not be able to rest until you locate a way to leave. The third horn is in a niche to the Northeast where you have to walk up and down some stairs before you make your way to level five. And the last horn? It is at the furthest point away from the stairs. Go back to the stone portal in Level 4 to be teleported away. And you are right about the seal. Take the test it's only 5 levels - to obtain the Mark of Darkmoon. Now the Magic Mouth will let you pass and the fun begins. You're only half way there!"

A problem shared will get filed away in the industrial-sized Last Resort plastic rubbish bin hogging more than its fair share of the office, passed on to me at the end of each month, dumped on my bedroom floor, forgotten about for a few days, except for possibly being stepped on and sworn at, eventually opened, read, answered, typed up and disposed of accordingly.

An answer shared will suffer much the same fate. So please send your 'Questions' or 'Answers' to:

LURE OF THE TEMPTRESS

"In the Castle I can't get the drawbridge down and by the time I've asked Minnow to do it, I get caught by the Skorl."

A Kelly, Portsmouth

You seem to have got the basic gist of this part of the game; the solution to your problem is to make sure the Skorl doesn't catch you. You do this by pulling the bung out of the cask in the cellar (with the tongs) and luring him down – he'll drink up the slops and fall conveniently asleen

"Having talked to Ultar to gain entry through Weregate, how do you do pass the cave section? I have entered the second cavern, but what are the skull combinations?"

Stuart Freeston, Bilston

A Look at them both, then pull the right one. Simple.

GODS

"I am stuck on level one, world one. Can anybody help?" Owen Pritchard, Milton Keynes

A Yet another question that is about as specific as phoning the Fire Brigade and eliciting no more information than that your house is on fire, and could they come round quickly please. You want help? Let me know whereabouts.

OPERATION STEALTH

Surprisingly, no one at all actually wrote in to ask about Operation Stealth this month, which must be a first. No one I know of is stuck in the Control Room last thing in the game either. But what the hell, eh? There's still space to fill (and I'm pretty good at this game), so I'll tell you anyway.

Wait for the razor to give the message "Explode, one, two..." and quickly USE the red cigarette on the computer. It will explode, which is your cue to OPERATE Otto. When John has fought with him, USE the compact disc on the laser-reader, and head for the door at the top left...

MATCHED RANGE OF FEATURES

Special compacting techniques enable up to 3 programs to fit on one disk. Now saves directly to disk as Amiga Dos - reloads independently of the cartridge - even transfer to hard drive! Works with up to 2 Megs of Ram - even 1 Meg Chip Mem (Patter Agnus).

now with DEEP trainer. Even better than before - allows you to generate more or even infinite lives, fuel, ammo. Perfect as a Trainer Mode to get you past that "impossible" level. Easy to use.

The full Sprite Editor allows you to view/modify the whole sprite set including any "attached" sprites. PLUS A RANGE OF IMPROVED FEATURES.

VIRUS DETECTION

Comprehensive virus detection and removal features to protect your software investment. Works with all presently known viruses.

Game: Fantastic Dizzy Publisher: Codemasters Price: £25.99 Release: Out now

Is it rotten eggs that sink and good ones that float, or the other way round? I forget, ho'd have thought it, eh? The little blobby white character who came into existence because he was easy to draw and didn't present too much of a problem to the old Spectrum's extremely limited colour palette is now one of the country's biggest videogame stars. As well as racking up huge sales on all the 8-bit and 16-bit home computer formats, Dizzy's been spotted on the NES and recently made his debut on the Mega Drive. In fact, he "this will made his debut in this entertain you very game, which is the first-ever Dizzy for a long game to be converted back to a floppy disk time" format, as well as the first one to feature proper scrolling instead of just flicking from screen to screen. Pretty backdrops in 32 colours (apparently), a neat daytime-nighttime-daytime effect, huge black borders down either side of the screen, jaunty music, cute - hang on a minute. Rewind! 'Huge black borders down either side of the screen'? What's going on here, then? Well, seemingly, the only way to reproduce the pretty backdrops and colours of the Mega Drive version was to make the action take place on a squidged-up screen that's like watching a Cinemascope movie on a 14" portable TV. I don't know the technical difficulties which may have been involved, but frankly I'd rather have had less colours in the backdrop and a main screen

> which didn't fill me with claustrophobic terror every time I tried to play the game.

> > BUSINESS

Anyway, otherwise it's pretty much Dizzy business as usual, except with a few little arcade subgames thrown in to make things more interesting There's tile-sliding, mine-cart riding, Operation Wolf-style shooting galleries and more.

created a more successfully 'believable' fantasy world atmosphere than most video games, and that's something I'll forgive a lot of sins for. Even those huge and ridiculous black borders down either side of the screen.

interesting stuff so far, huh?

Yeah, alright. I'll just get on with it, shall I? Fantastic Dizzy is the biggest Dizzy game yet, and consequently comes with the biggest price tag. This is immediately worrying - the last time the Codies tried to push the little egg dude into the grown-up games world, the result was the dire Crystal Kingdom outing, which was three times the price of its predecessors but not even a third as good. This time, though, they've tried a bit harder. There's proper scrolling, parallax UPPERS Lots of things to do, and lots of different places to do them in.

DOWNERS The cropped screen display is something I thought we'd seen the last of, and the game does very little new to the Dizzy formula to justify the further price hike.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Is this the best Dizzy game yet? Undoubtedly. But is it a tiny bit slim for 26 quid? Most certainy.

actually is the same.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Looks the same, plays the same. Which leads us to the staggering conclusion that it

JANUARY

If games were people, this would be George Formby.

Game: Doofus Publisher: Prestige

Software
Price: £28

Release: Out now

he scene: Heaven. God is interviewing a new arrival called, in clever theatrical subtext fashion, Richard Everyman.

God: So you're a computer game fan?

Everyman: Yes.

God (examining a sheet of paper): Well, everything seems to be in order, Richard.
You'll be playing this perfect cute

AMIGA

Everyman: Hurrah. And I thought that insurance fraud innoc this description in the second sec would have counted against me.

God: Insurance fraud? (Sharply) You are Richard J Everyman, aren't you?

Everyman: No, my middle name's Quentin.

God: Oh dear. Everyman: Oh dear?

God (producing an alarmingly thick folder of notes): Richard Q Everyman – insurance fraud, armed robbery and first-degree murder. Is this you? Everyman: It was all a mistake. I explained everything away in court.

God: And perjury. Everyman: Oh dear.

God: Looks like an eternity playing Doofus for you.

Everyman: Is that bad?
God: Oh yes, it starts off innocently enough. You're this Doofus chap and you've got this dog that follows you a second or two behind. So the idea is

"Looks like an eternity playing Doofus for you" to get through the level without either you or the dog getting killed. But after that it goes rapidly downhill. Do you want to hear about the broad, sweeping problems or the individual faults? It doesn't matter, I'll tell you everything anyway. We've got plenty of time.

Mind you don't land on the dog's head though.

Everyman: Sob.

God: Broad, sweeping problems first I think. There's no gameplay in this game. You're meant to be shooting the killer creatures in order to earn enough money to afford various power-ups, like orbiting bullets or a floating bubble of invincibility, but the whole thing is so preposterously easy there's no point. The creatures on each level are exactly the same as those on the previous ones - some fly, some bounce and the others walk back and forth, and only the graphics are different. There are only two kinds of platform blocks which you can stand on and blocks which kill you - and they aren't used in an ingenious or testing manner at all. In fact, since the scrolling only goes right-to-left, the one challenge in the design comes from guessing which of the two heights of platform will prove the marginally less ludicrously simplistic path.

Everyman: Mercy, mercy.

God: You wait, I'm just warming up. Because of the unidirectional scrolling, the dog idea is utterly wasted – since nothing can attack you from behind, the only possible way the mutt can get killed is for you to fire at a creature coming straight at you and miss, in which case it would get your character first anyway. No, hang on, there are two things that can't be shot – a bobbing spider and a barrel – but if you don't feel up to simply jumping over them, you can always conjure the inincibility bubble and float past them.

Everyman: I don't understand what you're talking about.

God: Shut up, I'm God. Right, now for the individual faults. The collision detection – it's useless. The many and varied icons lying around that you can collect – they're useless, except for one which reverses your controls, oh what a jape. The graphics – they're useless. Uniformly garish so you have one hell of a time picking out the sprites from the background. The font – that's useless. So chunky half the letters look the same, which is ever so much fun when you're trying to note down the passwords. It's all useless. Except the music, that's merely unpleasant. Here's your copy, I hope you'll be very unhappy together.

Everyman: If only I'd tried harder to be good, eh readers?

• JONATHAN NASH

He's lithe, acrobatic, cheerful, colourul and crap. The dog's OK though.

UPPERS The dog idea. (But that's utterly wasted.)

DOWNERS Everything. I'm not joking.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Seventy per cent of Amiga games are platformers, and eighty-five per cent of those are absolute crap. Doofus is the worst one I've ever seen. It's genuinely depressing to think that someone spent months creating this and believes it's worth selling for £28.

Please, God, let this be as bad as it gets.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Well surprisingly Doofus is just as much of an atrocious and tedious platformer on the A1200 as it is on all the other Amiga formats. Well done Prestige.

here's a thing about "even for a life, and the thing about life is this it is immensely complicated. No matter how long you stick with it, there's always something you can't quite get to grips with or, indeed, begin to understand one tiny bit at all. Unfortunately life doesn't come with an instruction book, but if it did, it would undoubtedly be a badly translated instruction book with lots of sentences that had a very good but ultimately unsuccessful stab at making sense. And, d'you know, in these respects, life would be a lot like this game.

So wrote Stan Wallpaper in his now standard textbook, '101 Extremely Contrived Introductory Paragraphs.' Thanks, Stan. It changed my life. But anyway: SUB. This (erk) strategy game the acronym stands for Strategic Underwater Battles - is one of those postapocalyptic survival numbers.

In this case the apocalypse has left the Earth's surface one hundred per cent water and wiped out everybody but (a) those few thousands living in prototype bases on the ocean floor and (b) two surprised lovers by the names of Olive and Desmond who were in the process of romantically jumping off a mountain rather than have their feuding parents forcibly strategy game SUB is sedate"

Did you know that in the United States a sub is a kind of sandwich?.

Can't swim? That's you knackered then.

Sharp tactics are the way to stay ahead. Oh yes.

separate them. You have to trade, mine, expand, fight off pirates and generally behave in a typically post-apocalyptic manner but luckily not worry about Olive and Desmond. whose elation at realising they were suddenly free to live out their lives together was cut short by drowning.

OH YES, THE GAME

In a nutshell, a SUB session consists of buying a submarine, fitting it with mineral detectors and following it up with a cargo ship carrying mining rigs, founding a base to develop new equipment and selling the results to other traders, and doing it all again to build up a steady income and a strong fleet in order to deter pirates. Even for a strategy game, SUB is sedate - most of the 'action' comes in the form of rows of fluctuating digits, and although there's a communications network you can only receive messages and not, say, ask if anybody's seen any pirates recently. (And the messages you need to read are hidden among endless jokes about dolphin taming contests and the sub 'Nostrodomo' constantly discovering an alien ship filled with eggs.)

You can declare war, in which case every trader's hand is turned against you, but this isn't really in the spirit of the game and in any case combat just consists of clicking on a few squares until something goes boom so there you go. The most demanding part of SUB is improvising a way to decipher the ridiculously small numbers crammed on to the screen.

By far the biggest problem with the game, and ho boy is it a biggy, is the manual. It's spectacularly bad. Putting aside the hopeless translation (see, Stan's doing. As well as the manual and those impossibly small numbers, you have to contend with dark blue icons on a black background. How terribly amusing.

Getting the thing up and running is a frighteningly tricky affair, but it's kinda fun in a laid-back way. Perhaps Stan puts it best in his follow-up book, 101 Agonising Metaphors to Close a Review' - Strategic Underwater Battles is a game pitched firmly in the field of complicated strategy and unlikely to be visited by the casual tourist of average gameplaying, but provides a satisfyingly earwig-free environment and succeeds in staying away from the large charred tree of disaster. Or perhaps not.

JONATHAN NASH

UPPERS Enormous strategy sim which is actually fun to play. Not much in the way of excitement, but steadily enjoyable. Neat scenario and good ideas, like researching new ships and then selling the plans to other traders (or keeping them for yourself if you're like that).

DOWNERS Hideous manual and vastly unfriendly user interface. When you come down to it, the gameplay is just a lot of numbers changing hands. And even with the speed-up features, there are often long periods of time where nothing much happens at all. No two-player option, either.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Fair to middling for strategy fans, boring as fishing for anybody else.

Game: Body Blows Galactic Publisher: Team 17 Authors: Daniel Burke, Junior McMillan Price: £26.99 Release: Out Now

e all liked Body Blows when we got to see it in April this year, and the team universally hailed it as THE Amiga beat 'em up. I probably wouldn't have given it the roaringly good 89% that Tim Tucker did, but hey, that's Tim's perogative. We liked it, Team 17 were pretty chuffed with it, and presumably you all liked it as well, as there's now another

It's Body Blows Galactic, and although it's not really a sequel, it's a bit The complicated hold a flare in your toes' kick more than a data disk. Danny and Junior are the only two survivors from the original, who've jetted off across the universe to kick seven shades of goo out of strange new races. Star Trek this is not.

The graphics are a big improvement, the figures are better drawn, better shaded and don't move in the oddly stiff-limbed way of Body Blows. The characters are massively diverse; there's a girl on a hovering skateboard, a creepy ghoul, and even a dwarf on a dinosaur that work as a team and blatantly flaunt the Queensbury rules of gentleman's boxing. These are Good Things.

The down side? Well, the characters just don't seem to hit each other. Weedy sound effects add nothing to the impacts as they get fighting. Maybe blood splats or bigger impact animations would have covered this up.

And then there's the big one. This game is slow. Very, vee-rrrr-yyyy slooooooow. Compared to the original which was a frenetic fest of blocks and blows, this one's a good 25% slower. Okay, so there's animated backgrounds, but big deal. Go for Body Blows, or read the Mortal Kombat review, but leave this one alone.

Much better than the 500 version, but doesn't offer enough for fans of the original. May melt in the heat of the Mortal Kombat exhaust trail.

rue to their word, Team 17 have seen fit to add several refinements to the original Body Blows. The big question that has to be asked of all this frenetic activity is, 'was it worth it?'. It's a funny kind of a question that requires a funny kind of an answer. It basically depends on the machine you own and the the version of the game that you buy.

Yes, that's right there's a version exclusively for the AGA Amigas. Puzzlingly, you have to pay three quid more for it. Forgive me if I'm wrong, but doesn't this strike you as a cheap

EGVP

Power up your A500 with the very best in Amiga peripherals. Give your computer a new lease of life with a hard drive or accelerator plus hard drive from GVP.

These powerful, award-winning products plug neatly into your A500 or A500_{PLUS}, giving you more storage, and more speed. But the improvements don't stop there: in every area of Amiga operations these peripherals will enhance your A500. Both models can upgrade your Amiga's RAM, making operations even faster. You can add a PC emulator (featured below, left) letting you run thousands of PC software titles. Further hard drives, back-up systems and CD-ROM drives can also be added via the built-in SCSI interface. The list is endless, GVP's HD8+ and A530 are the undisputed best Amiga peripherals available.

If you were thinking about upgrading to an A1200 or A4000, think again. With a GVP A530 Accelerator upgrade, your A500 will be 14 times faster than a normal A500, almost nine times faster than an A1200 and over one and a half times faster than the mighty A4000 030 (see chart below).

EMULATOR

FOR USE WITH HD8+ or A530 For extra power and flexibility you can also use GVP's custom expansion slot (mini slot) to fit this GVP PC emulator. This compact circuit board turns your Amiga 500 into a fully featured PC compatible, capable of running thousands and thousands of

- PC software titles including Windows and MS-DOS 6. 80286 16MHz processor
- Norton SI index of 15
- Compatible with MS-DOS version 3.2 or later
- Windows 3.x compatible
- Includes 512K of FAST RAM
- Built-in video adaptor emulates VGA/EGA (mono), and Hercules
- Socket for optional 80287 co-processor
- Hard drive compatible Provides emulation support
- of Parallel and Serial ports, sound, realtime clock, CMOS RAM and extended memory

HARD DRI RAM EXPANSION

A GVP HD8+ Hard Drive will have an immediate effect on your Amiga. Where you used to constantly swap disks, wait for files and programs to load and sit around waiting for disk accesses, you'll now be pushed to keep up with your Amiga. Hard drives are used for the same storage purposes as floppy disks, but can hold a great deal more information and access this data much more quickly.

The A500 HD8+ (pictured above) provides the ultimate in hard drive performance, it can also increase the memory of your Amiga by up to 8mb, support up to six SCSI devices and provide PC compatible emulation via its custom expansion slot (mini slot) see left.

The GVP A530 is a unique combination of a Hard Drive, RAM upgrade and an Accelerator. Inside is a full Motorola 68030EC processor running at 40MHz, making your A500 faster than you thought possible - almost nine times faster than even an A1200. And, fitting a PGA maths co-processor (40MHz 68882, ref: UPG 1982, £129 inc VAT) can improve this still further, with some operations being 300 times faster than an A500. In addition you can add up to 8mb of 32-bit RAM, which further enhances its performance.

FASTER THAN AN A1200 or A4000 030

An A500 with the GVP A530 will be considerably faster than either the A1200 or A4000. This is possible because the A530 uses a 40MHz 68030EC, whilst the A1200 used the slower 14.19MHz 68020Ec and the A4000-030 uses the 25MHz 68030Ec processor. Features include:

Game: 'Allo 'Allo Cartoon

Publisher: Alternative Authors: In-house Price: £24.99 Release: Out now

n interesting feature of this game is that if you find a special secret room before Easter and send your name into Alternative, they'll put your name into a prize draw in which five lucky purchasers of the game can win their money back. I'll leave you to ponder this latest (undeniably novel) twist on the secret room idea and knuckle down to the tedious business of slogging through this banal game to give you my view of whether it's worth spending any cash on this soggy, limp attempt in the first place. 'Allo 'Allo is the eponymous platform game of the TV series, and before I played it, I thought it was a combination that could actually work. I mean, the TV show is generic light entertainment pandering to the lowest common denominator of public opinion, and so are most platform games.

How wrong can you be though? The music that blares out at you from the intro screen isn't the theme from the show. which seems to indicate that they bought the licence of the characters but not the music. Oh dear, and things get worse by the second. After you've decided if it's to be a one or two player game, and you're asked to insert disk two. Now, seeing as the intro consists of a few credits and a screen showing all the characters. I fail to see why you need to swap disks.

need to swap Okay, game time, and I've got to disks" admit that all the characters from the show are well represented in the game. And they're all here, from the saucy Yvette to the less than alluring Von Smallhausen and Lieutenant Gruber, and they either help of hinder you, depending on if they're into goose-stepping or not. Time and effort's gone into getting all the characters just right. and they're by far the best bit of the game.

The worst bit? Well, that's everything

If you chuck a brick at her, Edith

The game's based around plot ideas and gags from the TV show. As Rene or Michelle of the resistance, you've got to swap the real picture of the well proportioned Fallen Madonna with a fake one. This involves hunting around (giggle) to first find the (smirk) false ones which are hidden in (guffaw) giant sausages. (Fnark). The two player mode's odd in that you can wander off on your own and then toggle between the characters, BUT YOU ONLY GET ONE LIFE!

DOWNERS The music, gameplay, scrolling, jumping, falling off ladders and entering rooms don't live up to the characters. The disk accessing takes forever. Why isn't the music from the TV show in here instead of this dreadful plonky stuff? Why do you have to swap disks every time you start a game?

THE BOTTOM LINE

This is shamefully shoddy stuff for a full price game, and fails to even capture the flavour of the original. You could use the Grace Brothers staff and call this Are You Being Served, but it would still be completely crap.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Erm, well it doesn't work on the A1200. Well our copy didn't.

Good isn't it? Bang up to date are Alternative.

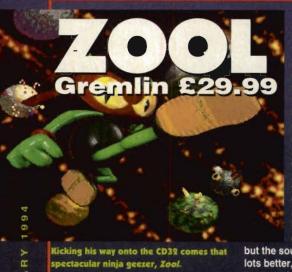

Hello, and welcome once more to our regular update on the CD32 side of things, in which Stuart Campbell sees the size of his CD32 games collection double practically overnight. Hurrah!

Zool's quickly becoming an even more ubiquitous character than Dizzy, cropping up on every console and computer format from the PC to the Game Boy. This is his third incarnation on the Amiga (not counting Zool 2, reviewed earlier in this very issue), and it's a further (small) step on from the A1200 version, in that there's a whole new extra world to play with. The graphics are still the prettybut-slightly-cluttered efforts of the A1200 game, but the soundtrack is (predictably) lots better, with some neat rave-y tunes and lots of shouting which gives things a really busy, happening kind of atmosphere. Oh, and you get a really nifty animated 3D intro and between-level sequences now.

As you'd expect, it's much like Zool A1200, but with a groovy soundtrack, better control and an extra level. Fine stuff, if a bit old hat.

TROLLS

Flair £25.99

In between the not-bad-at-all Trolls and the not-good-at-all Oscar, Flair released an A1200 version of the former game which turned out to be one of the Amiga's nicest platformers to date. Now they've stuck on the traditional CD soundtrack and brought it to the CD32, and it's still one of the Amiga's nicest platformers. The music doesn't actually help any, being aimless meandering of the most forgettable kind, but the graphics are as gloriously clear as ever (an inestimable joy after a couple of games of Oscar) and the gameplay is slightly improved by the use of the joypad. Only slightly, though - for some utterly, utterly

SLEEPWALKER

Ocean £29.99

Full marks to Flair - they're certainly making the effort to get the CD32 off to a good start, software supportwise. Sadly, though, this kind of thing isn't going to get the punters flocking to their local Dixons by the thousand nammal? No,

Trolls, well, they're absolutely gonk-

unfathomable

- it's a pretty uninspired Dungeon Master-ish RPG type of thing, with a forbiddingly tedious start that demands huge willpower exertions at the beginning if you're ever going to get into the game properly, and which aren't really worth it. It's a very sophisticated and complex game, but there's nothing in it that hasn't been done better before elsewhere, and the addition of all the CD music and impressive voice soundtracks in the world won't change that.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Wasn't very exciting CD32 on the Amiga, and isn't really any better on the CD32. Still, if you're looking for something to play on your CD32 that isn't pinball or a platform game, er, this is it.

reason, Flair are still resisting the obvious ploy of using one of the CD32's ordinary firebuttons for jumping. At least they're not forcing you to use 'up' this time (you can use the top-mounted forefinger buttons on the pad), but it's still pretty damn uncomfortable and completely pointless. That aside, there's very little to choose between this and the A1200 game, but that hardly qualifies as a criticism. I like this one.

That dive's never going to impress the Olympic judges, I'm afraid.

THE BOTTOM LINE

A vastly superior game to Oscar, but the soundtrack's naff and the jumping control still leaves a lot to be desired. One of the best CD32 games around, all the same.

Oh dear, oh dear, who rattled his cage? He'll give himself a hernia.

I hope someone starts bringing out some original CD32 games soon. It's getting pretty hard to think of new and interesting ways to say 'Well, it's exactly the same as the A1200 version with a new CD soundtrack.' In fact, I can't think of any at all, so I'm going to stop right here.

THE BOTTOM LINE

The CD soundtrack on this one is absolutely lovely and suits the game down to the ground. Otherwise pretty much A1200-port business as usual. Oh, and there's still a donation to Comic Relief made with every copy sold - so you're feeding the world as well.

OVERKILL/LUNAR-C

Mindscape £29.99

Oh no, mind expanding drug overload

Along with Zool's extra level, this release contains the only actual new thing on the CD32 this month. The console release of Vision's fab Strike Force-inspired shoot-'em-up comes packaged with another game, a horizontally-scrolling blaster by the name of Lunar-C. Lunar-C is reminiscent of Project-X in many ways (the various weapons systems are all but identical), but, amazingly, it's even harder. Almost impossibly hard, in a symphony about these. fact, with huge waves of lightning-fast and heavily-armoured enemies hurtling towards your snail's-pace, weedyweaponed starship within seconds of the start, and not letting up from then on. The stages seem to last for days, and when you finally do finish one, the next one's much the same. And certainly not worth the wirly alien thingles I'll be bound colossal effort you'll have had to put in to get that far, frankly. If Lunar-C was a freebie bonus game stuck onto the CD for laughs then you couldn't complain, but the ordinary version of Overkill sells for 20 quid, and I object to forcing buyers to fork out an extra tenner for it on the strength of another game that isn't Were I a composer I'd write worth the money.

> Overkill is an excellent game, but it's difficult to recommend it in this format.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Great Defender-type shoot-'em-up, CD32 hampered by the addition of 10 quid to the price to pay for a frankly duff horizontal blaster. A mistake, frankly.

Not really in a pipeline, clearly, but in the development hardware of some major software publishers, are several glamorous and exciting new CD games. The first CD32-only game ever (if you don't count Lunar-C that is), Liberation, gets reviewed in full back on page 52 of this issue, and there are more on the way. Ocean's Dennis is finished and just missed this issue's review deadline, and the Manchester firm should also have Jurassic Park ready for consumption in the very near future. System 3 have also thrown their hats into the ring by announcing Putty 2 for the console (hurrah!) as well as a three-game compilation of their Last Ninja titles. Gremlin are also going for the Christmas compilation market with the Lotus Trilogy, and Krisalis promise Soccer Kid and a welcome revamp of their groovy Laser Squad-ish strategy game Sabre Team. There's lots more on the way too, but we're going to have to keep that under wraps until next month.

Keep watching this space...

Lose yourself in another world, blow away half the world, indulge in pre-historic detection, caper around with your neanderthal chums, play at being a bulgarian assassin or re-live those glory, glory days of the mighty I. T. Botham. All of these and more are yours for very small amounts of money - life couldn't get any better. Or could it?

Publisher: Empire Price: £29.99 Release: Out now hankfully, there's only one thing that's wrong with this excellent compilation, and that's the dull name, and the price seems kind of slight compared to the prices of new releases as they slide their way up to 36 quid. I'll take the three games in reverse order, starting with what I consider the least impressive, which is F-19 Stealth Fighter. Flying either the F-19 or the F-117A, you get all the usual options of instant flight or full war scenarios, but since you're in a plane that's practically invisible to radar, there's the added factor of attempting missions without ever being seen. Some missions require you to infiltrate enemy airspace, photograph various objects and then hoof out, so you've got to skirt round radar posts, avoid planes and generally be as innocuous as possible. It's passably fast even on an A500, and probably as good as half a dozen other flight sims, but Knights

Of The Sky is still the one for me.

Next up is Silent Service 2, in which you sink enemy ships for the good of Uncle Sam's war effort in the biggie of '41-'45. I've always found sub games oddly compulsive, and their odd pace of nothing happening for ages followed by moments of intense action to be worryingly interesting, but often they're let down by being dull and hard to get into. SS2 is neither, and after breezing through the tutorial, I got right down to being an all out heart breaker and life taker. There's still plenty of hiding on the bottom while things go 'ping,' but with impressive graphics of torpedoes and shells slamming home, fantastic sound effects and a really buzzing pace, there's usually something happening

Finally, there's the intensely brilliant Pacific Islands. After I reviewed its sequel, War In The Gulf, back in AP28, I got what amounted to hate mail along the lines of "But it's just Pacific Islands again," and after playing this, I'd have to admit that they were right, but that doesn't stop me from recommending either. As the commander of 16 armoured vehicles, you've got to blaze your way across a series of Pacific atolls wiping out as much Russian armour as you can. The tanks are split into four teams which you can view all at once using a split screen display, or one at a time in full screen mode. The game hovers precariously between arcade game and war game, requiring both iron-clad planning and the ability to take out the bad guys faster than they can get you, and I love it. War In The Gulf's the same price as this entire compilation, and has sandy terrain instead of grassy, but is virtually the same, so buy this instead.

• CAM WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

This scores highly in terms of both hours of playability and number of brain cells used. Even though it's a bit old, Pacific Islands is worth thirty quid (Steady on, Cam. - Ed), and to get an exciting sub game and a good flight sim into the bargain as well is an obscenely good deal.

CHUCK ROCK

Publisher: Corkers Price: £9.99 Release: Out Now

Whereas film sequels are inevitably poor remakes of the first one, the great thing about game seguels is that they're usually pots better. This is fine if you play them in that order, but since I reviewed the jolly nice Chuck Rock 2 a few months back, I wasn't holding much hope for the original.

But I wasn't counting on playing a character who goes 'Unga bunga' with little provocation and drops huge boulders on small and fluffy animals, behaviour I can relate to. Okay, so he may be fat, and I may have a healthy disrespect for fat people, but I also hate babies and managed to have quite a fun time playing Chuck Rock. We all have our crosses to bear, I suppose.

In a Chuck Jones-inspired intro sequence packed full of Flintstoneesque Hanna-Barbera-isms (a little bird used as a TV aerial, for instance) we discover that the evil (but handsome) Gary Glitter has clobbered Chuck's wife Ophelia (a bit of a babe) and run off with her. Not a particularly new or inspiring plot line, I think you'll agree, but the day a platform game comes out with a unique story line is the day that Cindy Crawford turns up at work in a Ferrari to feed me roast dodo and chips.

This leaves Chuck having to hoof it across levels of prehistoric mayhem to confront his nemesis and get back his beloved. To defend himself from ground attacks, he's got a wobbly stomach that makes a brilliant 'boing' noise every time you set it in motion, while his flying kick takes out most airborne nasties. Along with all the power-up food bonuses and hearts, there are also plenty of differently sized rocks which help him out in more ways than you'd have thought possible.

to visualise a strange alien world when your computer can display it in glorious technicolour? Of the three games in this pack, Ishar walks the well beaten path of predictable adventure gaming, where as Stormmaster and Transarctica head off along some littletravelled and utterly ridiculous route involving going up steep hills, turning back on your self and going "Neep, neep" every 43rd step. They are very odd indeed.

So, in order of increasing silliness, let's start with Ishar. Your character starts out wandering around a mythical kingdom trying to get enough heroes together to boot out the bad guy. You've got four spaces to fill in your group, and about 30 characters to choose from, and a nice twist is that not all of them get on with each other. The graphics are lush, with detail fading with distance, but I found it a bit lumpy to play. There's just too much wandering around and it's so easy to get lost. And as for the fighting - Oh boy, not good I'm afraid. Six out of ten at best.

Entering the realms of daftitude is Stormmaster, which puts you in control of a council presiding over a land dominated by the force of the wind. It's a strategy - economic wargame type of thing, with lots of different things to do, all of them hard. For a start, the council are a fickle bunch, so unless you nurture each of them with care and attention, they'll desert and make your job a lot harder. Also, you've got to feed and entertain your cities while at the same time sending over flying boats to smash up the enemy. There's even an odd arcade sky battle game, making it a truly strange mish mash of styles, but I still reckon this is the best of the three, so I'll go for seven and a half out of ten related antics here.

And then there's Transarctica. I've played versions of this game several time now, and each time I do, it impresses me less and less. Set in an ice-locked future, you play the commander of a steam-powered super train, carving your way across the frozen land in search of a way of bringing the sun back, It's mostly a trading game, with an adventure story line thrown in, and it's plagued with all sorts of problems. Okay, so it looks fantastic, but after you've bought your transported it to Helsinki, or ground to factor far outweighs any enjoyment. A feeble four for this one, making this an above average compilation. But it only

Ishar's certainly going to keep you occupied for hours, but the other two are such oddities that you're either going to love or hate them. My pick of the bunch is Stormmaster, which you can buy direct from Daze for an astonishingly not-expensive £2.99, until Christmas anyway. An interesting, but in no way essential collection.

tiny blue critters turning into a mass of gnashing fangs, and Chuck blobbing around the screen. The walk-hit-walk rhythm is broken up by simple puzzles and friendly creatures who help you along, and a cheery time is had by all. On the down side, it's pretty linear, too easy and not that much happens really. Chuck Rock 2s main improvement over this is the subgames and faster pace, but there again,

Chuck Rock 2 isn't a tenner, is it? CAM WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

With games like this, Chuck Rock 2 and Wonder Dog, Core have developed a fantastic visual style for themselves. Chuck Rock's a sort of sparser version of its sequel, with less to do and less things happening. It's enjoyable but in a fairly linear and easy sort of way, and the only thing going for it rather than Chuck Rock 2 is the price, making it top quality bargain basement stuff.

DINOSAUR DETECTIVE AGENCY

Pulisher: Alternative Price: £16.99 Release: Out now

Deftly combining my two current passions, Dinosaur Detective Agency places you in command of a prehistoric Holmesian crimebuster called - side-splittingly -Sherlock Ness. With deerstalker, pipe and herbivorous grin, he must patrol the Dinosaur detectives feature in this latest dino-related game.

Where will it all end? Dino-soaps? Dinoflakes for breakfast? It's just too silly.

primeval mire rounding up rascally reptilian ruffians.

Alternatively: it's a platform game. There are platforms to walk about on. things to collect and baddies to jump over. And, er, that's it.

But let's stick with the first interpretation, as I'll never fill this box otherwise. And Sherlock Ness, as it turns out, is no ordinary dinosaur detective. He's actually 'the cleverest dinosaur this side of Jurassic Park' (apparently). He's got this great camera that can be pointed at baddies to temporarily blind them. And he can also dig tunnels underground where there are bits of soft earth. He'll find railway trucks to ride on, drippy things falling from the ceiling to dodge under, and coins to collect for bonus points.

An appraisal of the graphics is always important in this sort of thing. So, er, the graphics, then. They're sort of all right, I suppose. Not terrible, but not great. The sprites are all a bit small, and the choice of colours is drab, but Sherlock looks quite cute.

And the sound, of course. The sound effects are rather quiet and crap, and there's a completely-out-of-time-with-hisfeet footstep noise when Sherlock moves his walks about (his feet, in turn, being completely-out-of-time-with-the-speed-theground's-moving-at). The music's quite sweet, though - a sort of jolly, whistling tune - but I was compelled to turn it off after just 23 seconds (A new record for Jonathan nonetheless. - Ed).

But the success or failure of Dinosaur Detective Agency rests or falls, or course, on whether it's any good to play, and how long it'll last you.

And, although Dinosaur Detective Agency is aimed squarely at our old chum 'the younger player', I actually found it pretty tricky. There are a number of possible reasons for this, the most likely being that when it comes to playing games

Œ JONATHAN DAVIES Ш NO N THE BOTTOM LINE ۵ If you're after a rather cheap-looking 4 platform game with a dinosaur U dressed up as Sherlock Holmes in it, Σ where you only get one life and thus have to start again from from the beginning every time you die, fortune is smiling upon you. Aren't you lucky?

wandering around, that sort of thing. And then you start the game. It's simultaneous two-player action, with you playing either Bub or Bob, each armed with only a brightly coloured umbrella (Also known as a 'parasol', semantics fans - Ed) with which to stun the bad things. Once you've slapped them about, they turn a different colour (depending on which character got them) and look a bit, well, stunned really. At the point, all > you've got to do is scoop them up anto your brolly and chuck them at other nasties. If you take out one, then great, but if you can manage to rack up a few with one shot, then your score goes sky-high. As well as stunned enemies, the screen's dripping with other things to lob around, literally. Drops of water run all around the screen, giving some shallow justification as to why the little guys are armed with golfing umbrellas. By collecting five above you, they merge into a massive, super-drop. This can then be used to completely devastating effect by flushing baddies out from those hard-to-get-to corners of the screen.

There are eight worlds (Plus the PC Engine original's extra hidden worlds, plus a whole new secret one added by Ocean's programmers. - Ed), each made up of a handful of different levels, and after a few hours, my mediocre game-playing skills had got me through to the third world. This would seem to suggest that Parasol Stars isn't the world's hardest game, so maybe all you games demons will find it a bit of a pushover. Anyway, loath though I am to admit it, maybe it's only crap cute games that I don't like, not cute games in general. I can't believe I just said that.

CAM WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

Despite the complete lack of guns, bombs or flamethrowers, despite the fact that it's cute and fluffy and ever so 'pleasant,' I still like this lots. It's shockingly similar to (and better than) Bubble Bobble, and also has lots of Rodland thrown in as well. I'd personally go for Rodland if I only had enough cash for one of them, but since you can get both of 'em for less than a new release, I'd say that now's the time to get hassling people for Christmas prezzies.

I'm probably the least clever dinosaur this side of One Million Years BC.

In my defence, though, I could point out that the game features a really nasty bit where you've got to climb up the screen on a load of moving railway trucks, and if you fall off you drop all the way back down to the bottom and have to start again in a much worse mood. I hate bits like that. And some of the puzzles border on the obscure, like having to drop a block into a railway truck to start it moving, when all the other railway trucks seem to manage just fine without. And I've also been brought up (albeit unwillingly) on a diet of platform games where you can kill baddies by jumping on their heads, so it took me a while to work out my my early attempts at primordial puzzle-cracking seemed to end so prematurely. And - oh dear - you only get one life.

RB: G'day, and welcome to the Amiga Power Stadium for this review of the latest addition to the world of cricket sims. Here's Geoffrey.

GB: (clears throat) Good morning Richie, good morning everybody.

RB: Geoffrey, I understand you've been having a look at Graham Gooch's Second Innings. What do you think?

GB: It's sooper Richie, absolutely sooper. If there's any youngsters out there reading this magazine then they would do well to try and emulate this program's style. RB: In what way, Geoff?

GB: Soft hands, Richie, soft hands. It's been programmed with soft hands has this. It's quite literally an extension of the original game wi' all sorts of new features.

RB: So you need the original game in order to play this?

GB: Absolutely Richie.

RB: Can you tell us about the new features Geoffrey?

GB: Well they've updated the England Squad in line with the choices made by the selectors for the West Indian Tour, there's complete squads provided for all 18 county sides, including batting and bowling averages up 'til the end of this season, and best of all they've included five of the greatest matches of all time for you to load and enjoy. I myself particularly enjoyed re-living the 5th test of 1964 when my fellow yorkshireman Sir Frederick Trueman became the first bowler to ever take 300 test wickets. I myself was opening the batting in that test and I well recall that as I stepped up to the crease... RB: Er, yes, sorry to interrupt you there Boykers but this transmission is drawing to a close. Just one final question. Would you recommend that any younger players who might have tuned in should rush out and buy this game?

GB Absolutely. It's sooper is this.

INDIANAPOLIS 500

Publisher: Hit Squad Price: £12.99 Release: Out now

At one stage in its life, this racing sim qualified for pole positon on the starting grid of top driving games. It was so hot that our sister magazine Amiga Format proclaimed it as "The best race game money can buy". But that was quite a while ago. Inevitably as the technical prowess of the roadside programmers evolved, it was overtaken by the fabulously cool F1GP from MicroProse.

That being said, Indy 500 has many commendable features worth checking out. Especially considering the surge of interest in Indy racing over here, due in no small part to Mr Interesting, Nigel Mansell.

This type of racing depends much more on tactics and car configurations than Formula One racing. Indy 500 takes much of this control detail on board, steering a clear path between pedantry and playability.

For example, most software racing drivers are familiar with the tweaks you can make to change the characteristics of a car. With Indy, you get a descending checklist of parameters to change; wings, gears, shocks etc. The manual recommends that you change one parameter and drive a couple of practice laps until you become aware of the changes. Sceptics take note, once you've played the game enough to get to grips with the feel of the car, you really can notice the subtle improvements that your tinkering produces.

As soon as you're happy with the changes you've made, it's on to the qualifying section. You must drive at least four laps, the best time being the one which will decide your final placement. It's here that you find out that the infamous wall is very unforgiving to those essential pieces of equipment called tyres.

From qualification to racing and another of those nice little touches that ooze class in a finely tuned game. When overtaking, or being overtaken, the engine noise of your opposition gets louder and then gradually fades as you pass them (or indeed they pass you, perish the thought). Lovely stuff.

So there you go. The biggest limitation is that you only have one track to race on. It'll soon become as familiar as the back of your hand. Despite that, and despite the fact that F1GP is superior, racing fans everywhere who don't already own Indy 500 should be rushing out to the shops now to buy it. At a budget price of £12.99 there's no excuse for not owning it. And that holds true for F1GP drivers as well.

he Lords of Crappy Disk Installation Procedures more like. Being of a meek and mild disposition, I'm not normally one to complain. But after having had to skulk around the office and find nine – yes that's right, nine – blank disks, I found myself shouting "Surely that's a foul, ref?" As usual, the ref didn't listen and I found myself having to format said disks. And that isn't the end of the sad story.

Each of the game disks that you find in the box has an installation program which lets you choose whether or not to install the games on hard drive or floppies. It's sort of easy to implement, but with Perfect General you've actually got to use a Workbench disk to access the installation program. It takes a good 35 minutes for all of the files to decompress. Now maybe I'm getting Luddite-ish, but the last thing I want to be aware of when playing an Amiga game is the Amiga itself. The above rigmarole is the cerebral equivalent of violent physical assault.

So, japes and severe niggles aside, the actual games are; Red Baron: High in detail, low in gameplay. Somehow, you get the feeling that they've spelled the name of the game wrongly. It should have a silent BO at the beginning. Unless you have a 1200, or a more powerful Amiga, this game chugs along at less than a snalls pace. The frame update is so jerky that there really should be a photo sensitive epilepsy warning on the front of the box. Which is a shame really, because it does have the potential to be better than Knights of the Sky. Much more fun with an accelerated machine. Railroad Tycoon: Now you too can play at the being the equivalent of lan MacGregor. Oops, sorry, I've just mistaken this game for the real life BR privatisation equivalent Railroad Tyrant. But that's enough biting political satire. Railroad Tycoon was reviewed by us way back in the golden days of issue one. It's a multi-faceted management-cum-strategy game where the main aim is to build yourself the largest, most profitable railway in the land. Meantime, you have several competitors who are trying to do the same thing while trying to bankrupt you among other things. It's not a game for arcade freaks or those with little patience, but if this is the sort of game you like then you'll like this sort of game (sorry).

Silent Service II: Submarine sims are a seem about as exciting as rotten fish in your washing machine. But somehow, Silent Service II has a lure that will hook you as soon as you take the bait. Prowl the shark fin soup of the deep sea fish bowl and engage in several exciting missions. Fight the whole of World War 2 single finned. There are several dificulty options to make the sim as calm as a swimming pool or as difficult as a typhoon in the Pacific. Thoroughly recommended. The Perfect General: Well, I don't know what's perfect about it, but I can tell you it's not the installation procedure, and after the half-hour that takes it's still not self-booting.

The actual game is above average. Artificially intelligent moves are conspicuous by their absence and the graphics are very basic. Depite that, there's still plenty of meat in there for all you seasoned pros and green rookies alike.

STEVE MCGILL

This is a good value compilation targeted at a specific section of the Amiga market. The weakest link is Red Baron, unless, of course, you've got an accelerated machine.

Ah, yes it's that snowy time of year again isn't it? That special time of year when the little baby Jesus was born and light and joy came unto the world. Hurrah. We think the whole world should share in the joy and you can do your part too. So keep writing in and making this letters page the brightest and best in Britain. Hosannah!

"DISQUIETING BUTCHERY OF THE ENGLISH"

Dear AMIGA POWER.

I want to reply to the letter you printed from Michelle Austin regarding problems with Legends Of Valour.

I too had problems, and it turns out that the game just won't work on the chipset of some A500s. I eventually went to US Gold and got a refund, after two months of having the game. They also put me on hold and sent me replacements before I got anywhere.

I sympathise with Michelle's problem and nearly wrote to AMIGA POWER at the time, and I now think that this is a problem that should be exposed as I feel US Gold are in the wrong for selling a game which they know doesn't work on all machines.

They should have at least made some sort of statement that it doesn't work instead of eventually admitting it to me after several phone calls (expensive daytime ones) to Birmingham. This lowers my opinion and certainly my trust of US Gold.

I was enjoying the game and from what I saw of it, it was very good. Not being able to finish it has convinced me that I won't be buying any US Gold games

Yours faithfully, Fiona MacLeod, Glasgow

"SOME TECHNOPHOBIC OLD JOURNO"

I have collected your excellent mag ever since issue one, but until now have never felt compelled to write.

As we all know, certain members of the tabloid press upset the gaming community by predicting that we are bringing up a generation of killers because we play violent games. This kind of narrow-minded sensationalism was always going to worry parents and damage the video game industry, but to make matters worse, they have now begun to target specific people, namely yourself and Sensible Software.

Earlier this week, the Daily Star ran a story about one of the most eagerly awaited games of the year, Cannon Fodder. It stated that using a poppy in the game was a mark of disrespect and they also featured the cover of your December issue. The only comment printed in defence was a line quoted by a Virgin Entertainment spokesman.

Obviously the journalist responsible had not done very much research before attacking one of the most respected software developers. One only needs to read your numerous previews and indepth preview features to see that the Sensible guys have gone to the trouble of naming each character and showing a roll of honour in the hope of making the players feel guilty when losing troops.

I'm sure that a number of readers will feel as angry as I am when they read of another attack on Amiga gamers. I sincerely hope that either yourselves or Sensible feel strongly enough to make a stand, as it would be a great shame if the sales of AMIGA POWER or Cannon Fodder were to be affected by the misguided rantings of some technophobic

Dear purveyors of finely formed computerorientated literature and foamy frissons of frustratingly delightful yet interesting prose, the contents of which I must liken to the feeling one gets after consuming low-quality foreign alcohol in extensive quantities and then subjecting oneself to witness the aural equivalent of a ripely premeditated fist in the groinal regions by the simply overwhelming 'indie pop' group that bestows upon itself the appellation of 'Madder Rose.' (ah, yes I think I see)

How're y'all doing? I must profusely thank you for printing a letter of mine in Issue 30 - I was shocked you considered it worthy of publication! So why am I writing again, so soon after my last attempt at getting across ideas I find worthy of attention? I ask myself. Then I studiously ponder this interesting question and indulge in copious amounts of chin throttling activities hoping that this will in some way aid my powers of deleterious reasoning and engender possibilities for conclusionist statements. Lost? I am! basically, after having read a few copies of your fine periodical, I have noticed the lack of something, and a worrying trend. The latter 'problem' is that of the 'worrying' trend as I have already mentioned, which manifests itself in the similarity of approach to each review of the games. Stuart Campbell's style and approach are the exception, maybe it's because of his brilliantly correct and blatantly marvellous preference for decent music - perhaps listening to groups like 'The Breeders' does some irreversible 'damage' to parts of the brain that control creativity and ingenuity, I don't know.

The problem, as I see it, is of the conceptual approach to reviewing that some of the contributors attempt.. and fail miserably at. Okay, you want to present reviews in a different style, sure that's understandable. You don't want every review to sound the same, naturally, otherwise the readership will get bored, write and complain, and then switch off. In that order. But some people are just writing unreadable, uninspiring trash for reviews. Surely you want to convey your impression of the game in question and try and capture the spirit of the game, whether it be positive or negative. Not try to wallow in infantile wording and languish in the lugubrious pit of perfidious puerility - although I do sympathise with Cam Winstanley as he obviously had quite a lot on his proverbial plate in Issue 31.

I, however, would be quite willing to share this troublesome and profoundly enervating, thankless task which leads me into the former 'problem,' the palpable lackage of which I earlier wrote. The lack of really well or differently constructed articles. You may think of this as a not so serious thing yet I am of the belief that articles employing unusual word usage (although not articles that are totally 'out there,' I must stress) would much enhance the enjoyment. What I would like to see is an extension of the sharp surrealist humour

Perhaps an injection of fiery invective and opinionation might not go amiss. You all seem like you're too nice! I want to be able to imagine veritable rivers of blood flowing if a game is considered to be truly awful, or rivers of gold if the

I would like to think that I've had a great deal of games playing experience and I've a vast enthusiasm for playing good games and I have my own ideas as to what constitutes a good or a bad game. I like to think that I'm eloquent and creative and would dearly love to be given the chance to express my ideas in my own particular style. If you're at all interested in hearing or reading strangely surreal and disquieting butchery of the English language then let me know, I can provide! Your bunny and mine, Neil Cully, Edgbaston

PS My love-princess is diminished O how this ails me thus Her heart's desire is finished Wrapped up in wanton plush My thoughts of her are pure and crisp Her lips are warm and tender As fleet as white-winged sailing ships I whip her with my belt Yoiks. What do YOU think, readers? Want to read lots more like this? If you do, write and tell us, and we'll see what happens. AMIGA POWER is an equal opportunities employer.

GAME MUSIC CD WINNER

Hello Mortals

Please print this letter as I am a poor lonely orphan abandoned at birth by the host of the ever-popular ITV gameshow host Catchphrase. That's right, I am Roy Walker's illegitimate son. I was taken to the orphanage and named Nigelmansellsratherbushymustache. One morning I woke up and had an urge to shout "I WONDER IF THERE WILL BE A MONKEY ISLAND THREE?" For this, I was severely punished and locked away in a cellar for 40 days, but this did not cure me, and soon afterwards I yelled "WHEN WILL CYBERRACE BE RELEASED?" After further punishment I was still not cured and I was heard having a conversation with myself that went something like this: "I wonder when there is going to be a game of Terry Pratchett's excellent Discworld series."

"Yes, or the BBC's only good sitcom, Red Dwarf." "Hmm, an interesting thought there."

"Yes, I thought so."

I went to see the doctor and he prescribed a night out with Cilla Black and he told me that the only cure was to write in to Britain's best Amiga magazine.

From Nigelmansellsbushymustache, Reading.

"INCREASINGLY AGONIZING TORTURE"

Dear AP

In response to Lars Erik Johnsrod's ridiculous letter in AP31, I would just like to point out that the game most women would like to see is one in which Norwegian misogynists are put through numerous levels of increasingly agonizing torture before dying a slow and horrific death. A similar fate should also be meted out to those who take in vain the name of the greatest book ever written. So it looks like Lars is doubly dead.

Can I have his address now please? I've got the hit squad on standby. Yours lividly, Kate Flannagan, Worthing

"I AM WRITING ABOUT"

To AMIGA POWER,

I am writing about a computer stand/work base project and I would be greatful if you could send me some information. Yours thankfully,

Andrew Barker, Plymouth

"SPINE IS COMING APART"

Dear Aunty AMIGA POWER,
I've got a problem. The other week, I lent my Syndicate to my friend along with the box and manual. When he gave it back to me a week later, the box was generally bashed and the manual looked as if it had been folded about ten times and the spine is coming apart.

What do I do? He's one of my best friends so I don't want to offend him. Please help!

Paul Stuart, Leicester

What are you, a man or an amoeba? Raincoat - check! Shotgun - check! Go, go, go! Enforce the will of the Corporation with a steely fist! You wuss.

"INFINITELY MORE DIFFICULT"

Dear friends of AMIGA POWER Just bought Frontier (my wife's gonna flay me senseless) and there's no copy protection so I made backups - good. Hard disk installable - even better. Game play well, read on.

Hands up who remembers 'Guru

Meditation' messages. Those appeared when I flew to a start system and the message 'arrived in vicinity of target' popped up. So I've sent the originals back to Gametek (if I took the game back to where I bought it they'd just replace it with another that'd have the same bugs - trust me, it's happened before) and am now playing from my back-ups. And there's more. (come closer.)

Why does the autopilot crash you into a planet's surface or space station 50% of the time? Is this right? Or just another bug? What do you think? Your views would be much appreciated. Still, having forked out thirty quid, I'm going to give the game a good going over before it's resigned to the 'won't play again' pile.

I would have thought that these bugs would have been rectified before the game's release. It's not as if it took weeks of playing to find them - they happened on my first play! So, if you're reading David Braben, what say you? And is space combat infinitely more difficult than the original Elite, or am I a complete saddo?

Yours, slightly niggled and perhaps should have waited for your review, Rob Forsdyke (he who likes eating a lot) from Bromley

'HOW CAN A STUPID NORWEGIAN"

HI AP.

What is a guy with a name like Lars Erik Johnsrod doing trying to understand the female psyche? 99 percent of the female population don't understand the female who points out how many words he's put in his letter begin to comprehend what goes on inside their minds? Go back to playing Heimdall, you sexist nerd. Yours, Stuart (Although I'm anti-sexist that doesn't stop me fancying Linda) Granger, Mates 'big' Kebab Shop, London psyche, so how can a stupid Norwegian

Er, yes. Thankyou for your liberal insights into the true nature of women. Linda is very excited by the prospect of perhaps meeting you one day, maybe.

"WRITING THIS FROM DENMARK"

To all at AMIGA POWER
I won the Lost Vikings competition and I'm writing this from Denmark. I'm having a great time. I hope Linda is feeling really well.

Love, Colin Parfitt, Copenhagen

Aw. Thanks, Colin.

"DRAW SOME CAKES AND THINGS IN"

Dear AMIGA POWER, If someone makes a grammatical or spelling error these days, they're looked upon as being uneducated, but what most people don't realise is that the English language itself is riddled with inconsistencies. Take for example the word 'won't' - 'wo not'? Shouldn't that be willn't for will not? Inevitably you're going to argue that won't sounds better than willn't but that's only because you're used to saying the word won't . Sorry, I'm going on a bit, aren't I? I'm not here to talk about the English language, no, I'm here to talk about AMIGA POWER and games in general. Phew, I'm glad that's decided.

write thing

It must be great fun for you lot thinking up those call-outs from letters. I bet rival mags are fuming with jealousy for not thinking of the idea first.

Okay then, to make your life easier, here are some potentially classic call-outs for you to include above my letter and make me look silly. 'The pie goes left' or 'Fish then, eh?' or even 'Fire those watches!' Hope these help.

Now, if you're a little short on cash, here's a quick guide to making big bucks fast. Sit down at your Amiga and think of some really original ideas for a new game. Second thoughts, don't bother - write a platform game instead. I mean, they sell loads and don't require too much effort, so you're laughing.

Now try to replicate Sonic the Hedgehog as accurately as you possibly can, not forgetting to take away some of the graphics and replacing them with sweets, etc. Alter some of the enemy sprites, replace Sonic's atmospheric tunes with some inappropriate heavy metal trash and you're halfway there.

Now comes the tricky part - thinking up a new character and a name. Obviously you can't have a hedgehog, a frog, an Italian plumber, a cat, a coyote or a fish, because someone's already used these. This leaves... a hamster. No, you couldn't have that because it would be too silly. Ah, I know, what about an ant? They're easy to draw too, so no problems there. The name? How about Adam Ant? No, it doesn't sound catchy enough. Zool, perhaps? Yes, that'd be great. Now you can make jokes about him being 'cool' and how you can't 'fool' him - perfect!

The marketing side would be simple -

Then once lots of copies have been sold, convert it to other formats so that more cash would pour in. A1200 version? No problem! Add a couple of sound effects, draw some cakes and things in Deluxe Paint and you can market it as a super-enhanched A1200 version. And there you have it - instant cash.

"ADIOS AMIGA AMIGOS'

Dear AMIGA POWER, Enclosed you will find my subsciption renewal slip. I have decided not to renew my subscription and felt that you should know why.

Last year's renewal cost £76.75, this year it costs £96.85. A 20 quid increase, yet the mag still has the same £3.50 cover price. What's happened to justify this increase? Don't tell me quality has gone up, because frankly it hasn't. There are less game reviews and more filler. The decrease in games is certainly beyond your control, but instead of running the mag with less pages and charging less, you insist on filling the extra pages with what I'm sure you realize is just waste. As well as this, the coverdisks have been abysmal and certainly haven't warranted any price increase.

So why am I asked to pay this 20% increase? It beats me, and considering that I'm a full-time university student and typically low on cash, I simply can't afford to pay it. Period.

I would like to thank you for making me laugh the odd time, and wish you all the best of luck.

Adios Amiga Amigos, Dallas James Parker, Winnipeg, Canada

I don't suppose there's much point in replying to this, Dallas James, since you won't be reading it, but I'm going to anyway. You're right about there being less games, but the idea that simply lopping 20 pages off the size of the magazine when they're a bit thin on the ground would reduce the price by any significant amount is just silly. After all, we don't get any more expensive at Christmas when we've got 32 pages more than, say, the August issue, do we? You might save 12p or so in the summer months, but do you really think that'd be a good deal for maybe 40 pages less magazine? And you're just totally wrong about the coverdisks, too - Stardust Tunnel, Defender, Skidmarks, Yo! Joe!, F117A, the whole of Graham Gooch Cricket? They're some of the most popular disks we've ever had, and you're definitely in a minority if you don't like 'em. As for the price hike, we're sorry about that (it IS ridiculously steep), but the Post Office have recently increased their International Mail Charges by a vast percentage, and there's just no way we can absorb the cost. Take it up with them, Dallas James.

"A FAR INFERIOR MACHINE WILL SELL'

I took the liberty of calling you Stu as I now believe us to be close pals after you agreed to give me your hallowed autograph at the Future Entertainment Show, remember? Thought not. Well, I've been trying to get round to writing to my favourite mag on this particular subject since the summer, but have never got round to it. The prime reason for writing, apart from getting my name in print, is that I'm a worried man, I worry about a lot of things and one of my worries is my computer - an A600. An A600 that I joyfully received last Christmas only to find that I had still not invested in the most hitech home computer equipment, I'd been beaten by the arrival of the A1200 not two months after the A600. I was gutted, as I'm sure A1200 owners are at the arrival of the CD32, but it's alright for them as Commodore are developing a new CD ROM attachment giving the A1200 the same CD potential - Great. I think not, this little piece of kit costs £330, 30 guid more than the CD32 itself. Why this is, I don't know, additional software - nope, any real reason - nope, ridiculous - yup! Somebody please sort this out!

By the way, the CD32 just won't catch on at this rate, it's got excellent potential, but it's hardly being pushed onto greater things by Commodore - advertising is at a minimum outside Amiga magazines and as I see it, the Mega-CD, a far inferior machine, will sell far more this Christmas than CD32 because of the fact that Commodore don't seem to be sure of the CD32's success, and if the makers aren't certain, then the punters sure as hell won't be. Ultimately, this means that the CD32 ain't gonna sell. Commodore need to establish a grip on their new territory of the console market, and they've got to remember that 3DO is just around the corner and that CD-i isn't looking as shabby as it used to be.

Philip Aboud, Surrey

PS Stuart Campbell - Sensible Soccer my place - any time. I'll play you and you'll never know what hit you!

THE PRICE IN AUSTRALIAN DOLLARS' Dear AMIGA POWER

1 am 2 months behind your mag. I collect it every month. Could you give me some info on Toyota Celica GT Rally. I have wanted it ever since it come out so could you please tell me the price in Australian dollars could you tell em about a meg and a bit people say that 16 bit is 1 Meg is it true is it true that Mortal Kombat and Lemmings 3 is coming out and I might buy the CD console for the Amiga could you give me some info

Yours truelly (sic) Aaron Smith, Australia

Well Aaron, the only information you need to know is that you should really pack your Amiga away and ask for more homework. Here's an important fact to start you off: A sentence is a number of words making a complete grammatical structure. In writing, they generally begin with a capital letter and end with a full stop.

We hope this helps. We really do.

112 AND MY BROTHER IS 14'

Dear AP

Me and my friends all have Amigas and we all read your brill mag. We are all very keen on writing games and so we have decided to form a sort of company. As well as making games, we would like to make some money out of this. We would like to make our games shareware but we don't know how to get involved in it and we don't know if there are any legal age limits. We are all 11 but are soon 12, and my brother is 14. I have taken a lot of time and effort to write this letter so please could you print it and answer the following questions.

- 1. Do you have to be a certain age to publish in shareware?
- 2. Will it cost a lot of money to get started? 3. How can me and my friends get
- 4. How much will we make out of this? Yours faithfully, Ben Thomas, Chigwell
- 1. There are three ways to get your games into circulation, and none of them have an age limit: through PD libraries, using modem bulletin boards or by sending them to magazines and hoping they put them on their cover disks.
- 2. Only the price of a disk.
- 3. Writing some games sounds like a good idea to me.
- 4. Profits depend on how good the game is, obviously. Ex-Prod Ed Dave Green's younger (and better looking) brother wrote a game called Extreme Violence which was on AP24's cover disk. The full version was sold through PD libraries and he made about £500 from it, all of which just goes to show that computers can be useful after all.

See? We can be helpful if we put our minds to it. We are just the most wonderful human beings, when you stop and think

'POOR SALES ON PIRATES'

Hi, So the CD32 arrives and I'd like to express my disbelief in the attitude of most computer games manufacturers. They complain bitterly about piracy, then along comes a new, virtually pirate-proof format, and they sit on their laurels and wait to see if it sells. If they cared about their future, they should convert all their good games to the CD format NOW. The games don't need massive upgrading to make use of the CD32's custom chips, I heard a rumour that a good game is based on good game play! What the CD32 needs is games to make it sell. Sure it will cost them in the short term, but in the long term we'll all be better off, Maybe then they won't blame their poor sales on pirates and be forced to make sure that games are worthy of release, and we in turn will be treated to a new generation of games and conversions of great stuff like Day Of The Tentacle

Cheers, Paul Duncan, London

A good point, although at AMIGA POWER we'd like to see more original games for the CD32 as well as conversions

AND ANOTHER THING...

What is the inestimable Sir Geoff up to at the moment? David Marshall, Bluff, New Zealand

We gave Sir Geoffrey a ring on your behalf, David, and he revealed exclusively to us the exciting news that he's working on a new racing game for MicroProse, to come out on the Amiga and PC sometime in the future. Other details were a bit too Top Secret for him to tell us, but keep watching the skies.

SYSTEM MESSAGE Volume EARTH: is 98% full Please delete anyone you can

What qualifications do you need to become an AP staff writer. Please tell me. David Considine, Ireland

You need to be able to put question marks at the end of questions for a start,

Why do you print the NEXT MONTH preview on the back cover, it's hardly noticable. Why don't you splash out and make a whole extra page to your mag by making something of the NEXT MONTH bit. I hate to say it, but some other mags do!

Grant Stevenson, Lichfield

What, you'd like a whole page of us flapping around not having any idea what's going to be in the mag next month, occasionally taking a wild optimistic guess and ending up being hopelessly wrong anyway? You weirdo, Grant.

HOW TO WRITE A LETTER TO AMIGA POWER

It's that time of year again where we prompt all you quill-merchants out there to scroll out something birotastic. We've found that this is simply the best way of getting you to send lett-rs by the lorry load, packed full of great quotes, interesting arguments and all manner of zany silliness, is to tell you what not to write about. It's a sad fact that we still get loads of letters complaining that certain review marks were too high or low, and that games are too expensive, and do you know where these end up? Dulltown, Binsville, that's where. All you've got to do is interest, entertain, and maybe even surprise us, and we'll shower you with games and T-shirts, whatever's hanging round the office, really.

It's A Good Idea To Write About These Things:

1. Anything that no one's ever talked about before.

Ever. Never ever.

2. How AMIGA POWER could help with world peace by getting members of various warring factions to agree to wide ranging talks.

3. Anything that you think would change the magazine for the better, whether it's a new idea for a feature, or anything that would immensely improve all our usual stuff.

4. Anything that's funny and original. Preferably great one liners that we can steal and say are ours.
5. Well thought out personal opinions on the world in general. If they're one-sided, abusive and inflammatory - great. If our legal department allows us to actually print them - even better.

 Being Llars Erik Johnsrød is a good idea. We like nothing more than publishing the misogynistic rantings of some twit Norwerian who was educated at the University Of No Girlfriend, Oslo. Oh yes.

Letters Including These Things Will Only Give Stuart A Headache And Make Him Irritable, Forcing A Heavy Cloud Of Gloom To Hover Over The AP Offices: 1. Piracy. Dull.

2. Game prices. Dull to the power dull.

3. Asking for a free copy of a game. People who do this should be taken to the car park and have a photocopier dropped on their head from on high, their final, agonised features recorded in grainy black and white on A4, as both Xerox and victim simultaneously meet their end (Steady on - Ed.)

4. Signing your name with only an initial, like you were writing to your MP or something. We hate this, and feel that anyone who is this stuck up and posh deserves scorn and castigation to be poured onto them. We will therefore continue our campaign of giving them a stupid name beginning with the initial that they consider on-so-important until this practice is wiped off the face of the Earth.

5. Complaining about the scores given in reviews wins no friends at this end. You think you can do better? Well, we don't, and neither do our employers. That's why you have to buy games whereas we get paid to play them. Ha ha ha.

6. It's always a good idea to make sure that you can write BEFORE you send us a letter. If a letter contains particularly appalling grammar and punctuation, we love to type in every single mistake, just to make you look stupid. If you can't write or spell properly, why not get an adult to help you?

7. Saying 'I bet you won't print this' is a self-fulfilling prophecy, because we won't, even if it's a great letter. Out of spite.

Got that? As a special jump start to our all-new letters page, absolutely everyone who gets a letter printed next month will get a free game. Okay, so they might be four years old but there again it could well be a fab new release, so make sure to mention if you've got a CD32. Go for it.

COMPO WINNERS AMIGA POWER

Yup, it's that time of the month when I get to rant on a bit. You know, some people are just so stupid, so moronically, intrinsically dumb. No sooner have we managed to stop people sending compo entries inside sealed envelopes than they go off and disobey our concise, precise and ohso-easy to understand instructions. Take 'smallest thing' Micro Machines compo, we said "tech heads who inform us that it's a sub-atomic particle will be binned instantly" and what happens? We get this in from Ashton Under Lyme:

The smallest thing I can think of is a neutron. It is an elementary particle of about the same mass as a proton, but without an electric charge.

Note that there was no name or address, that's the level of stupidity we're dealing with here. I sometimes wonder if you actually want to win at all. Anyway, in order of cleverness, here go the winning answers to the question "What's the smallest thing you can think of?"

Stuart Gidden from Peterborough wins a full-sized pool table with this entry.

The change of me eating some chins.

 The chance of me eating some chips when I'm allergic to eating chips and come out in a nasty rash when I get within a mile radius of some chips.

David Arnholm from Denmark gets a collapsible sand pit (sand not included) with his attempt.

 My chances of winning this compo. I mean, now that you've said an answer like this won't win, my chances of winning really are tiny.

To go with his packet of Sugar Puffs, Matthew Bennett from Surbiton also gets a copy of the fabbest racing game for ages, Micro Machines.

- A Micro Machines driver's pool table pool ball.

Missing the big time by a fraction, this lot all get a copy of Micro Machines from Codemasters. And what fortunate folk they are.

Mark Dennis from Dyfed -Graham Taylor's Trophy Collection Colm Healy from Dublin

 My pocket money after I buy your mag, which is five quid over here, you know. Five bloody quid, rant, rant...

Moray Binfield from Rothwell

Timothy Thornton from South Shields
- The amount of need for UK Gold on Sky TV when the BBC only ever shows

Steven Balls from West Wickham

- The chance of no one in your office making some sort of joke at my surname.

Kay Blair from Kilmarnock

Adam Leachman from Welton

Those who entered this stood a good chance of winning a skeleton, silver, a chest and copies of Kompart's fabby platformer Yo! Joe! Well, those who not only filled in the cartoon strip, but also bothered to include their addresses did. All the rest are just lan Campbell from Dane End amused us with his clever 'Hi, ho, silver lining' caption, so he gets, quite literally, a skeleton for his closet.

Kris Goodwin from Poole gets a chest stocked full of silver (or something like that) for his amusing line about Joe's jacket making his arms contract in a silly manner, and everyone else mentioned wins a copy of Yo! Joe!

Scene: Rio de Janeiro, November 1988. On finding the corpse of Mafia boss Juan Cornetto in her shower, starlet Cherie Trifle screams, three times... then hears a noise behind her. Stumbling towards her over a pile of 3.5" PD disks is a bloody Dave Golder...

WILLY'S HUMUNGOUS Mostly Harmless Software

Like most PD games the WHA is the intro screen, but since it's such a good game we thought we'd print it to grab your attention Unfair! I can't see his cards.

PD Soft

This is the kind of card game I like, basically because I'm crap at card games and the skill level in this is virtually zilch. It's also one in which playing against the computer is, gasp, more challenging that playing against a human opponent. That's because it's all about speed, something computers are peculiarly good at.

Basically you have some cards and so does the computer, and you both have to get rid of them as quickly as possible by dumping them on two piles in the middle of the playing area. You can only get rid of cards by placing them on cards which are worth one more or one less. And that's it.

Simple, sure, but darned addictive. And on the hardest level the computer is next to impossible to beat. I reckon it cheats.

VERDICT: Fits neatly in the 'if you have a spare few minutes...' category. RATING: ***

Plots to computer games are rarely Booker Prize-winning material. They're usually the last thing to be grafted on and made to fit the gameplay gimmick and the design. Which is probably why the instructions to Willy's Humungous Adventure give up trying to concoct any kind plot after a couple of lines.

I mean, what is the point in trying to justify what appears to be about a disembodied head floating around picking up jewels and trying to avoid bombs? None, really; and the game doesn't suffer through the absence of some sub-fantasy, trying-hard-to-befunny plot explanation filled with appalling grammar and bad spilling.

The gimmick here is that the disembodied head (I wonder if it's anything like the decapitated heads they used to use as balls in the ball court at those Mayan ruins I visited in Mexico recently?) is mouse-controlled, and once he starts shifting, he's hard to stop. Yep, it's that inertia element again. Gentle nudges and precision control are the keys to success here. It's a bit like picking your way on a bike through rush-hour traffic in Mexico City: one false move and you're dead.

The levels start off with wide-open spaces so you can get used to the controls, but pretty soon you're required to pilot your decapitated sprite through gaps with only millimetres to spare. And to make matters worse there is a very strict time limit on every level. But hey, it's not all bad news: there are loads of pick-ups to be swiped if you reckon you've got the time to spare to go for them.

RATING: The controls are a bit fiddly, but if you're the patient, determined sort this ain't at all bad. But like Tsch (below) it could do with a bit more variety in the graphical stakes.

PD Soft

VERDICT: ***

THEY BOTHER?

More vertically-scrolling nightmares from the vaults of Shoot-'Em-Up Construction Kit.

PD Soft

Xenon 3 - written using SEUCK? Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! Ha ha! Hudry hur hur, chortle, snicker, larf, larf! Ho, ho, ho! Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! Ha, ha! Ha! Splutter! Sorry, this is a joke isn't it?

VERDICT: Possibly the worst SEUCK game ever written. If it is supposed to be a joke, it's not very funny.

RATING: Minus *

KYNOSTON K

Hey, a new concept in SEUCK games. Let the player walk for miles without meeting any baddies. Like wow, man. It's a bit late for the Jurassic Park bandwagon as well.

VERDICT: Please, please, please, please, please, please, please STOP! (Did I mention I went on holiday to Mexico, by the way?)

be much better disposed towards if someone wasn't expecting me to pay up for the privilege. As pure PD it would have had a certain charm, but it's certainly not worth paying anything more than the postage for.

Shareware £5

Basically you pilot an arrowshaped spaceship along a vertically scrolling screen spearing diamonds along the way. You need to spear a specific number of diamonds on

This is one of those games I would each level to progress to the next. The task is made trickier by blocks which you have to avoid crashing into. And, following time-honoured tradition, the further you get into the game, the more blocks there are and the trickier it is to

But that's not all. The ship conforms to the laws of inertia. Well, actually, it doesn't so much conform to them as pay lip service, but it is an element you have to take into account when you are controlling the ship, because if you move up or down too quickly you can end up bouncing all over the screen. It's an intriguing little game, but the emphasis is on 'little'.

After some initial interest it becomes rapidly repetitive and very dull. Even more variation in the colour scheme would have helped, though that gold did bring back memories of the sunsets over the caribbean coast of Mexico. (One more Mexico reference and you don't get paid - Ed.)

VERDICT: Vaguely interesting in an 'I don't think I'll bother with the shareware fee' sort of a way.

KLAWZ BEETL

17-Bit

Remember what I was saying about plots? Well here's a perfect example of when you wonder why they bothered. Klawz is a cat whose girlfriend has been kidnapped by the evil Billy Bender, and so Klawz must battle through five worlds avoiding Robodogs and collecting things. If you change the names, that could cover about 99 per cent of all PD platform games.

What we've got is a bog-standard AMOS-created platformer starring a cat that looks like a fox, wandering around under-designed levels and suffering from a bad case of uncontrollable-itis. Your weapon is a truncheon of some sort for no adequately explained reason (but since when has any gameplay gimmick been adequately explained?) which stuns the Robodogs for a few seconds.

It's not completely awful but it is incredibly uninspired. Like Beetle it offers nothing new in the gameplay department, but unlike Beetle it doesn't bother to make up for this in the presentation stakes.

VERDICT: Standard platform stuff. A tired version of a tired format

RATING: **

17-Bit Shareware £5

I always wanted to own a VW Beetle. I thought they were dead cool (give or take the odd Herbie movie). But that all changed when I finally got to drive one in Mexico recently. (Right! You're cashless! - Ed.) Okay, so it was Mexican-built and probably not as good as the Teutonic originals, but the experience was hellish - sluggish steering, gears more grungey than a Seattle garage band, spongey brakes. No wonder I ran over that cyclist.

Which unfortunately led to a violent Pavlovian reaction when I loaded up this game and decided I was going to hate it before the title screen had faded. Against these unfair odds, the game managed to win me over

In essence, the remainder of this review will probably sound like a summary of my Globdule review issue: Beetle is a cutesy platform game in which you have to bounce on the baddies and collect fruit; it has fewer original ideas that the last series of Red Dwarf; but who cares, because it's been done in such style and with an 'everything plus the kitchen sink' approach that means the whole is considerably more than the sum of its parts.

You control a beetle which has to work its way through a series of screens, rescuing a specific number of grubs on each and reaching the teleport exit. Okay, so that sounds like a thousand other games, but Beetle really is one of the best. The screens are brilliantly designed both in terms of graphics and the way they need to be solved: most of the screens require a cunning combination of puzzling and joystick dexterity to complete.

At first the solutions are obvious. but pretty soon you'll have to shift your brain up a gear (I wish I hadn't used that metaphor... the memories are rushing back). Between each screen there's a fruit machine-like affair: if it stops on three frogs, you go into a frog-blasting sub-game. This alone is darned good fun.

So what have we got? Great graphics, excellent controls, polished presentation, addictive gameplay, intelligent puzzling, two-player mode... the lot, really. Well, not quite. You need to pay the £5 shareware fee for the whole package, which includes 200 screens and three more sub-games. Well worth it, I reckon.

VERDICT: A stylish platformer, just the sort of game I love, so don't be surprised if I give it five stars.

RATING: ****

Get three fruits in a row on the inter-level fruit machine and you get to a bonus game version of Asteroids ever, it's still a highly-playable slice of software.

The gimmick in this version (I think gimmick must be my word of the month) (I thought it was Mexico - Ed) is that your ship is always on the move. There seems to be a gravity well to the bottom right of the screen which keeps pulling you in, so trying to control your ship is a bit like playing Thrust. To be honest, I'm not sure whether this adds anything to the game: it seems to be more frantic at first, but I reckon the effect is primarily an illusion.

The graphics are functional, but a bit muddy, the controls are responsive, it's got all that stuff like shields, a radar and wrap-around screen and, for some odd reason, it bares its code at you during the intro screen like it's got no shame. Bizarre.

VERDICT: Asteroids for non-purists. RATING: ***

17-Bit

Let's get straight to the point here this is Othello. So why it's called Nemesis, I don't know. When PD versions of Cluedo or Monopoly come out they don't call them Inspector Plod or Real Estate or Tedious Board Game That Goes On For Centuries or something. So why does Othello always have its name changed? Although I admit Nemesis is a darned sight better than the incredibly crass Reversi which it's more often known as.

So, what's this version like? Well, in two player mode it's quite a viable alternative to that oh-so tiring task of having to get the box out and place the counters vourself. And it does look pretty impressive. But in one-player mode it's hopeless. I'm not a good Othello player, but I beat it on the hardest level the first couple of times I played.

Oh, and I think the timer idea is stupid as well. It's supposed to be a strategy game. You're supposed to think about it.

VERDICT: "Two-player good, one-player bad." Snowball, Animal Farm by George Orwell.

Thursday
January 6!

In the last days of the 20th Century, noone would have believed that every Amiga game of the past year had been scrutinised, examined and reviewed. But we've done it. Blue ones are new ones, red ones are recommended. Okay?

THE BOTTOM LINE

(AND HOW TO UNDERSTAND IT)

* Excellent  Nearly there  Very good

 Has its moments  Flawed * Dire

The whole point of The Bottom Line is to cram as much information as possible into this small space. Here's how it works...
The top bit is easy:
GAME NAME
Bubblisher, Price

Then we get (just for your information reality) the issue of AMIGA POWER in which the game was originally reviewed, the mark it got at the time, and the reviewer's initials. If the game appeared in our new All-Time Top 100 its position comes next, followed by the mini-review and a final rating out of five stars (with red ones to show which ones are real "must buys"). And there you have it – all you could ever possibly need to know about just about every full price game you're even slightly likely to think about buying.

1869 Flair Software £29,99

Powerfully complex high seas trading sim set in, you've guessed it, 1869.
Easy to get into, generally fantastic for strategy fans and history-of-shipping enthusiasts, but otherwise just a little bit dull from a visual action

3D CONSTRUCTION KIT 2 Domark £49.99

This is a games creation utility which gives you the power to put together your own 3D environments and make games out of them. This version gives you extra features not found on the first, like the ability to add sound effects, support for spheres and a disk full of clip art. It's quite hard to get into the programming, but it's still a lot easier than other languages and a neat way to get into creating 3D

ABANDONED PLACES 2 ICE £34.99

AP27 58% TN
Follow-up to (surprise, surprise) Abandoned Places 1, this is fairly standard RPG fare. It's big, It's easy to control and it looks great, but in the end, you'll find that the diskswapping and copy-protection-code-demanding really get in the way of your fantasy enjoyment. Competent, but hardly outstanding. ★★

A-TRAIN Ocean £34.99

AP24 82% RL Top 100 No.81 Slow-paced but thoroughly engrossing god sim, where you build up towns around a fledgling train network. Stunning graphics and gameplay so deep you'd probably break your ankle if you fell into it. A visually attractive strategy game – now there's something you don't see every day.

ALFRED CHICKEN Mindscape £25.99

AP31 70% JD
One of the top characters from the Nintendo Game Boy survives the transition by becoming one of the Arriiga's cutest characters. He clucks, he stuts, he dives headfirst into the ground, but apart from these amusing poultry manoeuvres.
Altred's stuck firmly in predictable platform land, where bad guys hate it if you jump on their heads, and spiky balls twirt around on the end of long chains. Fun? Well yes, but in a fairly traditional sort of way.

ALIEN3

Acclaim £25.99

AP22 85% GP Top 100 No.38
Not a totally accurate representation of the third in the Alien saga, but it does capture the feel of the Alien films in general and, more importantly, it's a great game. A platform blast-'em-up that's not particularly original but provides loads of fun and atmosphere. Good stuff. (I really liked the film, but no-one else seemed to. — Dave) * * * * *

ALIEN BREED 2 Team 17 £29.99

AP32 61% CW
It's Allien Breed 1 only bigger, better and much, much harder. From an overhead viewpoint you guide your character around a maze of futuristic buildings collecting instruments of death and destruction and using them on the aliens. Loud noises and lots of splatter and gore add to the fundamental enjoyment of proving your superiority to these alien scum.
Eat Plasma death, bug eyes. Its says

THE ANCIENT ART OF WAR IN THE SKIES Microprose £34.99

AP27 65% CW
Wide-ranging World War 1 air combat and strategy sim, mostly let down by horrendous disk accessing.
You can swap between an overall view of the battlefield, and sitting in with your bomber and fighter crews on missions – bombing runs are great fun, while doglights, er, aren't.
It adds up to an entertaining and challenging wargame that's tricky to recommend unless you've got a hard drive. ***

ARABIAN NIGHTS

Mirage £34.99 AP25 83% LB

I know what you're thinking, punk —
"On no, not another cute platform game". Up to a point, you'd be right — Arabian Nights has all the hallmarks of a good old scrolling romparound, plus cryptic puzzles, massive:foulti-in cuteness factor, and extraordinary (if occasionally frustrating) high speed.
Great fun. ******

B17 FLYING FORTRESS

AP25 83% TT
Remember the film Memphis Belle?
Well, if you've ever wanted to take on the roles of the entire crew of a B17 strategic bomber, then this is the simulation for you. It's a little short on high-speed graphic action, but more than makes up for it with attention to detail and seriously nostalgic World War 2 ambience.

BACK SIDES Emotional Pictures £25.99

AP27 20% JD
The ancient game of Othello has mesmerised mankind for centuries. And now (at last), it's been brought bang up-to-date – in this new version, the more tiles you flip, the more you get to see of 'attractive' young ladies in various states of undress. Now, you might expect this to be poorly programmed, badly playtested, tacky old rubbish – and you'd be right. It's also pretty good at playing Othello, though. Damn. *

BARD'S TALE CONSTRUCTION KIT Electronic Arts £29.99

AP23 62% JD
It's a construction kit for The Bard's Tale, isn't it? Does the job well, but you'd have to be a real fanatic to plough through the untriendly and unforgiving interface it uses to do it. Then again, it you were thinking about buying this in the first place, that's exactly what you'd be. So, er, that's alright then. ***

BATTLE ISLE '93 Blue Byte £25.95

AP27 86% CW

Not the long-awaited Battle Isle 2 (due out in early 1994), but pretty much the original Battle Isle set in space – on a moon, to be more specific. Including all the stuff that made BI such a lavounte (plus, unfortunately, the original's occasionally annoying slowness), this is a wargame that would entertain many an arcade lan with a good hour or so to spare.

BEAVERS Grandslam £25.99

AP26 71% SC
Adequate cute platformy antics, featuring a beaver. Natural history devotees may be disappointed by the lack of attention to dam-building, while the rest of us have to put up with dodgy controls and loads of disk-swapping. Engaging enough while it holds your attention, but really nothing all that special.

BLADE OF DESTINY

US Gold £39,99

AP30 67% (A1200 75%) RP

It might look like another Legends Of Valour, but don't be fooled – this RPG is dull, badly-designed, a major pain to play without a hard drive, and stupidly, greedily, ridiculously expensive. Don't bother. ***

BLASTAR Core $25.99

AP31 37% CW Hailed by some as the future of video gaming, Blastar's an unfortunate mish-mash of tired game genres thrown haphazardly together with lots of gorgeous graphics. Flying around and shooting things was rarely so nice-looking yet completely tedious, and the whole experience is slightly less enjoyable than watching re-runs of the cult Australian '70s TV series Canoe Squad. *

BLOB Core Design £25.99

AP29 88% SC
Get this – you control a friendly blue blob who bounces up (out of the screen) and down (into the screen) onto little floaty platforms hanging in space. Off-beat? Definitely, and playing this puzzler's even more bizarre than reading about it. For a plain round thing, the blob's so cute it's practically illegal, and watching it plummet to its death is a sight that can reduce even grown men to tears

BOB'S BAD DAY Psygnosis £29.99

AP32 85% CW
Original and great fun Bob's Bad Day is a puzzler with a difference. Bob loses his body, at the beginning of the story (careless huh?) and his head has to go and dind it. The game system involves spinning as maze around so that Bob's head rolls into the right areas. The sparse, nay, primitive graphics of Bob's Bad Day in no way detract from the novel and absorbing gameplay. ****

BODY BLOWS

AP24 89% TT Top 100 No.53 The Amiga beat-'em-up that Street Fighter 2 should have been. It's a gloriously slick fightfest where you can actually control your character with an amazing degree of lethal accuracy. The only downer is how long you can bash your mates before it gets a bit boring. ★★★★

BRUTAL SPORTS FOOTBALL enium £25.99

AP32 88% SM

This excellent sports game is one of the variety that is viewed from the side with a pitch that is three or four screens wide. The scrolling is very smooth and the animations all extremely good. The object of the game is to score goals in a sort of Australian Rules Football set in a fantasy world. You have a choice of teams, including several intelligent animal ones. The twist comes in the quantity of violence, decapitation is a fairly common occurence. The control system is intuitive and extremely good, the choice of tactics almost unlimited. ***

BURNING RUBBER

AP30 79% SC A curiously different driving game, concentrating more on a near realistic rallying notion than outright high-octane driving thrills, and turning out all the better for it. It's technically a bit shabby, to be honest, but it's surprisingly good fun. ***

CAESAR DELUXE Impressions £29.99

AP30 68% BP Sim City-esque strategy wargame type of affair, with more to do than the original (that's both the original Caesar and the original Sim City), but no particularly interesting ways to do any of it. Not bad, but it doesn't transcend its setting for non-Roman Empire fans, ***

CANNON FODDER Virgin £29.1 AP32 94% CW

The joint highest score we've ever given a full-price release. Tanks, helicopters, planes, grenades, guns, zoocom, bang, akka-akka-akka, you're dead, I'm not, Rush out and buy this smoothly scrolling death dealer and when you get home you can lead your platoon of grunts through all the horrors of modern warfare. Fine graphics and superb sounds will keep you gripped through all 72 levels of this massive charmer that combines elements of startegy, puzzle and arcade action. War will never be this much fun again, allegedly.

CASTLES 2 Interplay £34.99

AP29 44% CW It's every boy's dream to grow up and be the ruler of a small European ce between the years of 1337 and 1453. At least that's the messedup head-trip the programmers of this must have been on when they launched Castles 2 on the unsuspecting masses, Grainy monochrome movie footage fails entirely to take your mind off the slow pace and shockingly poor battle sequences of this listless strategy/ battle/conquest game.

CHAMPIONSHIP MANAGER '93

Domark £25.99 AP27 80% TN Excellent footy management sim, and a big improvement on its prequel, with (it's claimed) 37 additional features. Astonishing attention to detail makes it ideal for the more cerebral strategists among you, but there's still no on-screen football action - if you want to see your lads giving it 101% out there on the pitch, go for Graham Taylor's instead. ***

THE CHAOS ENGINE e £25.96

AP22 89% SC Top 100 No.14 corker of a shoot-'em-up. A cross between Gauntlet and Speedball this looks, feels and plays like a dream, with bundles of atmospher and gorgeous graphics too. Most importantly, it's great fun to play, and the two-player mode is even more brill. Unmissable.

CHUCK ROCK 2 -SON OF CHUCK

Core £25.99 AP24 83% CW Top 100 No.66 Chuck's son Junior battles against some of the biggest, cutest monsters of all time to get his pot-bellied dad back. Formula platform material is spiced up with funny and playable sub-games and high-class cartoon characters.

COHORT 2 Impressions £29,99

AP26 52% CW Roman battle sim that works either as add-on for Caesar, or as a standalone strategy wargame. By themselves, the battles tend to be confusing rather than enthrailing, while the fact that you can win without giving a single order is a little, er, suspicious from the tactical involvement point of view.

COMBAT AIR PATROL

Psygnosis £29.99 AP23 88% CW Top 100 No.59 Spiffing flight sim with the emphasis heavily on the all-action shooting aspect. Really good fun, and the most enjoyable flight sim since Knights Of The Sky

CYBERPUNKS Core £25.99

AP32 70% SM Nauseatingly cute cartoon characters wander around killing allens in a maze. Pick up objects, carry them around and, er, use them. Pick up guns, carry them around and, er, shoot things. There are five huge levels each with a myrlad of different sub-levels. There are loads of power up options that lend some interest to this otherwise tedious game.

DARKSEED Cyberdreams £34.95

AP22 88% CW Top 100 No.61 Giger-designed graphic adventure that oozes class and sophistication and creates a world all its own. A truly original game with masses of atmosphere and sick and slick action. Not for the faint of stomach.

DEEP CORE

AP32 54% SM Very ordinary Gods rip-off set in the tuture with an unfeasibly large central character. Three sections, nine levels in each and lots of small sub-levels make this an enormously tedious

D-DAY

US Gold £29.99 AP29 54% TT

The largest ever sea-borne invasion of history is boiled down into a series of vaguely amusing but pretty pointless sub-games. Land your paratroopers on target, bomb bridges in a 3D polygon flight sim section, combat section. And so on. **

DESERT STRIKE

AP25 92% TT One of the best games on the SNE and Mega Drive just got a whole lot es on the SNES ter. Naturally enough, the Amige sion of this isometric helicopter ship classic has got better aphics, better expl rally all the stuff you need to turn your puny cons friends Lemmings-hair-green with envy. The gameplay's a bit simple, but there's plenty of missions and a brilliant Gulf-War-feel all round (if that's your cup of tea).

DIGGERS Millennium £29.99

1800000 AP30 80% CW

AP30 80% CW
Near-interesting strategy arcade effort (the first ever AP CD32 review trivia lans), but almost entirely scuppered by a thoroughly homble control system. It's massive, but you're not going to be able to suffer the controls long enough to see much of a percentage of it. ***

DIGGERS A1200

AP31 72% TN The CD32's first game makes it to the (relatively) humble A1200 without all the frills, and with a few modifications made following some constructive AP-type criticism. It's a game of alien worlds and mining. where you fight it out with a computer-controlled opponent in the tunnel networks that you create. It's complex and thought-provoking, but the odd pace of the game won't appeal to everyone, and the prospect of the game halting abruptly when your opponent finds enough gems is still infuriating. Compulsive or cack? You really need to see it first-hand to

D/GENERATION (CD32 Version) Mindscape £25.99 AP32 90% SC

Apart from the fact that it uses the joypad to good effect, there's no difference to the original version at all. It's still brilliant though.

DISPOSABLE HEROES

AP31 77% CW The triumphant return of the horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up? Well, sadly not, for although Datures some of the most splendidly awesome graphics ever seen, the chances are that most people are never going to see any of the video cameras, monsters and teeth that litter the levels. Why? Well it's all stupidly difficult, even on the easiest level, so you'd have to be some sort of gamesplaying messiah to prefer this over R-Type 2. ★★★ but that's the bad news over with Donk features not one, but quite literally a duo of Samurai ducks, who spin and run their way through massive levels for whatever reason platform characters do all that running and jumping about. As protection, he can don an egg shell, to get under low bits he can turn into a plain old rubber duck, and if you haven't got a friend, you can still play it as a bog-standard one-player platformer. And there are loads of crap bird-related jokes as well. **

DONK

Supervision £26.99 Okay, so it's another platform game.

DUNE 2 Virgin £30.99

AP28 91% CW Not really "more of the same", more a case of "more of something else" the first Dune was a stonking desert planet strategy adventure, and this is a sort of Sim-City-meets-Battle-Isle wargame affair. And very hot it is too, with real-time combat action and a nice line in synthesised speech as you send your troops off to fight in the scorching spice-wastes. You build, you fight, you harvest, you explore and, er, you fight again. But then again, that's what galactic domination is all about

ENTITY Loriciel £25.99

AP25 74% SC The prehistoric platforming adventures of an, er, generously proportioned young lady who gets her kicks by punching out dinosaurs and other mythical beasts. Good static graphics, slightly dodgy animation, and a bit of fun while it lasts (which may not be too long). And phwoar, eh lads? ***

US Gold £37.99

AP25 92% CW Another Another World, only this time e graphics are even better and ere's a good deal more to the ay. The extraordinary in-geons have to be seen to be ed, and the horrific arcade ure playability keeps you coming back for more. It's kind of pricey, and some sections are too frustrating, but Flashback's still a tone in Amiga gaming. Ooh yes.

FOOTBALL TACTICIAN

Talking Birds £22.95 AP29 61% SC

Very much a bog-standard football management game, with few reasons to buy this one rather than one of the numerous other ones. You do get versions for most nationalities of the globe, and can play Scotland, England or even Italy. So that's alright then. ***

FRONTIER: Elite 2 netek £34.9

AP32 65% (A1200 75%) RL Massive space adventure that is very much in the style of its predecessor but lacks the same totally addictive qualities. The graphics don't really cut it and the sound is fairly minimal. It is huge though and you get involved in the twisting story lines. All your actions have consequences and there are various factions such as the Empire and the Federation who have very long memories. Overall it's nowhere near as exciting as it should

GEAR WORKS Hollyware £19.99

AP30 60% SM Awful-looking, but sneakily intriguing, puzzle game based on connecting up gears in what looks like the insides of a clock. It's not an instant hit, but persevere through the first few levels and you'll find a pretty absorbing little puzzler at a halfway-reasonable price. Nothing very exciting, admittedly, but good stuff for (ngh!) fans of puzzle games. ***

GLOBAL CONFLICT Quantum Software £12.99 (startup kit)

Modern-day play-by-mail world domination game. To play, you get a map, a strategic update screen, and some reasonably effective sound effects to convey the combat sequences. But can the vagaries of the British postal system compete with the up-to-the-minute tactical thrills of modern link-ups? Our reviewer thought not. **

GLOBAL GLADIATORS

Virgin £30.99 AP28 84% TT

At last - a cute platform shoot-arama with a difference you'll enjoy. Excellent graphics, slick gameplay, lovely big levels, endearing characters - you name it, you "got it" (as I believe these modern fast-food outlets are saying nowadays). There's a few too many jumping-into-empty-space-and-hoping situations for entirely comfortable gameplay but, medical experts agree, it's still the ideal antidote to 'platform fatigue'.

GOAL! Virgin £30.99

AP26 82% TT Kick Off 3 in all but court injunction -Dino Dini once again dares to go up against the footballing might of Sensible Soccer, and, the truth be told, comes off a lot better this time. Loads of options offer practically everything you could ask for in an arcade soccer game, with the possible exception of Sensi's superintuitive control system. But, hey maybe that's what you Kick Off fans prefer (and deserve). ***

GOBLIINS 2 Coktel Vision £29.99

AP21 78% CW It's more fun to watch than most cartoons on TV today, and scores highly in the fun and humour departments. The graphics and sound are wonderful too, but puzzles that are unbelievably contrived and a few annoying gameplay glitches can make this adventure tiresome at times. Well worth a go.

Definitely the best Amiga cricket sim so far. Though whether that makes it a worthwhile game all-round still very much depends on whether you've got the patience for ordinary cricket never a fast-paced full-action sport, even at the best of times. Loads of options, a good (if brief) 3D bit and crap sound. How's that?

GUNSHIP 2000 MicroProse £35.99

AP28 85% CW Apaches, Blackhawks, Super Cobras, Defenders, Kiowa Warriors - if high-powered helicopter combat sims are your game then Gunship 2000's probably your, er, name. Compared to the hugely popular original, this is very fast (even on a standard Amiga) with plenty of customisation options so you can tailor the tank-busting and chopper downing entertainment to your own ability. And even the extensive premission disk-swapping doesn't seem so bad. One of the top sims around.

HIRED GUNS

Psygnosis £29.99

AP30 88% SM After a wait so long that it wasn't even funny any more, DMA Design's four-player Dungeon Master clone is here, and it's a winner. Hired Guns is big, it's hard, and you'll have to be pretty damn clever to make much of an impact on its gargantuan world. There's something here for everyone a damn good game.

HUMANS - JURASSIC LEVELS Mirage £19.99 data disks, £29.99 stand-alone

AP26 63% CW Another 80 levels for the game that's trying so hard to be Lemmings that it hurts your fillings. Puzzles tend to be frustrating rather than fun – if you liked Humans, you'll love this. Otherwise avoid

INDIANA JONES AND THE FATE OF ATLANTIS US Gold £34.99

AP21 90% GP Top 100 No.57 Graphic adventure in the same vein as Monkey Island, with depth and story surpassing even the films at times. Brilliant in every respect except one – the amount of disk apping renders the game almost slavable, but it's almost worth buying a hard disk just for this.

ISHAR 1200 Daze £29.99

AP29 84% DG AP28 44% DG

got an A f200, then it's aiways good to know that your gear's that little bit better than your neighbours, but aithough the A 1200's extra pelette old game as the standard Ishar.

ISHAR 2 Silmarils £29.99

AP28 79% JD Despite all your efforts in the first instalment, doom's still stalking the land of Ishar - which is all the excuse you need to assemble a hearty band of adventurers and set off on a bizarre 3D walking-into-the-screen mission to collect the parts of a magical poem. Or something. It all adds up to a thoroughly professional RPG that'll please Ishar and other fantasy fans immensely. Fab graphics too. ***

JAMES POND 2 -ROBOCOD (CD32 Version) Millennium £29,99

AP32 45% SC All very well in its day but on a brand spanking new format such as the CD32 this game looks old, tired and boring. No thank you. **

JET STRIKE sputin Software £26.99

A curiously nostalgic game that is reminiscent of mid '80s 8-bit games played on a Spectrum. You choose from a variety of planes and fly around shooting things, crashing into tall buildings and completing missions. The action is viewed from the side and the graphics are crap.

KRUSTY'S SUPER FUN HOUSE Acclaim £25.99

Bright and colourful, this is a faithful conversion from the SNES. Platform fun with some brain-tickling ouzzles. it's only let down by the slightly repetitive gameplay. Also the passwords for accessing levels are pitched too far apart, making it difficult to dip into. A very good, but sadly flawed, platform puzzler.

LEGENDS OF VALOUR US Gold £39.99

AP23 88% MR Top 100 No.24 Amazing-looking texture-mapped RPG, an absolute dream to play, but at an absolute nightmare of a price. Still, with this kind of thing you usually always get a lot of playing time for your money, so that's sort of alright, we suppose. ***

LEMMINGS DOUBLE PACK Psygnosis £29.99

AP21 80% TN If you've never heard of this then where have you been all decade? The unavoidable all-time classic game of rodent rescue packaged logether with Oh No! LEMMINGS 2 - THE TRIBES

AP24 92% SC Top 100 No.8 Super lemmings, jet-pack lemmings and hundreds of tiny McLemmings, what more does a sequel to one of the most popular games of all time need? LETHAL XCESS Eclipse ETBA

AP25 70% CW/SC Isn't it about time we had another vertically-scrolling shoot-'em-up? What do you mean, "No"? Lethal Xcess is genuinely professional carnage along similar lines to SWIV. with some nice new ideas of its own. Where it falls down is the ridiculous level of difficulty which will sorely test all but the most fanatical autofire fans. And it's just not as good as

AP22 88% MR Top 100 No.74 The Amiga is pushed to its limits with the most amazing graphics and parallax scrolling yet seen. The game's not bad either, being a platform slasher, and it's probably the best of its genre on the Amiga. Large, dynamic and great to look at, it will keep you busy for some time.

THE LOST VIKINGS Interplay £29.99

AP27 87% TT Original. Cute. Addictive. Funny. Infunating, Enjoyable, And 'brilliant'. These are just some of the adjectives which Tim 'Mr Vocabulary' Tucker used in his review of The Lost Vikings. And with good reason - with 37 levels of 3-character action, this is (at last) a platform-puzzler that really does something new for the genre. The controls are a bit odd, and the backgrounds could have been prettier, but generally this is a real platforming 'must-have'

MICRO MACHINES Code Masters £25.99

AP30 88% SC Finally arriving from those pesky consoles, this is certainly the most original, and just as certainly the best, overhead-view racing game the Amiga's ever seen. A wide variety of settings and vehicles with very real handling differences means the chances of you ever getting bored of Micro Machines are about the same as of Sonic The Hedgehog getting converted to the Spectrum

MORPH Millennium £25.99

AP27 86% TT Previously titled Metamorphosis, this is a zany platform-puzzler - with a twist. And a turn, and an impromptu lesson in thermodynamics thrown in of molecules that can change state (into a solid, gas, liquid, or whatever) in order to solve puzzles and then change state again - and so on. Well-designed puzzles and cute graphics make it hugely addictive and that's what it's all about. Oi.

MOTORHEAD

AP21 71% CW Loads of hacking and slashing as you rock, roll and belch your way around the music biz. It's a horizontally scrolling beat-'em-up and it's not particularly original, but it has a nice dose of humour and it's a good price. Professional and fun, it's worth a look.

NICK FALDO'S GOLF

Grandslam £34.99 AP22 88% TT Top 100 No.33 Fast, pretty and enormously satisfying to play, this is still the best golf game for your Amiga, with only PGA Tour Golf coming anywhere near it. There's a very accurate golf feel to the game which will please fans of the real thing but not deter others, and Nick himself is on hand to give you handy advice if you need it. If you don't yet have a golf game, get this - you'll love it.

NIGEL MANSELL'S WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP (ENHANCED 1200 VERSION) Gremlin £25.99 AP25 52% SC Not really very enhanced at all. Still quick to get into though. ★★

NIPPON SAFES DMI £29.99

AP26 85% TT Imagine Monkey Island, programmed by Italians, set in modem-day Japan, and with a unique 3-way multicharacter 'parallaction' system. And without any monkeys or islands in it. Now you're getting close to how much fun this tasty cartoon-style graphic adventure offers - great plot, reasonably tricky puzzles, and quite a few laughs too. The high price and 5-way disk-swapping are the only real problems with it.

NODDY'S PLAYTIME Jumping Bean Company £24.99

AP21 75% RL

A children's game which parents will also enjoy, it's easy to play and gives lots of learning opportunities. Heavy disk swapping makes it hard for kids to play on their own, but it is professionally done, highly enjoyable and should succeed in appealing to the younger children it's aimed at.

OSCAR (CD32 Version) Flair £25.99

AP32 51% SC Dull, generic, derivative and thoroughly mediocre. Oscar has a few nice ideas scattered about its many levels but they are far too few and too far apart. **

OSCAR

AP31 66% CW Yet another game that's hyping itself as THE game of the year, which means that it's got much further to fall when you knock it off its perch. Oscar's basically just a cute character to replace the slightly nauseous troll that featured in Flair's previous platformer, but apart from this cosmetic change, the gameplay's exactly the same as Trolls. What's odd is that in trying to make it look better, they've produced a messy playing area that hides baddies, and a game that generally suffers from that unforgivable platform trait of enemies re-appearing when you've killed them. Not by any definition a memorable game

ONE STEP BEYOND Ocean £19.99

AP29 87% CW QUAVERS star, Colin 'QUAVERS' Curly is the only character in this platformy puzzler type thing featuring sliding platforms and QUAVERS. You may feel that having QUAVERS in a game is a tad needless and merely an excuse to advertise QUAVERS, and you'd be right. However, QUAVERS aside, it's still a groovy and fun and funky and taxing and, and... lots of other Good Things sort of puzzle game that needs you to think AND react quickly. Oh, and did we remember to mention QUAVERS? ****

AP31 46% SC The game that's been hyped as the mother of all overhead racing games turned out to be a tad mediocre and not really worth the wait. This lacklustre attempt from Team 17 fares even worse because of the sheer wonderfulness of Micro Machines, which beats it on every count. Hands down. **

OVERKILL indscape £19.99

AP30 84% SC Fast and sexy A1200-only Defender derivative for slightly more exciting anally-retentive psychopaths with dysfunctional personalities.

THE PATRICIAN

AP29 54% JD All those of you out there who are really into the Hanseatic League of merchants who traded across Europe in the 13th and 14th Centuries are in for a real treat with this one. Although you trade across the world, marry for status and money and fight off pirates, all the action seems to be fixed in Europe, and the intricately animated graphics don't really detract from the big question - is there anyone out there who's going to be ested in this?

PINBALL FANTASIES 21st Century Entertain nent £29.99

AP19 89% SC Top 100 No.6 More brilliant pinballing action in the follow-up to the legendary Pinball Dreams, but it's a little less consistent than its predecessor and, scandalously. £5 more expensive. Still, the best table is astoundingly good, and practically worth the cash by itself. Pretty damn fab all round, but there's still enough room for improvement for someone to write absolutely definitive Amiga pinball game

PINBALL FANTASIES

21st Century £29.99

AP32 90% SC Nothing much new here, a couple of extra tunes and more colours. It's still just about the dandlest thing you can get for your new console though.

PIRACY ICE £29.99

AP23 34% TT Trading game with crap beat-'em-up sections and pseudo-3D maze bits Rudimentary graphics, not a lot of depth (although at least there's plenty of variety), and generally nothing you'd really want to spend any amount of time playing. *

PRIME MOVER Psygnosis £25.99

AP32 22% SC Bad music, nasty noi controls and years of boredom and frustration are yours if you buy this piece of motorbiking nonsense from 'ought to know better' Psygnosis - so

PUTTY System 3 £25.99

AP18 90% MR Top 100 No.28 One of the Amiga's finest and most utterly silly moments yet. The loading can be a bit of a pain but everything else (especially the sound and Uncle Ted) is wonderful. System 3 have pulled out all the stops on this one to give you more laughs for your money than any other game around.

RAGNAROK Mirage £34.99

AP23 74% TT Nice version of an ancient Norse boardgame, slickly presented and engrossing to play, but hampered by one of the most ludicrous price tags we've seen in months, 35 guid for Viking chess? We think not. ★★★

RAMPART

Domark £25.99 AP21 66% SC Great fun in the two-player mode, but spoiled by sluggish controls. It's overpriced for a conversion that isn't as good as either the original or other format versions. **

REACH FOR THE SKIES

AP27 80% DG Shockingly expensive but surprisingly accessible WW2 flight sim – with the added bonus of a strategy section that's actually worth playing. Topnotch high-speed flying sequences, with not too much realism to get in the way of having fun. ***

ROBOCOD ENHANCED 1200 VERSION

lillennium £24.99

AP28 84% TT Now, depending on who you believe. Robocod is either "THE platform cutie to beat all platform cuties" (Tim Tucker) or just "pretty damn dull" (Stuart Campbell). Either way, only a fool would try to deny that this version has loads more colours, lovelier backgrounds and five bonus levels. By all accounts, this is £25 well spent if you don't already have the ordinary Robocod game, but probably not worth it if you do. Or if your name happens to be Stuart Campbell, say.

SECOND SAMURAI Psygnosis £29.99

AP32 90% JN After First Samurai comes, er, Second Samurai. And a jolly good platform game it is too. Crammed full of super sounds, gripping graphics, perplexing puzzles and enigmatic enemies it will take you an age to enemies it will take you an age to complete. There are three worlds, each with four levels and every new level is just that bit more difficult than the last, making for a classically addictive game. Second Samurai stands head and shoulders above the majority of boring platformers, it has all the obligatory features such as bonus rooms and bosses but somehow has more style.

SEEK AND DESTROY Vision Software TBA

AP32 79% SM Putting you in command of an Apache helicopter this game is viewed from above and scrolls in every direction. Armed with a chain gun, Fire and Forget Air Rockets, Air-to-air Intercept missiles, Air-to-ground to-air intercept missiles, Air-to-gr missiles, Napalm and with the al to call up an air strike when you ne extra help, you have a variety of missions to complete. It's fast, it's fun, it's extremely difficult, it's got good noises and dull graphics.

SENSIBLE SOCCER '92/93 SEASON

Renegade £25.99 stand-alone Æ3.95 upgrade

AP21 94% SC Top 100 No.1 The original was voted the best Amiga game ever by you readers, and this is even better. It's more realistic, there are red and vellow cards now, the goalkeepers are better and the teams' skill levels have been tweaked, making the game tougher. Just about the best game in the world for the Amiga, so if you haven't aiready got it: 1. Why not? and 2. Get this one instead.

SIM CITY DELUXE Infogrames £29.99

E

AP25 92% SC Top 100 No.11 The one true god among god sims, now repackaged in this special 'Deluxe' edition, which just means you get the original game plus the Terrain Editor and Architecture 1 add-on disks for your thirty quid. Yes thirty guid - and that's our main objection. The game's as marvellous as it ever was, but frankly over-priced in this format.

SINK OR SWIM Zeppelin Premier £25.99

AP26 68% SC The sea-going platform-puzzling adventures of 'Kevin Codner', in which he rescues 'Dim Passengers'. Film-related puns aside, this is a good 60 levels of better-than-average esy antics, handicapped by very unforgiving controls. And at this price point, not a patch on Lemmings 2.

SLEEPWALKER Ocean £25.99

AP23 84% SC Top 100 No.97 Gorgeous Lemmings-meets-Sonic arcade puzzler, made all the better by being in aid of Comic Relief. Don't buy it for that, though - buy it 'cos it's a corking little game, Ocean's best for ages. We like it ..

SLEEPWALKER A1200 VERSION

Ocean £25.99 Top 100 No.97 Pretty much exactly the same as the normal version, only with 24 colours used in the game instead of 16. On ah, and there's 256 colours in the opening sequence, apparently.

Ooooohh ****

AP29 88% SC

A game about a kid who likes soccer could only really be called one thing, and quite unsurprisingly this is it. Annoying music is the only thing that spoils this graphically gorgeous platform romping tale of a boy's attempt to rebuild the World Cup The links between this and Arabian Nights are fairly obvious, but by reducing the inertia on the main character and giving him a football (with loads of special shots) those Krisalis boys have improved on their previous Far Eastern frolic.

SPACE CRUSADE: THE VOYAGE BEYOND

Gremlin £24.99 (stand alone) or £14.99 (data disk) AP23 80% DG Top 100 No.98 Loads more scenarios for Space Crusade, very well done without offering anything significantly new It's a data disk, basically.

SPACE HULK

AP31 76% TT An atmospheric conversion of the popular Games Workshop board game that pits a load of heavily armed and armoured space marines (you) against a swarming mass of evil 'Genestealer' aliens (the computer) aboard decaying space ships. It's a sort of strategy combat game, where you plan your assault on an overhead map view, and then creep around the corridors in a firstperson Dungeon Master view. It's derivative of half-a-dozen games, but still fun and playable.

SUPER CAULDRON

AP27 26% SC A major let-down after the earlier Cauldron games, and, indeed, some genuinely good stuff from the Titus crew. What's wrong with it? Well, pretty much everything, in fact. You'd have more fun playing with a real cauldron. Of soup. *

Team 17 526 99

AP26 78% CW First of a 'new generation' of heavily console-influenced Amiga games, this is a super-smooth, super-fast, super-cute platformer with no need at all to mention Sonic The Hedgehog (I mentioned it once, but I think I got away with it). There's no denying its thoroughly slick and professional presentation, but, for all that, Superfrog just seems to lack a certain something in terms of charm. Come on, Team 17, we just know that you can do better.

SYNDICATE

AP28 91% (93% on A1200) TT Four super pals have an exciting time sightseeing in the cities of the future, a golden land of opportunity and adventure. Oh, and I guess I should also mention the cyborgs, the crime syndicates, the horrifying crime syndicates, the normying selection of close-quarter firearms and the almost limitless opportunities for ridiculously sadistic violence. Yup, Bullfrog have hit the mark again with an extraordinarily absorbing strategy/god sim/shoot-'em-up, borrowing heavily from everything from Blade Runner (the film) to 3D Ant Attack (on the Spectrum). And does it work as a coherent whole? You betcha.

TEARAWAY THOMAS Global Software £25.99

AP22 79% TT Top 100 No.92 A console-beater in full glory, this is about the fastest you'll see your Amiga go - and boy is it fast. Good fun too, if in a rather simple platformy way. Take Thomas tearing through the levels to collect gems and jump on bad guys' heads - you know the score. A bit more depth would have made it an Amiga classic, but as it is it's a good romp and lots of fun.

THEATRE OF DEATH Psygnosis £29.99

AP31 61% DG

There's something ever so slightly wrong with this control-squads-oflittle-soldiers-around-and kill-theother-guys game. Maybe it's the awkward isometric graphics that make it look as if all the roads go uphill, maybe it's the annoying control system that involves switching between map screens and battle areas every few seconds, or maybe it's the amateurish gunfire effect that's little more than a line drawn between the soldier and the target. There's plenty of heavy weaponry and gore spread across loads of different playing areas, but it's no Cannon Fodder, is it? ***

THE SETTLERS

AP32 88% (A1200 90%) CW An absorbing economic simulation with cute cartoon characters? Well, yes. Build a castle, a butchers, a bakers, a farm, a windmill and a host of other buildings and watch the tiny inhabitants scurry around building, baking, butchering, farming and a host of other things. Then take over other settlers with your knights and vou've won.

TINY SKWEEKS

Loriciel £25 99

AP19 68% RL Previously previewed as The Brainies, this is a sweet little puzzler which'll get your mind turning aults, but won't really get you excited enough to want to plough through all 101 levels. One of the better games in the genre, though

TOM LANDRY STRATEGY Merit £44.99

AP26 77% TT Excellent American Football strategy game, second only to the combined strategy/action angle of the mighty John Madden (of course). All the facts, figures and stats you could ever need are here, plus some pretty funky animations of players following your plays, and uninhibited advice from Mr Landry himself. Shame there's no league table, but otherwise excellent end-zone entertainment for all you gridiron fans out there.

TRANSARCTICA Silmarils £29.99

AP23 64% CW Strategy affair with a great plot, but let down by a lack of gameplay depth and some serious slowness. A bit of a disappointment. Brr chuff.

AP21 83% CW If bright, cute and cheerful platformtype games are your thing then this has to be the one for you. Everything about this is so fluffy and nice that you want to hurl, and there really isn't. really anything bad to say about it.

TROLLS (ENHANCED 1200 VERSION) Flair £25.99

AP27 86% TT What's the cutest thing you can think of? Now DOUBLE IT. Yes, if you thought that the ordinary Trolls was just-so-ever-so-sweet-and-lovely-and-nice then - well, you ain't seen nothin' yet. The enhanced A1200 version has positively the most gorgeous parallax-scrolling backgrounds ever seen in an Amiga game, and what's more they don't get in the way of the action or slow things down at all. If you like platformers, then this is what you bought an A1200 for.

TURRICAN 3 Renegade £25.99

AP31 67% CW Nah, they're not fooling anyone with this one. It's Turrican 2 again, only with a funny new rope attachment that allows you to swing from platforms and leap bottomless ravines. If you liked Turrican 2, then the chances are that you'll like this, because it's the same game. If you didn't like Turrican 2 then you'll hate this for all the same reasons.

URIDIUM 2 Renegade £25.99

AP31 78% SM Andrew Braybrook's classic game of shooting the hell out of monster spaceships just got that little bit better, and that's about all really. The differences between this new version and the original are miniscule, with a small amount of vertical scrolling. and an all-round slicker feel, and aithough there's a new sub-game once you're inside the ship, it's fairly tiresome and dull and not really worth the effort. Not so much a sequel as version 1 point 2.

VEKTOR STORM

AP23 60% TT Scruffy-looking version of beautiful

arcade game Tempest, prone to speed-up and slow-down and sticky control. Tempest was gorgeous, but this is mediocre, and 30 quid to boot. What a shame.

WALKER Psygnosis £29.99

AP24 85% CW Top 100 No.58 Strut around in a huge metallic blue chicken and kill practically everything that moves in this needlessly gratuitously violent game. Mowing down masses of attacking troops from the comfort of your bedroom never seemed like such a great idea in this graphically wonderful (but somewhat repetitive) blaster.

WAR IN THE GULF

AP28 85% CW Yup, it's those tank-driving tearaways from Team Yankee and Pacific Islands again, this time taking their very own brand of armour-plated justice to a future war in the lucratively oil-producing Persian Gulf. There's a marvellous overhead-map-view strategy aspect, a 3D lookingout-the-turret shoot-'em-up view, and simply loads of high-powered tank warfare features to keep you thoroughly entertained - well at least until they get around to televising the next episode of the real thing.

WAXWORKS

AP22 70% JD A horror game that fails to really frighten but does offer some good entertainment with macabre twists. There're maybe a bit too many mazes for its own good, but there are also some puzzles and some fighting to be done. Well worth a look for horror fans.

WEEN

Coktel Vision £29.99 AP1981% LE

A bit on the overpriced side, and a bit titchy, but a nifty little puzzle-based adventure thing all the same. A brilliant control interface too, but the game needs a little more to it to qualify for classic status. ***

WHALE'S VOYAGE

AP27 59% CW Hugely sophisticated RPG/ adventure, sometimes similar to the Eve Of The Beholder/Dungeon Master school, but set in a spacey sci-fi scenario (the 'Whale' of the title is a spaceship, by the way). Nicely put together (despite being frustratingly hard to get started with), but somehow lacking in sparkle

WING COMMANDER

Mindscape £34.99

AP21 55% MR

Everything that was on the original PC version is replicated here, which means that the standard Amiga is so bogged down with data that it runs hopelessly slow, far too slow to make it playable. On the A1200 though, the 3D sequences run fast and smooth, making this the benchmark game for future A1200 shoot-'em-ups.

* (for the A1200)

WIZ 'N' LIZ Psygnosis £29.99

AP31 SC 78% Deliberately aimed at the, erm, youth end of the market, Wiz 'N' Liz's confrontation-free gameplay tends to leave you wondering where exactly the actual gameplay is. With no baddies, and therefore no-one to kill or be killed by, you play a sorcerer racing to free bunnies, with time being your only enemy. Free the bunnies, collect words to form spells and well, that's it really, but a competitive two-player option and a fantastically speedy pace make it quite fun. Surprisingly.

WIZKID Ocean £25,99

AP15 91% MR Top 100 No.15 A refreshing game that mixes psychedelic arcade adventure, football, and bad jokes with an es like Breakout and Pengo With its perfect control system it's as much fun to play as it obviously was to write. The best game ever (beginning with the letter W at least). If you don't buy Wizkid, your life illy will be a lot poorer.

WOODY'S WORLD

AP26 70% ID Traditional platformer bearing a more-than-passing resemblance to Super Mario Brothers. Coincidence or magic? You decide. Anyway there's plenty of running, jumping, and banging stuff with your head, but nothing to lift it above the crowd. Unless you happen to be really into running, jumping and banging stuff with your head, that is,

WORLDS OF LEGEND

Mindscape £25.99

AP26 81% CW Well, Legend was, er, legendary ("an RPG that's got everyone in the AP office playing it") – and this is more of the same. More specifically, it's exactly the same game engine, only this time with a different adventure to play through - one with a distinctly oriental flavour. The game's as absorbing as it ever was (which is 'very absorbing', if you must know), which, ironically enough, means that you're better off buying the original Legend (now out on budget, economy fans) unless you've already played the first one to death and want more like it.

YO! JOE! n Soft £26.99

AP28 91% SC featuring the wide-ranging adventures of the eponymous Joe and his friend Nat. Just like Hudson Soft's previous high-quality output, the whole thing's characterised by an astonishing attention to detail, with beautifully-designed levels, excellent effects, loads of excellent weapons (including a chainsaw and chuckable Molotov cocktails) plus a simultaneous two-player mode – it's not perfect, but it's nice to see peop trying. Attention to detail, see? That the key to a good game. Yes.

ZOOL ENHANCED A1200 VERSION

AP24 78% TT Too 100 No.71 Colourful parallax scrolling backgrounds make the whole game a lot prettier, but also clutter it up to a lot prettier, but also clutter if up to an extent that they hide on-screen baddies. Not so much enhanced as tarted up, and you could well find that you prefet the original, Stit, some opinion in the office DOES hold that this is a big improvement on the original, so at least try to have a look at it if you've got a 1200.

Are video games killing pop music?

No. Pop music is killing itself, as video games will do pretty soon if they're not careful.

How do you think AMIGA POWER has changed since you left?
